Smigel Wins Court Nod Against Board

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Victor Smigel, developer of an apartment complex at Lake Street and Euclid Avenue in Bloomingdale, has won a lawsuit against the village which will enable him to complete his buildings and receive sewer and water service.

In a decision handed down Tuesday, Judge William Guild of the DuPage County Circuit Court issued a writ of mandamus instructing the village to issue 13 building permits to Smigel and to allow Smigel to tap on to the appropriate sewer lines.

SMIGEL RECEIVED nine permits for the six-unit buildings now on Lake Street but had not received 13 permits for proposed buildings which will extend the project to Glen Ellyn Road. The 22 permits were applied for last April.

The village has been expecting the decision. It had refused to issue building permits to Smigel, contending it did not have adequate sewer facilities. Smigel will connect on to the sewage treatment plant which the Illinois State Sanitary Water Board has scheduled for eventual phase-out, declaring it inadequate for proper treatment of effluent.

The village would not issue permits because of the sanitary water board order, but previous R-3 zoning of the land made the village liable, by implying it could provide proper water and sewage facilities.

SMIGEL HAS cooperated with the village in trying to improve conditions at the sewage plant. The addition of polymers to the initial treatment process, which has upgraded the effluent considerably, is being paid by Smigel.

He has said he will help finance any other necessary measures for improving the plant conditions until it is phased out and replaced by the new Hoffman-Rosner built plant.

In connection with the new plant, Smigel has agreed to oversizing his sewer mains and has pledged $45,000 for his share of the plant.

ORIGINALLY, THE new plant was planned for a 600,000-gallon a day capacity. In order to accommodate its immediate development, the village has decided a plant with an initial capacity of 800,000 was needed.

The pre-annexation agreement with Hoffman-Rosner stipulates the company will pay for and build a 600,000 gallon plant, so the village began soliciting additional funds from prospective developers who would need sewer service.

Smigel and others had pledged what they considered their share of the plant based on unit per gallon estimates.

A BIG FACTOR in the plant planning is the 181-acre Campanelli development. Tentative approval of the zoning for the project seemed to clear the way for concrete negotiations on the amount of front money to be advanced but Campanelli Inc. has not contacted Ralph F. Gross, village engineer and nothing specific has been discussed.

If Campanelli were to pledge some funds, the village would have been planning a starter plant of approximately 1 million gallons a day.

With Campanelli uncommitted, Gross has begun laying out plans for an 800,000-gallon plant with provision for expansion to a 2 million-gallon plant.

THE VILLAGE will pass a resolution agreeing to authorize Hoffman-Rosner to build the 800,000 gallon plant. As the pre-annexation agreement now stands, the firm can only build a 600,000 gallon plant.

Lowell Siff, Hoffman-Rosner vice-president, suggested his company handle the payments from the other developers instead of the village collecting the cost difference.

Siff's statement came during a committee meeting Wednesday. He said originally Hoffman-Rosner was to build a plant for which it would be reimbursed through tap-on fees. Now that the company is building a larger plant to be used by other developers the situation is not as simple.

SIFF SAID cost for 600,000 gallons worth of the plant would be paid by his company and the difference by the developers directly to the company, not to the village, because equipment and materials would be ordered by Hoffman-Rosner.

The exact means of payment will be discussed fully later along with the financing of the oversized trunk system outside Hoffman-Rosner's development.

Hoffman-Rosner also received permission to build a temporary 35,000 gallon plant to service its initial residents. The request by the company came when it was clear the 800,000 plant would not be ready for the first residents of Westlake early this spring.

The plant will be eliminated as soon as the 800,000 gallon plant is built. The expense of construction will be completely assumed by Hoffman-Rosner.

Mayors Seek Sewer Financing

How to finance a countywide sewage system is still the biggest problem facing the mayors and managers of DuPage County. At Wednesday's Mayors and Managers Conference, two methods of financing land acquisition for the project were proposed.

The first would allow for an all-county referendum which would be passed and paid for by the entire county while it was being used by only those municipalities which needed help.

AN ALTERNATE plan calls for dividing the county into water shed districts and allowing each such district to pass its own referendum according to need. The drawbacks to this proposal are that there is presently no legal power to divide the county into districts. Additional legislation would be needed before this plan could be put into effect.

A study to consider the two proposals has been undertaken by an 11-man committee composed of representatives of the mayors and managers conference and just acquired the 11th man, Roy W. Roush of the Downers Grove Sanitary District. Robert Palmer, city manager of Elmhurst, is the chairman of the committee.

It was also suggested at the meeting that a proposed five-man sanitary board for the county be expanded to include seven members. Permission for the formation of a five-man board was just recently received from the state. Wednesday night, the mayors and managers voted to return to the state to request legislation to enlarge the board.

ANOTHER consideration in the subject of a county-wide sewage system is the type of services which the county will offer. It was decided Wednesday that the county should offer wholesale sewer services only to municipalities and sanitary districts, not to private developers. It was the reasoning of the conference that if developers can obtain facilities readily from the county, they will not wish to annex to any of the villages in the vicinity.

A three-man subcommittee was also appointed to work out a formula for sewage plant acquisition. The formula is expected to answer the questions "How much should be paid to the villages for their facilities?" and "How much depreciation will there be?" The committee will try to propose a plan that is acceptable to all 31 municipalities in the county.

IN OTHER business, the mayors and managers were told that a county planner has been hired but his name will not be announced until later this year. An 11-man planning commission to work with him will be appointed by the first of next year.

The conference was addressed by each of the eight con-con candidates from the 39th and 40th districts. Each candidate was given five minutes to present his views and then a brief question and answer period followed.

Halloween Plans Complete

Alan Randall, Bensenville Park District Director announced at Wednesday's park district meeting that plans for the annual Halloween party have been completed.

The festivities will begin with a bonfire at 6 p.m. Oct. 31 at Veterans Park. Refreshments including hot dogs and pop will be served free of charge. The judging of costumes will be at 8:30 p.m. with representatives of the VFW, the village and the Lions Club serving as judges.

Prizes for the best costumes will include four transistor radios and 20 $2 gift certificates.

A DANCE WILL BE in the evening from 7 to 10 p.m. with the band the "Jimi Cream." There will be no admission charge for the dance. A special Halloween committee will make phone calls at 10:30 to teens who have registered at the dance. Twenty $2 certificates will be given to those teens who are home at 10:30.

In other business, the board reviewed and approved an audit of White Pines Golf course and voted to return $1,796.11 to the general fund from the White Pines fund.

The reorganization of committees was also carried out with director Randall proposing courses which the committees should take. Under the responsibilities of the finance committee, he listed revision of the budget structure and accounting system and suggested that the committee work closely with the planning committee in the expenditure of the $175,000 which will be received for the recreation program. Commissioners Jack Shuster and Merle Hummel will serve on the finance committee.

THE SPECIAL FACILITIES committee will deal with the general improvement of White Pines, including the well system, the mens' locker room and the initiation of House Bill 927. Members of this committee are Donald Carroll and Bill Berde.

The purpose of the personnel committee is to review salary schedules and policy for staff on matters of sick leave and vacation time. The committee is also to study the need for additional park district personnel. Shuster and Berde comprise this committee.

The program committee will deal not only with facilities and programs offered by the park district, but those offered throughout the community by other organizations. Carroll and Robert Nicols are on this committee.

Federal Tour Visits Here

Flick Reedy Corp. in Bensenville was the only small manufacturing firm visited by a group of top-ranking officials of the United States government during a recent tour of the Chicago area.

The group of 25 toured the entire facility of the plant and were guests at a luncheon hosted by Frank Flick, president and co-founder of Flick-Reedy. The firm is the world's largest manufacturer of machine-tool grade air and hydraulic power cylinders.

The plant was chosen to represent industry because of its program of employee and community relations.

Flick-Reedy is a three-time winner of the Helms Award given by the National Industrial Recreation Association for its participation in community affairs.

The group's Chicago-area tour included trips to the Chicago Police Headquarters, the University of Chicago, Chicago Art Institute, Chicago Board of Trade, the Department of Development and Planning and was climaxed by an interview with Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

ANOTHER FUNCTION of the program committee is to begin plans for the recreation program which will go into effect in June.

A fifth committee, planning and facilities, will be in charge of classifying and taking an inventory of all park district equipment and in updating current facilities. They will also take into consideration future needs of the park district and work under a five-year acquisition plan. Nicols and Hummel are members of this committee.

In other business, the board directed Randall to meet Supt. Martin Zuckerman from Dist. 100 and Dist. 2 to work out a park - school agreement. The park district is interested in using the school's facilities for recreational planning.

Board members also made plans for a trip to Springfield Oct. 28 through 30 for the annual Conference of Illinois Association of Park Districts. The Illinois Association is one of the largest in the country.

Debbie and Carlos Reign for Weekend

Queen Debbie Larson and King Carlos Villareal will reign over tomorrow's homecoming festivities at Fenton High School. With the newly elected royalty will be their court of attendants representing each of the classes in the school. Senior attendant is Ola Machewski; junior, Nancy Vicari; sophomore, Edna Villareal, and freshman, Kathy Landahl.

Each attendant was elected by the boys in her class and the king and queen were elected by all the girls and boys in the school respectively.

The day's activities will begin with the judging of the floats in the Fenton parking lot from 9 to 10 a.m. The parade begins at Fenton at 10 a.m. and follows the traditional homecoming route. The parade will move from the school east on Grove to Mason, north on Mason to Green, east on Green to Center, north on Center to Main, west on Main to Addison, south on Addison to Green and west on Green to Fenton High School.

AFTER THE PARADE, the winners will be announced at the school and the winning floats will remain near the field during the football game.

The frosh-soph game begins at noon, the varsity game at 2.

One part of homecoming which will be missed by many this year is the marching band. The band had to be cut out of the music program as part of the overall curtailment of all activities. In its place, a pep band will provide music at half-time of the varsity game.

Also at half-time the king, queen and their court will be presented to their subjects.

The dance which will culminate the evening will be held Saturday from 8 to 11 p.m. Last year's queen and king, Judy Wright and John Gells, will be present at the dance to crown the new king and queen.

THEME FOR the dance is "The Dawning of Aquarius" and the band will be the REO Speedwagon. Tickets range in price from $1.75 for a couple with one alumni and one student with an activity ticket to $3.75 for a couple which has no activity cards.

Firemen Celebrate 75th Year Sunday

Bensenville firemen will celebrate the 75th anniversary of their force this Sunday with a full day of activities.

A pancake breakfast, served by the Firemen's Ladies Auxiliary, will begin at 9 a.m. and continue through 11:30 at the fire hall. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

The breakfast will be followed by a parade at noon with more than 50 trucks participating from all over the northwest suburbs.

A program, which will include presentations for the best posters made by children celebrating Fire Prevention Week, will be at the reviewing stand at 15 N. York Road at 1 p.m. Village Pres. John Varble will give the welcoming address.

Steaks will be fried at the firehouse from noon until 5 p.m. and a dance will begin at 7 p.m. Cost of the dinner is $2, tickets for the dance are $1.

THIS ARCHITECT'S conception of the Roselle Community Swimming Pool is part of a park development which should be available by June, 1970. Gaasrud Construction will begin installation of the recreation complex on Monday. The entire project will include a baseball diamond, play areas, tennis courts and an ice skating rink.

Park Contract Is Signed

The contract for the installation of a recreation complex in Roselle's Community Park was signed by the Roselle Park District Wednesday night.

The project includes a swimming pool complex, a baseball diamond, play areas, two tennis courts and a built-up area which can be flooded to form an ice skating rink.

C. W. Gaasrud General Contractors, Inc., of Park Ridge was the low bidder on the project. The original bid was $310,000, but subsequent trimming of the budget set the price at $307,200. The park district is now negotiating with sub-contractors to lower the cost even more.

Roselle Park Director Paul Derda presented the contract to Gaasrud Construction. The attorney for the development, Ralph H. Burke of Park Ridge, witnessed the signing.

DERDA SAID he was delighted to find that Gaasrud was the low bidder for the job. Gaasrud has recently completed a similar installation, including a swimming pool complex, for Elk Grove Village.

The recreation complex will be located on a 10-acre site off Prospect and Walnut in Roselle. The property adjoins the new Roselle Junior high school. Derda said he hopes to arrange reciprocal benefits for the two institutions — the junior high will be able to use park sports facilities and the park can use junior high buildings for winter and night time activities.

Construction begins Oct. 20 and should last for 240 or 250 days. Derda said he hopes to have the pool filled with water by June. Park officials will hold a groundbreaking ceremony at 9 a.m. Monday.

Village Beat

Syd Jamieson

It has been said that children live in fantasy land when they are very young and as they grow to adulthood they become for the most part realists. Often the younger dreams are shattered and torn away by the world in which we live.

When I was a kid I wanted to be a railroad engineer or a fireman or a captain of a ship. I even had hopes of being other things like a street car conductor or a famous ball player.

I LIVED THROUGH the depression when oatmeal and soup were all we had to eat three times a day and glad to get it.

As I grew older I caddied for 55 cents for 18 holes and shined shoes in a barber shop at 10 cents a shine and 75 cents for cleaning up the place on Saturday night.

If I was lucky I got a job for $9 a week and gave most of that to my mom and dad to pay for my keep.

If I lived in a slum or blighted area I didn't know it at the time; it was home and we made the best of it.

I was lucky enough to receive a $100 scholarship for sports when I went to college and was thankful I was able to drive a truck under the old National Youth Administration (NYA) for 35 cents an hour.

I don't remember hippies, yippies or whatever you called them, but I do remember the poor kids and the hobos along the railroad and Rockefeller giving out dimes from a bag in New York City.

WHEN I ATTENDED grade school the teacher slapped your face if you had it coming or the principal pulled out that big leather strap to whack you when the occasion warranted such action.

It's no secret times have changed, and I guess such discipline in the schools has gone and past.

But now we hear of drug addiction, vandalism, rock-throwing and rioting. Maybe it is the "generation gap," but I would venture to say that such activities are with the minority of those enrolled in our nation's schools.

A pretty substantial bit of our taxes go to our schools so I would say we have a real big stake in how our tax dollar is spent.

School officials realize this investment as they too contribute like any other taxpayer.

MOST PARENTS are deeply concerned about their children's education and rightfully so. We put a lot of faith in our local school systems and the teachers who provide this education.

When we hear or witness what's happening in our schools and higher education today, we shake our heads and wonder what it is all about.

Then we hear of the good things which tend to overshadow that which we do not like to remember, but the bad things still keep cropping up and we cannot forget that it could and may be happening in suburbia.

I wonder if the children in the elementary schools are aware of these things. I hope not, for the future will depend on how well we mold their environment.

A STERN PAUL Ahlrich, Bloomingdale Trustee, warns Trustee Ralph Johnston an arbitrary policy of adjustment of bills is "heading for trouble."

Flooding Relief's In View

Water-logged citizens of Bloomingdale's Suncrest unit four may have some relief with the possibility of a new storm sewer for their neighborhood.

Village engineer Ralph F. Gross presented a proposal to the board at Wednesday night's committee meeting requesting authorization to build a storm sewer for the area that would drain directly into the lake to the east of the homes.

Unit four is north of Lake Street and east of Circle Avenue. Poor grading, illegal connections of storm sewers to sanitary sewers and heavy rains have added up to wet streets and concerned citizens.

There have been two meetings between the citizens and the village to discuss installing storm sewers in their flooded backyards. Even as these discussions have progressed, the storm sewer servicing the area has proved inadequate to drain the streets of the neighborhood.

In order to facilitate drainage of Pleasant and Prairie avenues, the streets hit hardest whenever a big rain occurs, Gross has suggested the village build a new storm sewer for the area.

The sewer will be a necessary first step in solving the backyard flooding, providing the water from the yards with an adequate outlet.

The exact extent and location of the sewer has not been planned, but Gross indicated it will be designed to allow residents easy access if and when they build storm sewers of drainage ditches along their yards.

Gross suggested the village use money from the motor fuel tax fund for the project which will cost about $6,000. Trustee Paul Ahlrich said the money should come from another fund and then be transferred back to the fund from the motor fuel fund.

Ahlrich said whenever projects are financed directly by the motor fuel fund, companies have a tendency to bid higher. He said he was in agreement with the need for the project, but thought a different method should be used to finance it.

The board instructed Gross to draw up specifications and estimate a cost for the sewers for presentation at the next board meeting.

Two Bids Accepted For Sewer Building

The Roselle Village Board voted to accept the two low bids on construction projects for the village's sewage system, pending location of funds for the developments.

Keno and Sons Construction of Hyde Park bid $14,439 for an extension to Roselle's sewage treatment plant. The village engineer had estimated the cost of the job at $14,600.

Clyde Wilbur Plumbing Co. bid $18,500 for laying new water lines. The job had been estimated at $14,500, but the Lincoln Street addition to the plans ran the estimate to $17,500.

The contracts will be signed and the work started as soon as the village straightens out the construction funds deficit caused by improvements in Turner Park.

Bill Woes Evaporate

Insinuations of intended irregularities in Bloomingdale's water bill account evaporated or were at least temporarily subdued Wednesday night as more explanations concerning the LoPresti water bill were made known.

The committee meeting was scheduled to discuss the feasibility of an audit of the water books to determine who had not paid water bills.

Trustees Paul Ahlrich and Wallace Geils, originally introduced the subject of an audit, wanting specifically to discuss the LoPresti bill which they alleged had been written off by Trustee Ralph Johnston, chairman of the sewer and water committee.

MRS. FORTUNE LoPresti's bill had been originally questioned by Ahlrich and Geils because she had been recommended by Village Pres. Robert Meyers for the position of clerk which has been vacant since July.

During the committee meeting Johnston contended he had not "written off the bill but adjusted it." Later it was learned Johnston had reviewed the LoPresti account and instructed the village deputy clerk, Kay Funk to adjust the bill by $10.

The LoPresti's had a running balance on their bill of $56.93. This amount came from two separate billings, one in February and one last October, both of which, the LoPresti's contended were due to over registering meters.

AFTER JOHNSTON reviewed the account he decided to reduce the balance by $10 and close the issue.

Through a general misunderstanding and lack of communication between Johnston and Mrs. Funk, the $56.93 amount was completely eliminated from the books.

Johnston told the Register he was under the impression LoPresti had paid the $46.93. When the accusations were being hurled, "nobody came to ask me what happened or how the matter was handled," he said.

"When I said I didn't owe the village money, I didn't," Mrs. LoPresti said. "How could I have, I had not been billed for the $56.93. It's pretty clear that I'll be billed and have to pay the village the money," she added.

JOHNSTON AND Ahlrich both indicated their intention to bill Mrs. LoPresti and collect. The two will also review the books to determine if other citizens should be billed that have not been.

Ahlrich, however, said he felt Mrs. LoPresti should be billed the full amount because the claims of an over registering meter were not proven.

During the meeting, he denounced the method Johnston used to adjust the bill, asking on whose authority he did so. Johnston replied he had consulted with Village

Atty. Jack Wagborne who said an adjustment was in order.

To avoid future arbitrary adjustments of billings, the board voted to pass a resolution setting strict procedures on complaints of over registering meters.

FROM NOW ON, citizens complaining of irregular readings will have their meter removed and replaced. The old meter will be sent to the manufacturer for tests. If it is faulty, a minimum billing will be issued. If it is operative, the citizen will have to pay the contended bill.

After the meeting, Ahlrich said he was satisfied with the results because the measures taken by the board, "stopped this thing from snowballing into something that would be unmanageable."

Off the Register Record

by "HEC"

At a recessed board meeting Wednesday from the Tuesday scheduled session, board members resumed their old form of "meeting" in the conduct of business which could hardly be said to be of prime importance.

After a brief opening ceremony Tuesday dedicated to Lawrence J. Springborn, DuPage County sheriff, who died last week while on a Jamaican vacation, Chairman Ronske announced that the county board would attend in a body the services held in Naperville in the afternoon. He then immediately recessed the business meeting.

The question of proper budgeting and living within the amounts appropriated again took the spotlight when the requests were made for approval of four resolutions asking "emergency appropriations" to pay accruing bills to the end of the fiscal year Nov. 30.

Transfers were sought and approved to meet added personnel costs in the sheriff's department and to added personnel and other overhead in the coroner's office.

IT WAS EXPLAINED that insufficient funds in the sheriff's budget were due to increases in pay of salaried personnel and also part-time help. It was pointed out that a "cost of living" increase amounting to 10 per cent and more is responsible for the deficiency.

The total transfer to the sheriff's budget amounted to $57,000. Personnel increases in the coroner's budget amounted to $6,000. Another $9,300 was needed for the coroner's administration listed as "jurors, medical and dental, court reporting, stationery and supplies."

Chairman Ange Mahanke, finance chairman, defended the coroner transfer on the ground that a sharp increase in accidents has upped the overhead for the coroner.

The fourth emergency appropriation was for new equipment said to be needed in the circuit clerk's office. The amount $22,460, it was explained, would not be spent this fiscal year for the purchase which would be budgeted for the coming fiscal year. But to proceed, the money, it was said, had to be on hand.

On the agenda, which is in the hands of all reporters at the press table, appeared an item "Reports of fee earning offices."

JACK WALL, Bloomingdale, asked the finance chairman if she would furnish the gross figures to the board for those fee offices.

But Mrs. Mahanke, in a surprise statement, confessed that they were not then available. This caused Wall to scratch his head and frown.

The perennial foes of Frank Bellinger, Milton, chairman plan committee, let him know that they were appraising his reports critically when he presented a resolution to purchase one of seven parcels for $11,250 for the new county complex area west of Wheaton now being planned.

The Plan Committee minutes for their last meeting showed that Oct. 15 had been set for ground-breaking ceremonies for the new detention home. It was charged it was on land not yet purchased.

"Are we going to break ground before we own the land?" Wall again challenged.

BUT BELLINGER who usually does his homework before he brings matters to the board pointed out that the ceremony would not be held until Oct. 22. But when asked the size of the area involved he could not answer.

This caused some members to inquire: "Before we spend $11,250 shouldn't we know what we're buying?"

Queried later Bellinger reported to this column that the county had owned an approximate eight acres on which the complex would be built since 1880. The seven parcels are on the periphery and complete the layout.

This is the vein in which county board business is being conducted lately. At one point on an airport project presented by Don Swan, York, chairman of the airport committee, County Chairman Ronske rapped his gavel and told the board that they were permitting personality issues to override their judgment.

What he meant was they were spending taxpayer's money and it is an insult to the people who pay the bills to ignore the merit of an issue in favor of some personality squabble.

But Gerald Weeks, Milton, the nemesis of unauthorized spending, shook his head and declared the county is thousands of dollars in the hole because of expenditures not appropriated.

"I OBJECT to this practice because it's improper fiscal procedure," he said.

No one else shared his alarm.

Faces of Death Ask for Life

by JAMES VESELY
The war in Vietnam met the Arlington Heights commuter crowd yesterday morning, and by all indications, the commuters won.
As downtown businessmen and shoppers met their trains early yesterday morning, they in turn were met by a contingent of some 10 Northwestern University students trying to arouse public indignation over the war.
The students were part of the nationwide moratorium against the war, but to most of the commuters, they were just another obstacle to a seat on the train.
THE WAR PROTESTERS received some favorable responses from a few commuters but the anger came hard and fast from most of the men at the station.
Confronted by a bearded student passing out anti-war material, one man angrily pushed the leaflets to the ground. Another man slammed a train window down in the face of a protester shouting to him from below.
The students seemed undaunted. About 7 a.m. a few of them donned white death masks splashed with red paint and walked through the crowds chanting "Stop the war, stop the war..."
Other students pretended they were commuters. They stood on the platform with clear plastic face masks, reading newspapers and arguing with the protesters.
THIS REALLY got a few of the commuters mad. One man shouted "You damn Copperheads!" to the students but they didn't seem to know what he meant.
Any response from the commuters, either in anger or sympathy, was welcomed by the demonstrators, according to Pacificist Gordon Patterson, one of the students.
"We are trying to get people to think about war," he said, "and if they get angry at us that's all right. As long as they begin to think about war."
Patterson's crew was persistent in its attempts to get reactions from the commuters. The students would walk with a man down the train platform, telling him about the war, asking questions, getting rebuffed, sometimes getting insulted.

A few of the commuters stopped for a minute to talk earnestly to the young men. Most, however, seemed embarrassed by the confrontation.
AS EACH NEW batch of commuters arrived, the demonstrators tried to arouse their interest. Two or three of them would walk the platform, white masks on their faces, carrying a pair of dungarees between them. They chanted their slogans and the commuters responded with theirs.
Just before the 8 a.m. train arrived, two students got into a verbal slugging match with a clump of commuters on the opposite platform.
"Stop the war," the students said.
"If you don't like this country, get out," a commuter responded.
"STOP THE KILLING," the student shouted.
"Go back to school," the commuter yelled.
Several of the men in the crowd waiting for the train began to get angry. "What do you do for a living?" they asked the students. "You people are just naive, how do you know what's going on in Vietnam?"
The two groups shouted at each other across the track. It was a battle of clichés, each side accusing the other of ignorance, each side defending its own brand of patriotism.
Suddenly, like a curtain, the train came between the two groups. The commuters got on their train and the students lined the track, arms up, two fingers spread in the peace sign.
As the train pulled out of the station, a conductor hung out the door. He poked his thumb over his shoulder and shouted, "You're on private property. Get off."

From Child Star to U.N.

by PHYLLIS BERNSTEIN
UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Shirley Temple at the U.N.
That seemed a pretty good joke to many commentators when the former child star, now Mrs. Charles Black, 41 years old and mother of three children, was appointed by President Nixon as a member of the U.S. delegation to the 24th General Assembly that began Sept. 16.
There were a lot of cracks about "The Good Ship Lollipop" sailing into troubled international waters. At the United Nations itself there was considerable surprise.
But Shirley Temple Black has settled into the job now; she's gotten over being a "two weeks curiosity" to other U.N. dignitaries and employees, and she's proved adept at getting the hang of things.
"She talks right up at committee meetings and sessions, and she gets listened to," a U.N. veteran said.
Acceptance doesn't surprise Mrs. Black herself and if some of the criticism of her appointment hurt her, she doesn't let it show.
She was asked in an interview what her answer was to those who said her appointment was strictly a political payoff for her campaigning for Nixon's election (she spoke in 21 states and 46 cities).
"Who are 'they'?" she replied coolly. "I would suggest that 'they' keep an eye on the work we're doing and see how things go. Then 'they' can give me another rating, or none at all."

be fruitful but that we can expect "a lot of tea to be sipped" while awaiting an honorable peace in Vietnam.

keep your eyes off the road!

Off the road? / Sure. / You're not driving—you're riding a Milwaukee Road bi-level commuter train. Just settle back and keep your eyes on your paper. Or your book. / Or gaze through your picture window at the beautiful autumn colors. Or at that miserable autumn drizzle that turns a superhighway into Nightmare Alley. / Or snooze a little. Snug. Relaxed in your comfortable seat and enjoying our comfortable man-made weather. Enjoying the fact too, that you'll get downtown (or back home) refreshed and on time. / And here's the clincher! Commuting with us every day, you'll actually save money over the cost of driving and parking your car. / Come ride with us... and keep your eyes off the road.

The Way We See It

A Fair Challenge

Eighty-four Illinois counties — including Lake and DuPage — have been thrown a legal challenge aimed at making them more fair and efficient in representing their residents.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie has signed legislation requiring all counties operating under the township form of government to reapportion themselves by July 1, 1971.

The action will force reduction in the size of the county boards in 21 counties. It does not affect Cook County.

The legislation stipulates that after reorganization no county can have less than five nor more than 29 members on its board. This directly affects DuPage, which currently has a 31-member board, including a chairman, nine supervisors and 21 assistant supervisors.

It will even more dramatically affect counties like Lake (37 members), Kane (41), Will (42), Champaign (50), St. Clair (50), LaSalle (51) and Sangamon (51).

It will be up to the counties to take the initiative in meeting the law's requirements. The present county boards can draw up the reapportionment plans, determine how many members there will be, and whether they run at large or from districts with equal population. The boards may also assign the work to special local commissions established specifically for the purpose. If neither board nor commission acts, the law automatically requires elections to be at large.

The new law makes extraordinarily good sense. It is in line with the U. S. Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote proviso. It opens the way for much more efficiency in operation of county government, eliminating the pattern of adding on new assistant supervisors with increases in population until boards become unwieldy in size. It also should result in some savings to taxpayers, who'll have less representatives to support on the county boards.

The law also retains April as the traditional month for township elections, preserving — as Ogilvie observed — special attention on these local races, separate from state and national elections.

Our concern now is how the counties react to the new law. We hope they comply with all deliberate speed, and without trying to preserve jobs that must be eliminated.

We hope, most of all, that it will be done with fairness, that the new lines will be drawn with an eye to the most equal representation to the voters, and not to dilute the impact of any area.

An Education in Death

by RICK FRIEDMAN

The people who have been concerned with sex education in the classroom may find an ally in my seven-year-old son, Josh. If given his choice, I think he'd rather have guided missile education in the classroom.

At least that was the impression I got the other evening when I came home from work. He spent an hour telling me about the two men from the Nike base who came to his second-grade class to show slides and a film about missiles. What Josh was particularly turned on to was the way the one missile skimmed off the water, went up in the air, right through the plane of the bad guys and made the bad guys parachute out.

ACCORDING TO Josh, the Nike base people who talked to him were a lieutenant and a sergeant. The lieutenant had a lot of medals on his chest, which impressed Josh almost as much as the missile going through the plane did; the sergeant only had a few medals on his chest.

As Josh related it, the slides came on first. They showed some smiling college boys going to the Nike base. They showed about the rockets — how big they were and how long they were.

"They talked on the slides," Josh said. "And showed missiles with wings on the slides to make them go off. A man pushed a red button to lift the missile so it stood straight up. Then another man pressed a gold button to make the missile go off."

(How accurate Josh was I couldn't be sure. After all, how much can a seven-year-old kid learn about missiles in one short afternoon?)

JOSH DESCRIBED something that looked like a half-moon with red arrows on it to tell where the people who were attacking were coming from. "Then when the people attack, the Nike base sends airplanes with missiles under their wings just like rockets," Josh explained. "The airplanes came back down — left all their missiles — shot them all at the other planes of the other people who were fighting the Nike base and trying to bomb the whole place. They were trying to bomb the whole Chicago. The Nike base planes knocked down the others guys' planes."

"They sent the rockets. The rockets went real fast. Right through an airplane. Then it went someplace and exploded itself. It don't stay up in the sky and float around."

"A man parachuted out. Then they sent two rockets at a time. More airplanes were coming out of the place — I think it was Russia. Then they wanted to start the war. The Nike base sent up the model of an airplane with two dummies in it. One rocket went off and exploded the plane. This was practice. The college people —"

At this point Josh got down on the floor and showed me how the college people touched their toes to do exercises.

"THEY WERE PRACTICING. Because they weren't strong enough to make army men at the Nike base. They were crawling on the ground. There was this big explosion —"

Here, Josh got pretty excited. "A plane rocket, it hit the water —" Josh made a motion with his hand of a rocket skimming the water — "and it went woosh — the rocket blasted right through the water — the good guys' rocket — it went right up out of the water and it went right through the plane."

"A plane fell into the water. A man came out in a parachute. He was in front of the airplane. Another man was the one to push the button to drive the missile through the hatch."

Josh switched to describing the part of the movie where people were on the street in Chicago. "They were walking. The radar went off. The signal to attack. A little boy was standing, looking at everybody run down into the ground. A man took him by the arm and dragged him with him. He didn't want the little boy to get hurt."

Josh switched again, this time to the airplanes. How one airplane "stuck out his gun — a real sharp thing. Bullets came out and exploded one airplane."

Josh explained how the Nike people had told him "the movie wasn't true but it could happen someday." And that "they said they didn't like to fight unless they had to. And they want to make sure it never happens. But in case you know about an attack, you call the operator at the Nike base so they can get set faster. If you see an enemy plane you have to look carefully. It could be a special Nike plane. It says it on the plane."

JOSH SAID HE asked the lieutenant one question: How many medals did he have? The reply was: "Quite a few."

I asked Josh what impressed him most about the afternoon. "The real guns. They really hurt people. Like the bazooka gun. They had this other gun, they press the trigger, it goes off."

But the thing he really liked the best was "when they sent the rocket and it went woosh and curved and dove into the water and went up and exploded into the airplane. That was the best part."

The anti-sex education people will probably like Josh's reaction to the afternoon. Teaching a seven-year-old kid how to kill is a lot better than teaching him how babies are born.

The Political Beat

70's Era of Revolution?

by CHARLES HUFNAGEL

The decade of the '60's will have to go down in the history books as the beginning of an era of vast and revolutionary changes in American society.

Even more than this it is the period during which began a testing of the time-honored tenets of our society and a questioning of the durability of the democratic political fabric to withstand the onslaughts of what must be called "a new order of life."

That these changes are taking place, of course, cannot be attributed, as many want, to the Vietnam nightmare, although this military adventure became the catalyst that speeded up an embryonic but growing dissent.

WORLD WAR II completed universal political and economic disorganization begun by the first world war. It brought social disorder to the undeveloped "third world" because it broke the chains of colonialism and European and American economic imperialism which had prevailed.

This new ingredient, comprising the major populations and resources of the world which modern technology relies on, upset the calculations of World War II victors, the West and the Soviet group. This aggravates the problem of world stability.

Add to this a "strategy of terror" produced by the nuclear threat our worldwide uneasiness is not hard to understand.

The United States first and then Russia with nuclear development have sought to preserve a semblance of world stability based on a struggle between the two ideologies. In spite of the dangers this has contained the situation in this decade.

NOW AS WE MOVE into the '70's two new threats are growing to further challenge world stability.

The question is to what extent technological knowledge, scientific know-how and resources necessary to produce nuclear weapons can be held in abeyance.

China and France are moving up fast. Since knowledge is transportable and materials purchasable what is to prevent smaller nations from producing such weapons, or even clandestinely buying them.

Deprivation, misery, poverty have stalked the peoples of the "third world" for centuries. Communications and education have awakened this sleeping giant and these peoples are now demanding the fruits of their own rich resources. They are seeking help in using modern technology to produce health, food and a better life.

How can they be denied this? But as sure as night follows day, as the "have-nots" insist on having and start to achieve their aims, the "have nations" are going to have to adjust to a new world situation.

They will be compelled to undergo internal changes. If, as is alleged, the aim is to seek a world where social justice will be available to all peoples and all races wherever they live and military strife has been, worldwide changes in outlook are in order.

IT WOULD APPEAR, and this is being demonstrated on every continent and here in the USA, that the mass populations sense what is happening.

This then is the backdrop against which the problems that we are facing today in our own nation have to be considered and resolved.

The phenomenon which we call dissent is not peculiar to our own country and problems. Dissent is everywhere and it amounts to "man struggling against his fate," a fate he no longer deems inevitable and which he is ready to resist.

But dissent in America has deep roots and legal documentation. Dissent here is rooted in the political philosophy and experience of the founding fathers against repression and arbitrary authority contrary to established law of custom.

This dissent which rejects a "master and slave" society has become the central thread of our national development. Our highest authority, the Supreme Court, has defended it against Congress and presidents over the decades. This represents the court's interpretation of our constitution.

The Fence Post

Can't Bring Em Right Back

It sure would be nice to bring all our boys back from Vietnam tomorrow, just like the bumper sticker says. But that otherwise happy thought contains several flaws:

1) So many of them would get shot in the back as they walked up the gang-plank;
2) Using a practical embarkation rate of 2,000 to 3,000 men per day, six to nine months would elapse before they were all home, even if we started tomorrow;

3) Very shortly after our withdrawal, the whole sorry procedure would start up again. Like Korea, Katanga, Vietnam, and Dominica, conflict would recur at a time and place of the "Liberator's" choosing — not ours.

CLEARLY A strategy must be devised to outflank these "wars of liberation." Perhaps even more effective than a military strategy would be an economic offensive. While the "Liberator" has geared his production toward armaments, we would hit him where it hurts him most — in his economic machinery for supplying consumer goods to his own people. This offensive would have three thrusts:

1) Stop trading with the "liberator" and his Marxist allies;
2) Halt foreign aid to our "friends" supplying the Marxist powers;
3) Close the Panama canal to ships supplying the Marxist powers.

Properly handled, such a strategem would soon produce the most genuine liberation in recent history — the resurrection of one billion captives within the Bolshevik empire. Our very clear alternative right now is either some variant of the above plan, or continued Vietnams thruout the globe.

Coming: Super-ships That Sail on the Air

by M. GENE MEARNS

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—In the 1960s the United States maritime industry may be building and using revolutionary air cushion cargo ships, possibly nuclear powered, to cross the Atlantic Ocean in 24 hours.

They will be 100 m.p.h. highly-automated, shallow draft, container ships linked with land transport through terminals that do not necessarily have to be located in traditional deep-water port cities.

A hybrid of a boat and a plane, the Surface Effect Ship (SES) is expected to have as much, or more, impact on ocean commerce in the future as the Supersonic Transport (SST) and the jumbo jets of the 1970s will have on air travel.

The Army and the Navy are using small air cushion boats in Vietnam's Mekong Delta, and they are also in service as ferries on the English Channel and elsewhere.

As the developers envision them, the huge surface effect ship of the 1980s will literally ride on a bubble of air. Lift fans force air down beneath the craft's hull where it is held by catamaran-like side hulls plus bow and stern seals of flexible rubberized material similar to that used by Britain's air-cushion vessel, the Princess Margaret.

The Princess Margaret, a 130 foot, mile-a-minute English Channel ferry, carries 254 passengers and 30 cars on her 40-minute crossings between Dover and Boulogne-sur-Mer, France. She and several dozen other versions have been built by British Hovercraft Corporation, Ltd. on the Isle of Wight.

This January the U.S. Joint Surface Effect Ships Program Office (JSEPO) awarded contracts to Textron's Bell Aerosystems Company and to Aerojet General to build 100 ton, 90 m.p.h. SES test craft. Aerojet is working in California and Bell Aerosystems has opened an operation in New Orleans.

The Bell SES test craft will be 72 feet long, 33 feet wide and 25 feet high, powered by gas turbine engines designed for marine use. The Aerojet design calls for forward propulsion by water jets, while Bell will use propellers.

The technology learned from three years of development and testing of the 100-ton test craft will be used to complete an 800 ton SES by the mid-1970s. If all goes well, the first generation of 4,000 to 5,000 ton, 90 m.p.h. SES cargo ships will be built in the 1980s. After that, larger and faster civilian and military ships will be built.

Bell attaches such significance to the SES test project that it assigned former Bell chief scientist William M. Smith as vice-president in charge of its 150-man New Orleans surface effect ship division. Smith was chief rockets installation engineer in the development of the Bell X-1 rocket research aircraft, in 1947, the first aircraft to fly faster than the speed of sound. He said:

"The stability and controllability of the SES craft must be tested. It is like the X-1. We didn't know precisely what would happen with the rocket plane until we took it through the sound barrier. We don't know what the SES will do until we take it out in Lake Pontchartrain and the Gulf of Mexico.

"But based on our best knowledge, backed up by model testing, we believed we have a craft that will meet all objectives. Our purpose now is to find out how it really works. As far as we know there are no major unanswered questions."

Marvin Pitkin, program manager of JSEPO, recently was in New Orleans to inspect the design plans of the Bell 100-ton SES test craft. Asked about the cost of building and operating SES vessels, Pitkin stressed the SES is a hybrid of an aircraft and a ship, adding: "The construction and operating costs of the SES will fall below those of an airplane but will be more than a ship."

Is there an upper limit to SES size and speed? Could an SES vessel the size of an aircraft carrier be built? "Yes," Smith said. "The bigger they are the better. And the ultimate power source for the SES is nuclear energy."

Love Has No Place in the Red Army

by EDWARD J. SHIELDS

MOSCOW (UPI)—Cupid's arrows are out of place in the Russian army. The Soviet soldier is not altar fodder, claim senior officers.

When a draftee takes the oath, the girl he left behind him should stay behind him, add Lt. Col. B. Bryukhanov and Maj. V. Shvchenko.

Young Soviet males now have to serve only two years in the army after the age of 18, instead of the previous three years. But the shorter term only seems to have increased the number of marriages, the officers said.

The Soviet military establishment's dim view of hurried marriages before the draftee begins basic training were published in the army newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star).

The officers quoted in the article were quick to add they weren't against the revered state of matrimony, however, just for postponement.

"Sometimes early marriages are even stronger and more likely to last a lifetime than those contracted when the couple are more mature," they admitted, "but there cannot be two opinions about the early marriages of soldiers serving only a two-year term of service."

In fact, they said, "such marriages are really fictitious since the husband lives in barracks and the wife is usually in a distant town."

"The first years of marriage are when the partners get to know and understand each other. But how can a soldier know anything about his wife when at the very best he can see her only once a week?"

Under the rigorous Soviet system of compulsory military service, draftees are allowed off base for only a few hours a week. They are generally stationed hundreds of miles from their home districts, and draftees wives have no standing in the army establishment.

The army will not provide housing for them, and it is difficult, if not impossible, for them to find housing near the camps where their husbands are serving.

Maj. V. Roy and Maj. A. Parnuke said a draftee named Anatoli insisted on marriage despite their discouragement. They finally provided the necessary approval, "but only two months after the wedding and she returned home, we noticed Anatoli was in a bad mood and his studies were falling off."

It was the old story, familiar to all commanding officers:

"Friends" at home had written Anatoli his Nina was going to parties and enjoying herself like a single girl, Anatoli's mother complained her daughter-in-law "does not behave like a married woman."

"We tried to counsel Anatoli that his friends could be wrong and his mother could be jealous," the two officers said, "but Anatoli sadly admitted he should have followed our advice and not rushed into marriage."

In their case against Cupid in the Red Star, the officers insisted "if these were rare instances, there would be no need to report, but unfortunately they are frequent."

Col. Bryukhanov told draftee readers, "True love can pass the test of time, and two years is not so long. There is no need to bind this feeling in the chains of a marriage certificate."

If, of course, there's a baby on the way, he said, the marriage should be solemnized and the draftee's commanding officer would do everything possible to help.

In Soviet conditions of service, such help would not be a great deal, the Soviet magazine "Woman Worker" has noted.

Soviet conscripts receive only about a dollar a week pocket money, for toothpaste, cigarettes and the like. Not only do they get no pay, there is also no allowance for wives.

However, the local councils where the wife is living must help her find a job within a month of application, if she wants to work.

If there is a baby, there is a little more assistance. Not only must a place be found for the child in a state nursery if the mother is given a job, but it will receive a monthly "baby bonus."

As Lt. Col. Bryukhanov and Maj. Shvchenko wrote, "Marriage is a very complicated and subtle affair. Somehow we must persuade a soldier to tell his girl: If you believe in me, if you love me, and your love is true—wait."

A Fire Impresario

by PAUL ROBBINS

BOSTON (UPI)—Music has been "only" a career for Arthur Fiedler; chasing fires has been an obsession.

Now, as the snow-manned and mustachioed conductor of the Boston Pops moves toward his 75th birthday in December, he admits following fire trucks may play second fiddle to music in life.

"I still go out after a fire when I can," he said, looking up from his desk at the offices of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, parent organization of the famed Pops, which Fiedler has directed for nearly 40 years.

"I don't give up my work for it any more, but it's very relaxing for me. If I can get a ride out with a cruiser car now, I like to go."

Behind him perched a model fire truck; pictures of him trying on an honorary fire chief's helmet hang throughout the symphony headquarters; some two dozen honorary chief's hats are piled atop a wooden storage closet in the maestro's office; several other chief's helmets are on the opposite side of the third floor office.

He stood up and pointed to the doorway and said, "I'm going to have a shelf put over the door, I think I'll bring in some more hats and put them up there."

If someone somewhere is keeping track, Fiedler must rank as the world's "visiting fire chief." He holds honorary chief's badges, cards and or helmets from more than 200 departments around the globe, he said.

In his definitive biography of Fiedler, Robin Moore—who shifted gears nicely from his book The Green Berets and turned out a nifty life story of the maestro—tells of a 1953 tour in which Fiedler returned to Boston with honorary chief credentials from 40 of 61 cities visited.

"We lived near a firehouse when I was young and I guess that's what started me off," Fiedler said.

He declined to list one favorite department, but it's no secret he holds a special emotional soft spot for the Boston and San Francisco fire departments.

His Boston attachment is a natural—not only was he born in this history-drenched city but he's been with the Boston Symphony Orchestra for nearly 55 years, joining as a violinist in 1915 after returning from Berlin as World War I erupted while he was in the German Royal Academy of Music. He's also been Pops' conductor since 1930—the versatile musical group's 18th leader and its first to be Boston-born.

In addition, Fiedler has directed the San Francisco Pops in the annual summer arts festival for nearly two decades. "I love San Francisco; it's a great, great city," he said enthusiastically.

Chasing fires wasn't the only excitement Fiedler found between his musical chores. For instance, more than once he rode with San Francisco detectives as they made their rounds from late at night to the early morning.

And, not only has he rounded up an impressive collection of fire chief helmets, but Fiedler has collected a variety of other honorary titles.

In addition to being only the second honorary fire chief in San Francisco, he carried an honorary ferry boat captain's card and an honorary cable car conductor's license.

He's been named an honorary Kentucky Colonel twice and was commissioned a colonel in the Confederate Air Force during special ceremonies at Vicksburg, Miss. He was paid 10 confederate $1,000 bills and given the mission to "light 10 multiple-alarm fires, all north of the Mason-Dixon line."

In Junior Year

Cadet John R. Ekeberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. George O. Ekeberg of 128 S. Benton, is among the 740 cadets who have entered their junior year at the U. S. Air Force Academy.

Cadet Ekeberg will serve during the fall term as an element sergeant with the rank of cadet technical sergeant. He was selected for the position because of his demonstrated leadership abilities and effectiveness ratings.

During the past summer, Cadet Ekeberg completed special training at the Academy in procedures and techniques used by military jumpmasters. He then served as a jumpmaster instructor during a three-basic military parachuting course for cadets. The cadet helped brief students and supervised them in related ground and airborne activities.

The cadet, who is a member of the parachute team, will be commissioned a second lieutenant and awarded a B.S. degree upon graduation from the Academy.

He is a 1967 graduate of Palatine High School.

Mellotones Tune For Knighttimes

by DAVE PALERMO

Some of them giggled during practice, most of them were very good-looking and all of them were talented singers.

Twice a week, on Mondays and Wednesdays, the 13 Prospect High School girls who make up the Mellotones gather around a piano in the band room and sing. And they do it well.

For the last few practice sessions, they've been rehearsing the song they will sing for the Knighttimes Queen coronation ceremony Friday at the Mount Prospect Fieldhouse. The coronation is part of the homecoming festivities.

THE SONG IS DONE to the rhythm of "A Time for Us" from the movie, "Romeo and Juliet." However, the lyrics are rearranged to fit the occasion.

It was the lyrics, among other things that go through a high school female's mind, that accounted for the occasional giggling that took place during the practice session last Monday.

But when they began singing, they became serious and it sounded like it.

The Mellotones aren't new to Prospect High School or the community. They've been singing throughout the area for 12 years, the last two years under the direction of advisor-director Ken Williams, who also teaches music at the high school.

"This is the popular music group at Prospect High School," Williams said.

"They sing mostly popular music; music people like to hear."

THE PRACTICES are very informal and last only half an hour. The girls line up around a piano and under the supervision of Williams, go over the song a few times, exchanging ideas and revisions as they progress.

Only junior and senior girls are eligible to join the group. Hopefuls are required to be planning to enroll in a music group the following year, be able to sing a prepared number, to sight-read music and to sing in a group.

A total of 13 girls are selected each year by Williams during spring tryouts.

CALLED A "public relations" group by Williams, the Mellotones perform at 20 to 25 events yearly in and around Mount Prospect.

Included in this year's schedule is an appearance at Busse School sometime in December, the annual Christmas Pageant at Randhurst, the Mount Prospect Christmas Concert Dec. 15 and a performance at Great Lakes Naval Hospital.

Pianist for the group is Pat Pohl. First sopranos are Billie Rodely, Sue Evans, Alice Spahr and Danice Fly. Second Sopranos are Vickie Bernin, Barb Poul, Barb Tomanek and Pat Barber. Altos are Sharon Lett, Laura Draeger, Peg Watson and Nancy Wilnor.

THE MELLOTONES, a 13-member Prospect High School girls' singing group, perform about 25 times a year. Practicing their harmony for popular songs mostly, are Barb Tomanek, Peg Watson and Nancy Milnor, all juniors this year at Prospect.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.
The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.
The evening star is Mars.
On this day in history:
In 1777 British General Burgoyne surrendered his forces to the Americans at Saratoga, N.Y., in one of the turning points of the Revolutionary War.
In 1931 bootlegger and racketeer Al Capone was convicted of income tax evasion by a federal court in Chicago and sentenced to 11 years in prison.
In 1933 Albert Einstein arrived in the United States, a refugee from Nazi Germany. The famed scientist later became a citizen of the United States.
In 1945, Juan Peron staged a coup and took over the government of Argentina. He was dictator of the South American country for 10 years.

A thought for the day: Albert Einstein said, "As long as there are sovereign nations possessing great power, war is inevitable."

Sew Me, Sew Me The Prettiest Of Lingerie

by MARIANNE SCOTT

Women's Editor

Would you believe — a beautifully-made nightie and matching peignoir, both lavishly trimmed with lace, for only $6? And a matching half slip and panties for an additional $1?

Until recently, the creation of "unmentionables" was an unmentionable subject among home seamstresses; it was the private and exclusive domain of the lingerie manufacturers.

Now, these snug manufacturers may lose some of their snugness, for home seamstresses are making their own "snuggles." The girls have invaded this once special field and are whipping up lovely and glamorous articles of underclothing for a fraction the cost of ready-mades, and one iota the cost of what prestige shops call "better lingerie."

WHATEVER THE past problems in stitching up lingerie at home, they all are being eliminated today. The materials, mostly nylon tricot, are becoming available in fabric shops, patterns are offered by the pattern companies and tricks of the trade are being revealed at lingerie sewing classes all over the country.

In this area, classes are being taught in adult education evening classes at Elk Grove, Hershey, Fenton and Prospect High Schools; also at Maine East and New Trier. They are being taught at Northwest Suburban YMCA in Des Plaines, in the homes of home economic teachers in Arlington Heights and Des Plaines, in the Community House at the Meadows Trace apartment complex in Rolling Meadows and at a new shop in Des Plaines that sells all the "makings" for any type of underclothing.

Although sewing lingerie is not regarded as difficult (even a beginning seamstress can turn out beautiful garments), a series of lessons is recommended by the area teachers. In the classes they give help galore, offer suggestions and every assistance to their pupils. They also have available 35 basic patterns for tracing.

CLASSES CONSIST of lecture-discussions and a critique of each student's work completed at home the previous week; no sewing is done in class.

Sewing hints include such tips as using fine, ball-tipped machine needles that won't fray the materials, the use of soft nylon instead of mercerized, polyester or bonded threads.

Helpful gadgets are a loop turner for easy turning of those dainty spaghetti straps, beeswax to keep thread from tangling or knotting during hand sewing, a really sharp scissors and ball-headed pins to prevent snagging.

Any of six types of seams can be used; a double row of straight stitching; French seaming; a quick seam or blind hem; close zig zag; a combination of straight and zig zag; and the stretch stitch. The latter is used primarily for advanced work and can be done on many of the newer machines.

TEN TO 12 STITCHES per inch are recommended; also lessening tensions to reduce pulling and puckering. Materials should be pulled from the front, never the back of the pressure foot.

One's imagination and creativity can run the gamut when it comes to trimmings — old and new laces, ribbons, feathers, embroidery, anything that appeals to one's fancy.

First garment sewn during the 10-week course (seven, at the "Y") is a half slip, which is followed by pantie briefs with a double crotch ingeniously enclosed so that no seams are exposed. (Even the "better lingerie" manufacturers can't do this.)

Chemises, night gowns, full slips, petti-pants, peignoirs, lounging ensembles with matching slippers, back panel panties (popular with teenagers), and training panties for toddlers are also included in the course. In the advanced courses, slated for November, students will learn girdle and bra making as well as the sewing of bathing suits.

ONCE A SEAMSTRESS has mastered sewing on lingerie knits, it's only a small step to create polo shirts, turtle necks, golf shirts and other sweater knits for the entire family. On double-knit wools, McCall Pattern Co. recommends mercerized thread and the stabilizing of seams with pre-shrunk seam tapes to prevent stretching. Reinforcements and facings also are recommended.

Sewing lingerie, the latest craze among home seamstresses, originated in Minneapolis and came to Chicago a little more than two years ago. As women realized it was possible and even easy to create their own lingerie, the craze has now spread to New York City and Los Angeles, and points in between.

Bringing lingerie lore to the Chicago area in 1967 was Mrs. Gary Zachman, a former resident of Minneapolis, now residing in Mount Prospect. Twenty lingerie teachers in the area have completed Mrs. Zachman's course.

An enterprising young mother and talented seamstress, she has opened her own shop, "Linda Z's Lingerie Sewing Center." The Des Plaines shop is exclusive, stocking only lingerie fabrics, elastics, trims, needles and other gadgets and equipment useful in sewing lingerie. Fabrics also are available at The Fabric World in Rolling Meadows, and other fabric shops are expected to stock materials in the future.

Lucky the friends and family of area women learning the lingerie "trade." It's only 69 days 'til Christmas!

THE PRETTIEST AND finest of lingerie is now being whipped up at home. Teacher Donna Lucas of Mount Prospect brought her sewing machine to class to demonstrate just how easy it is to create lovely "undies." Mrs. Henry Wierenga, standing, is one of the interested students learning the know-how of creating beautiful lingerie.

Inflation Can Be Stopped

by PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jim and his wife Sue are the main characters—er, victims—in a story called "Inflation Can Be Stopped."

Like you and your mate, they work hard and even save a little. Distressed, too, like the rest of us, when discovering their rainy day nest-egg feathered with shrinking bucks.

During the course of the story, prepared by the Joint Council on Economic Education, Jim and Sue are told what they might do to help keep dollars from shrinking.

Economists explaining these things between the covers of the booklet reassure the couple about a fact that's probably occurred to you:

UNLESS INFLATION soon gets halted in its tracks, dollars put into that nest-egg today will wither to half their value in 25 years.

The way to get a stranglehold on inflation, Jim and Sue are told, is to help achieve a balanced economy. They, and you, can assist by doing the following:

—Understand what economic stability is and what achieves it.

—Elect and support representatives who consistently work towards needed national measures to gain high employment, reasonable price stability and growth.

—Insist on efficiency in federal, state and local governments.

The modus operandi for these steps is in the booklet.

The joint council is an independent, non-profit, nonpartisan, educational organization incorporated in 1949 to raise the literacy level in economics among adults and students, grade school to college.

SINCE 1949, the council has been trying to do this through help from a brain trust of economists from government, industry, schools.

Groups it is affiliated with include the American Association of School Administrators and the National Business Education Council. Among cooperating agencies are the American Farm Bureau, the Brookings Institute, the American Iron and Steel Institute, the National Industrial Conference Board, the National Farmers Union and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

The booklet is free and available from Inflation Can Be Stopped, P.O. Box 1900, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Meadows Juniors Mark 15th Year

Mrs. Walter Sergot, president of the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club, presented special recognitions to three members at the Oct. 13 meeting in honor of the club's 15th anniversary. Mrs. Erwin Godawa, Mrs. Gordon Black, and Mrs. Edward Banskfield received certificates, recognizing their long-standing membership. Their membership exceeds 10 years service with the Rolling Meadows Juniors.

Visiting guests attending the October meeting were Mrs. Daniel Walner, northern regional director, Mrs. Benjamin Adamowski, 7th district president, and Mrs.

Roy Sove, 7th District Junior director. Each addressed the membership, congratulating the club's 15 years. Mrs. Walner, one of the first Rolling Meadows Juniors, reminisced through the past years, and expressed how the club enthusiasm and spark is the key to the club's successful 15 years.

THE CLUB'S SERVICE will extend this year, for a Teen Forum, a project brought forth at the meeting, passing with unanimous agreement. The project is with the assistance of Miss Connell, librarian, and the Rolling Meadows Library.

Teens will be invited to attend open forums, discussing their own interests. Mrs. Al Bianchini, chairman for the Teen Forum, states that with the approval of club membership, the project will begin "as soon as possible."

On display during the meeting was the art work of Keith Peterson. Keith was sponsored by the Juniors during the summer to attend the August session of the Robert Allerton Art Institute (Allerton, sponsored by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs) where he received two awards. Selections chosen for display were Keith's portraits of famous presidents.

Top Award Goes to Secretaries

Park-Plaines Chapter of The National Secretaries Association (International) has been presented with the top all-around NSA award for Excellence in Educational Programming, 1968-1969. The announcement was made by Miss Olive Schumacher, chapter president, who is secretary to J. F. Flynn, Chicago District Manager of CIBA Pharmaceutical Company, Niles.

Mrs. Lenore S. Forti, CPS, immediate past international president of NSA, transmitted the award to the chapter, stating: "It gives me great pleasure in informing you that your educational programming over the past year has earned for you the Chapter Professional Development Award."

"It is with your kind of support that NSA will continue to enhance its reputation as the world's leading secretarial association."

MISS SCHUMACHER said that the certificate will be framed and kept as a permanent part of the chapter's archives. "It is our goal, however," she stated, "to earn a companion certificate for 1969-1970. This meritorious award was earned by the active participation of each and every one of our 47 members as the award may be acquired only on a point system based on total member participation."

"This is the only NSA award that encompasses an overall view of all chapter activities geared toward maintaining and improving secretarial excellence of performance by means of continuing education. The chapter is determined not to rest on its laurels and we have already planned activities for the coming year."

The Potting Shed

by MARY B. GOOD
New program chairmen sometimes get nervous trying to figure out what kind of speakers, films and lectures to offer their garden club membership. There's no excuse for a dull evening when all you have to do is use your head.

Garden clubbers rally to programs on mushrooms, cactus, nuts; birds; exotic flowers; edible roots, leaves and stems; bonsai; roadside weeds; how to dry flowers; species specials; falls leaves; cacti; terrariums; wildflowers; patios, decking and fencing; water gardens; terracing; the fruiting garden; hydroponics; organic gardening; landscaping Victorian; western, Japanese or mod; garden art; weather, clouds and the elements of growing; herbs; what's "in" and what's "out."

THE GARDEN CLUB of Illinois Information center at Sears, 296-2211, also assists in finding speakers for member garden clubs. We've heard they have some excellent programs on butterflies, flower arranging and interior decorating, and more. So throw out those 20-year-old program ideas like "the garden calendar" growing from January to December, "how to grow roses," "weed and feed your lawn," "basics of flower arranging" and get with it. Most of your members already know the nitty-gritty or they wouldn't be garden club members to begin with.

Incidentally, when you're getting a speaker, program chairman, be sure you've seen him "do his thing" before you foist him on the group. If he's a poor lecturer, the membership will hold you responsible. It never fails.

Moms of St. Viator Alumni To Organize

Mothers of graduates of St. Viator High School are invited to a tea in the Red Lion Room of the school, 1213 E. Oakton, Arlington Heights, at 1 p.m. Wednesday. Purpose of the event is to form an organization called "Mothers of St. Viator Alumni."

According to Mrs. Richard O'Connell, a former president of the Mothers Club, this group is being formed to maintain the many friendships made during the years their sons were at St. Viator and also to maintain an interest in and assist the school in whatever way they can.

Cards and conversation will follow the meeting. Further information can be obtained from Mrs. George Dutre, 392-3906, or Mrs. O'Connell, 259-0209.

Agricultural Research Service scientists have discovered that aster yellows plant disease, which attacks tomatoes, potatoes, carrots, celery and onions, and causes severe stunting, yellowing, flower sterility and even death, can be cured by the same antibiotic drugs used to treat pneumonia in human beings.

IF PRUNING TREES is your undoing, if you're stymied as to spraying or getting that fertilizer to the taproots, the Maine Adult Evening School is sponsoring a one-shot education session tomorrow (Saturday) at 9 a.m.

Hedging and flowering shrubs, ornamentals, shade trees and evergreens will come under the umbrella of home maintenance. The workshop will be held on the grounds of the Charles Klehm and Son Nursery, Algonquin and Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights. Late registration may be taken tomorrow morning at the nursery gates. Further information is available from Maine adult education, 299-7187.

If you're going nutting, a great tip from Dr. Charles Ackerman of the Gartfield Park Conservatory: Avoid gathering the pecans, oaks, hickories or walnuts snubbed by the squirrels. The pros know which are viable. Better yet if you can find the squirrel's private cache. Even then the chances of viable nuts are only three out of seven.

REMOVE THE protective outer layer if it has not come free in falling off the tree. Leave the hard shell intact and plant the seed where you want it to grow, because of the taproot involved. Measure the diameter of the nut and plant it so the top of the nut is the same depth below the surface of the soil. If you're in a hurry, plant four nuts per two pound coffee tin in a mixture of one part peat moss and one part garden soil. Transplant outdoors in spring.

Look for night light as a possible culprit, if your chrysanthemums did not set buds. Mums are sensitive to yard lights, street lights, neon or nearby window lights. Avoid planting mums where they will receive night light.

Kid's Korner STRING BALL

by Marilyn Hallman

This active, outdoor game may be played by two or more players. Tie a string about waist high between two trees. The two players (or teams) face each other, with the string between them. One player throws a ball in a high arc over the string. If a player on the other side catches it before it touches the ground, his side scores one point.

Players continue to toss the ball back and forth over the string until one side wins the game with 10 points.

Dave Lockwood Takes Bride

After their Sept. 5 wedding in Prairie Village, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. David Lynn Lockwood honeymooned over a long weekend at Tan-Tar-A, Lake of the Ozarks before returning to Kansas where the groom is in his junior year at the University of Kansas in Lawrence.

Son of the junior E. C. Lockwoods, 261 W. Orchard, Arlington Heights, Dave is a graduate of Arlington High School. At the university, where he is a member of Delta Upsilon Fraternity, he is studying business economics.

Until her marriage, the bride, too, was a student at the university where she majored in primary education. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Stephens of Prairie Village, the new Mrs. Lockwood is the former Vee Ann Stephens, now employed in the personnel office at the college.

THE YOUNG COUPLE'S wedding took place at 8 p.m. in the chapel of the Village Presbyterian Church in Prairie Village. Williamsburg arrangements filled the altar vases for the candlelight service which was performed by Dr. Robert Menelly. Mr. Stephens gave his daughter in marriage.

Vee Ann's gown was of ivory silk petit point with an overlay of re-embroidered alencoon lace on the empire bodice and the belled sleeves. Matching motifs highlighted the A-line skirt which ended in a chapel train. A Dior bow held her veil, and she carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and stephanotis, accented with gypsophila.

A Gamma Phi Beta sorority sister of the bride, Pam Kulp of Prairie Village, served as maid of honor for the double ring service. Pam's empire gown was of pink chiffon with bracelet sleeves and A-line skirt, and her flowers were a nose-gay of pink roses and gypsophila.

CANDLELIGHTERS WERE the bride's sister, Tammy Stephens, and Lori Jensen of Prairie Village.

The groom was attended by his brother, Ernest C. Lockwood III of Arlington Heights, as best man. His fraternity brothers, Stewart Etherington of Salina, Kan., and Rick Hiesch of Wichita, Kan., served as ushers.

Immediately following the service, a reception for the 140 guests was held in the church's Fellowship Hall.

New address for the newlyweds is 2333 Ridge Court, Apartment 18, Lawrence, Kan.

Witty Quips Enrich Play

by GENIE CAMPBELL

It was a murky, stormy night last Friday, and the sound of rain lashing the roof of Dempster Junior High School only added fervor to the bewitching occurrences transpiring within, during the performance of "Any Number Can Die" by Elk Grove Masque and Staff.

The play, a satire of the late twenties murder mysteries, improved immensely as scenes unfolded, following an unimpressive opening. A number of old clichés and "cornball" jokes often hid unfortunate mediocre acting.

Yet, the audience remained interested and amused and occasionally the dark sinister setting even caused a few women with weak stomachs to emit screams of fright.

The play begins with a prologue where Chuck and Judy, two very minor roles played by Bob and Sharon Farber, visit a mysterious and forbidding old mansion on Raven's Head, an island off the Carolina Coast.

CHUCK BEGINS RECALLING for Judy the newspaper accounts of the early history of the mansion, the death of the aged owner of the house, the guests arriving for the reading of his will, and the series of macabre murders that follow. The action then reverts to a flashback of earlier days, where the story is continued for the balance of the play.

The stage setting and costuming were excellent. The appropriate weather outside, the clock striking 13, the numerous sliding panels and small props and the dark shadowy figure blanketed the play in an aura of reality.

The flapper evening gowns, the men's spats, double-breasted suits, derbys and capes, were straight out of the Twenties and complemented the stage setting.

Star of the entire cast was Bob Johnson, who gave a supreme performance as Hannibal Hix, a file clerk turned detective.

Johnson's absent-minded expressions, actions and timely humorous lines completely captivated the audience and became the central core around which the other actors revolved.

ALSO QUITE GOOD in her performance as a "sweet little old lady" was Lois McKelevy, who played the role of Hannibal's fellow murder sleuth, Ernestine Wintergreen. Together the two self-appointed investigators formed a riotous comedy team.

The young attractive heiress, Sally Van Viller, was played by Sharon Peterson who completely over-dramatized her role of Miss Goody-Two-Shoes. Her sugar sweetness oozed in such quantities that at times it became too much for the audience to swallow.

Nondescript is the only word that can be used to rate the performances of Jerry Burkhalter who played Yale graduate Carter Forsman, and the illustrious newspaper reporter, Jack Regent, played by Jim Grainger. However, a cleverly written script filled with humorous quips managed to make up for their obvious lack of feeling.

RECEIVING A LAUGH everytime he appeared on stage and looking just ghastly with his pale complexion and long Frankenstein scar across his left cheek, Dick Hazlett accurately portrayed Edgars, the zombie butler. His shuffling walk and slow retarded speech added a genuine spark to the play.

Playing the spooky native Xenia, supposedly Edgar's wife, was Loretta Tomassell. Xenia continually smelled evil in the air and predicted the night would end in murder.

The money-hungry cousin Celia Cathrop was accurately portrayed by Marge Dyker. Never thinking of anyone but herself, Celia is the epitome of the true battle.

axe arrogant wife. With an insipid tongue and set jaw, Marge played her part well.

The dominated resigned husband, T. J. Lathrop, was played by Cris Trafford, who very meekly endured his wife's curses and unsuccessfully tried to humor her. His crowning line was, "Oh Celia, don't be a wet smack."

THE GREY-HAIRED lawyer, Roger Masters, who was responsible for reading the will at the stroke of midnight was played by Art Hassel. His speeches during the first act were often spoiled by the irritating monologue quality of his voice. Hassel's best performance was his death scene, when he didn't have to open his mouth.

Even with spots of poor acting, "Any Number Can Die," directed by Shirley Johnson, was amusing and enjoyable. Yet, with additional feeling displayed by the actors themselves, the play could be a genuine success.

There are three remaining performances this weekend of "Any Number Can Die" at Dempster Junior High School on Dempster Street, west of Route 83.

Featured Artist At Art Corner

Featured artist for October at the Art Corner in Des Plaines National Bank is Gail Stahnke of Glenview.

Gail, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. William Stahnke, former residents of Plum Grove Woodlands, is a 1965 graduate of Palatine High School.

Art was one of her major subjects in high school, and a few classes at the Art Institute in Chicago supplemented her training. She has since graduated from the American Academy of Art in Chicago, and has worked as a commercial artist for a year. She spent the past summer touring Europe.

Several of the watercolors in her Art Corner showing are scenes inspired by her sightings in Switzerland, and one of her oils, "Autumn Still Life," was a first prize winner at the 1968 outdoor art fair in Des Plaines.

They Think Before Buying

Youths from 9 to 19 enrolled in the national 4-H Home Management program practice comparative shopping and budgeting money as they learn the organization motto: "Learn by Doing."

More than 128,000 girls are involved in the national program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and sponsored by Tupperware.

A few of the lessons 4-H members learn in home management courses are to analyze income and plan purchases, compare brands, guarantees and buying incentives, know when to pay with cash or credit and evaluate purchases to determine if the money spent was invested well.

TO EVALUATE PRODUCTS for cost and quality, 4-H members conduct their own in-store research. The girls learn through trial and error, and each buying mistake teaches a new lesson.

"Think before you buy," instructors tell the youths. "If you plan to purchase a dress, check your wardrobe, your expenses and the quality of the garments you hope to purchase.

"Check the various products in the stores for price and quality so that some day you'll be able to purchase the best goods for the least cost. Learn to budget your money and your time according to individual needs."

These lessons are taught through advice and practice.

The experiences they have, many girls have said, have influenced them throughout their lives.

"THEIR MONEY REALLY doesn't go as far as they thought it would. This is one of the most important lessons the girls learn," Mrs. Jean Rushton, associate extension advisor, said.

Besides this the primary lesson, the girls learn to think through each home management and shopping situation.

"Evaluate the product and yourself before you make a purchase," they are told.

Scratches, Burns Win Picnic Game

Baseball highlighted the annual 4-H picnic, as the Scratches and Burns team topped the Palatine 4-H Club 19-13.

The victory was led by hurler Sandi La Mountain of the Scratches and Burns squad.

The picnic was a family affair that included a candy hunt for preschoolers, a sack race for grade schoolers, a water balloon race for high schoolers and for adults an egg-toss relay.

Two hundred club members attended the affair, held in Grove Forest Preserve in Palatine.

Learn Business

In an attempt to combine business interests with civic responsibility, 12 Northwest suburban companies are sponsoring the first Junior Achievement program in the area.

The idea evolved from Western Electric Co. efforts to develop two Junior Achievement "mini companies" in the Rolling Meadows area.

According to Western Electric representative Bob Brader, more than 80 youths from Fremd and Forest View high schools responded with interest to the idea of Junior Achievement.

ONE YOUTH SET UP a company that produced antique wall plaques while another began a progressive novelty shop.

Brady said the idea of the project is to give the youths an overview of the frustrations and problems involved in managing a business.

Under the direction of businessmen, youths learn how to form a company, how to raise necessary capital and how to acquire a charter and they decide on what will be manufactured.

Twelve major corporations will provide adult leadership for more than 300 teenage businessmen and women in the area. In the future, they hope to form 15 mini-companies in a business center in Des Plaines.

Murnane Is Selected

Ed Murnane, Paddock Publications city editor, will be a delegate at the Illinois State Jaycees model constitutional convention Nov. 21-23 in Springfield.

Murnane, a member of the Palatine Jaycees, is one of 21 delegates selected from the Jaycees' North Region last weekend.

There will be 116 delegates, the same number as will convene for the state's Constitutional Convention Dec. 16. Delegates representing each of nine Jaycee regions in the state will participate in the model Con-Con.

Their goal will be to write a model constitution that is representative of Jaycee thinking. The model will be presented to the Constitutional Convention.

Murnane has directed Paddock Publications coverage of Con-Con and has attended numerous candidates nights and Con-Con forums relating to issues and problems which will face the convention delegates when they attempt to re-write the state's 99-year-old Constitution.

Powerful Redskins Ride into Roselle

Kurth Comments

by PHIL KURTH

The tears have dried, and it's time to bid a final, bitter adieu to the Chicago Cubs of 1969.

First, it might interest the members of that almost-glorious group to know that their warm, appreciative, apologetic "open letter" to Cub fans was received with all the honest humility and sincerity with which it was written. I laughed.

We Cub fans may not be too bright, and we may be kind of irrational and emotional sometimes, but we are city folk and we ain't never been gullible enough to swallow something like that.

Now I can accept the part where "they" (I don't know who wrote or signed it since its authorship was attributed only to "The Members of the Chicago Cubs") thank us for our loyal support — after all, that put money in their pockets. And I can even believe that maybe they did feel worse about their failure than we did, as they claim — obviously this hurt them in the bank account and us only in the heart.

But when they come on with this impassioned bit about how much they wanted to win the pennant FOR US, well, the whole thing stops being serious. And it's kind of a cruel joke, because there are some young, impressionable, naive Cub fans who just might believe them.

After the Cub collapse was complete, Ferguson Jenkins nobly accepted part of the blame and then went on to say that the team had given a 100 per cent effort during their disastrous slump.

"We played hard because of what was at stake. We tried everything to psyche ourselves up. Billy Williams once wrote '$18,000' all over the mirrors in the clubhouse. We were after that prize. We didn't want somebody to take it away from us after we got close."

Look carefully at that statement now. Examine it. Turn it over.

See anything about wanting to be the best? Or about pride in being a Chicago Cub? Or about the fans they felt so close to? Anything at all about feeling a pang for the multitude of broken-hearted fans?

All I can see is a preoccupation with the buck. Throughout the season the team raked in thousands upon thousands of dollars with commercials and commercial ventures of one sort or another. And when their big money machine started to crumple, how did they try to fire themselves up? By writing $18,000 all over the mirrors in the clubhouse. If it wasn't so depressing, it might be funny.

And even if I have to live with the cold, hard facts of life — namely, that ball players are no more than businessmen, out to make as much money as they can, any way they can — I don't have to take some corny, hypocritical trash about what fondness and affection they feel for us, the fans, and how sorry they were about letting us down.

LEO DUROCHER is a man who thousands worship and as many hate. Some say the Cubs wouldn't have been a contender without him. Others claim he cost them the pennant.

Well, I personally don't much care why he went to Camp Okeetee or wherever it was, and I really don't think that had much to do with the Cubs' demise.

But I do have my doubts about Leo's managerial ability for three reasons — Don Young, Don Nottebart, and Rich Nye. If someone could explain why these three guys were on the Cub roster for the entire 1969 season, I think I might be able to sleep better nights.

Now I realize Young made some contributions to the team during the first month of the season. And I can believe that he is a very intense, dedicated athlete. But sometimes desire isn't enough to overcome a lack of ability.

Don has average speed, at best. He has a weak throwing arm, no bat, and no glove. Now what other guy do you know in the major leagues with these qualifications? And Leo not only kept him on the roster, but played him almost every day.

Nottebart, of course, was used so sparingly that he couldn't do much damage. And he never did any good.

Nye's only claim to fame was that, in a year where the mound was lowered and the strike zone reduced to stimulate run production, he carried on a personal campaign to keep hitters happy. Old robot Richard (the always looks like somebody just wound him up with a key) yielded a home run every four innings he pitched.

For the sadistic, it was sheer delight watching Nye and Nottebart take over when the Cubs trailed 6-2 early in a game. Don might escape after being nicked for three or four consecutive clothes-line singles. Then Rich would stroll in, and bang! Teddy Timid, a left-handed hitting, 120-pound rookie making his first big league appearance would rip out a letter or two in the scoreboard with a 550-foot drive.

But Leo never gave up on Nye (or Nottebart). I really have a hunch that he simply couldn't believe anyone was that bad.

ALREADY TRADE talk is stirring. What can the Cubs do about improving themselves for 1970 — that's the big question now.

Well, maybe nobody's noticed, but there is a guy available who could guarantee to bring excitement, if not a pennant, to the Cubs of 1970. His name is Harry Carey, and for those who remember the days of Bert Wilson and Jack Quinlan his addition would be enough to bring a real longing for next season — disappointments, frustrations, and all.

Morris to Test Tough Lake Park

by PHIL KURTH

Morris?

Exactly who or where or what is Morris?

Well, Morris is a town of 7,935 located about 15 miles southwest of Joliet. It was founded in 1842; altitude is 504 feet; annual event is the Grundy County Corn Festival.

BUT OF MORE importance right now is the fact that the Redskins of Morris High School are the next opponents of unbeaten Lake Park. The Redskins of the Illinois Valley Conference and the Lancers of the Tri-County Conference will collide tomorrow afternoon in Roselle.

GOING NOWHERE. Story of the afternoon for Elmwood Park was their lack of progress and here Tom Rumishek goes down under a host of Lake Park tacklers. The Lancers thrilled a homecoming crowd in Roselle Saturday with a record-breaking 63-0 win over the Tigers.

gain by playing this ball game.

"IF WE BEAT THEM, everyone'll say we should have beaten them — after all, they're only about half as big as us, what with their enrollment at about 900 and ours up around 1700. If they beat us, of course, they'll really have something to brag about when they get back home."

"And I'm sure their coaches will try to use that psychological advantage — the old routine about the country boys coming up and whipping the city kids. You can bet they're really going to be high for us. Anytime a school like that comes up to play a Chicago-area team they want to beat 'em and beat 'em bad."

There are other subtle little factors involved in playing a team like Morris. "One of the hard things," says Monken, "is that there is no basis for comparison. It's like a fear of the unknown. You hear about good schools downstate and the brand of ball they play, and you don't really know how good they are. The kids don't know exactly what to expect."

"I'VE SEEN MORRIS play this year, and they're a good, sound, tough ball club. Exactly how tough we'll find out tomorrow."

Of course, Lake Park is not likely to be too frightened by anyone. A week ago they shattered a school scoring record in blasting Elmwood Park 63-0 for their fourth straight conference victory.

Glenn Damato, sometimes unbelievable, sometimes just great, continued his domination of league scoring honors. Playing just two quarters against Elmwood, he scored three touchdowns and threw for another to bring his league-leading totals to 10 touchdowns, 64 points, and five TD passes.

Randy Hoff scored twice to move into sixth place in conference scoring with 16 points. Bill Campbell booted nine consecutive extra points against the Tigers to move into the top spot among PAT kickers with 12.

"OUR OFFENSE IS really starting to roll," says Monken. "It looks like it's going to be a real interesting ball game tomorrow between two high-powered offenses. We have been scoring big and so have they. The winner will probably be determined by who can adjust best to the other guy's offense."

And Morris' offense is little less volatile than Lake Park's. Says Kane: "We're leading the Joliet area in offense and defense, and we have the area's leading scorer in halfback Len Butler."

Butler rang up 20 points last week and now has more than 60 for the season. With Butler in the backfield are halfback Mark Parnell, fullback Rick Springer, and quarterback Nick Peterson.

Rounding out the offensive lineup are ends Ed Harsen and Tom Karlin, tackles Jim Bottomley and Jim Smith, guards Jud Brown and Tom Enger, and center Frank Hildy.

"WE HAVE PRETTY GOOD size and plenty of quickness to go along with it," says Kane, "and our line has been pretty tough throughout the year. We throw pretty well — Peterson has completed 50 per cent of his passes — and have a couple of fine running backs."

Defensively, Hildy, Butler, Springer, and Parnell are replaced by John Maddox (6-1, 228), Greg Durnmitt (5-11, 175), Jim Olson (6-1, 183), and Ed Thompson (5-10, 200) with the other seven seeing double duty.

"They like to hit," says Kane of his defensive crew that has yielded but 15 points in the last four games.

"This is probably the best team I have ever had. We're looking forward to playing Lake Park."

WITH THE DRAMATIC confrontation with Wheaton North coming up next week, Monken's Marauders may be tempted to look past tomorrow's game and Bob knows it.

"We're going out there tomorrow to win. I've told the kids Wheaton North is a week away — let's forget about them and think about Morris."

Think about Morris? That might sound a little amusing, but it's going to be a very serious matter tomorrow afternoon.

Homecoming in Bensenville

Fenton Out to Steal Ridgewood Fire

by PHIL KURTH

Fenton and Ridgewood are standing in the same spot, so to speak. But for one, the position was a climb and for the other it was a fall and therein lies the real difference as the two teams prepare to do battle tomorrow afternoon in Bensenville on Homecoming Day for the Fentonites.

After losing their first two conference games, Ridgewood rebounded to smack Mundelein 16-0 and boost their Tri-County record to 1-2.

FENTON, ON THE other hand, won their conference opener and then tumbled to Lake Park and Wheaton North as their Tri-County record dropped to 1-2.

With things on the upswing in Norridge, coach Dick Martwick says happily: "We're in the winning groove mentally. I think our spirits right now are at a peak. These kids without a doubt are as high now as they have ever been."

Following last week's 34-0 drubbing in Wheaton which knocked Fenton out of the Tri-County chase, the Bisons' spirits are probably as low as they have been all season.

And since attitude plays such a key role in any sport, it would apparently bode little hope for a happy homecoming tomorrow.

But you never know what might light the fire for Fenton. As quickly as you can lose momentum, you can find that spark again. And if the Bisons need an inspirational example, they really need look no further than the Redskins.

RIDGEWOOD STARTED the season with a tough 8-6 loss to East Leyden. Then they bowed to Crown 6-0 in a game they probably should have won. Saddled with their first conference loss they invaded Lake Park to meet the powerful Lancers.

The determined Reds jumped ahead of Lake Park in the first quarter on a 77-yard scoring pass from Jim Warren to Rick DeFellece and went on to rack up 405 total yards. They outgained the Lancers on the ground and in the air — and lost the game 33-27.

"If it hadn't been for all those penalties, it might have been a different story," said a naturally disappointed Martwick.

Shackled with two league losses now, the Redskins were no longer in the running for any title glory. If ever a team had an excuse to quit, it was luckless Ridgewood. They had played good ball, and lost, and now there was little left.

THAT LITTLE, though, turned out to be a lot. Pride and desire are potent ingredients and instead of just going through the motions the Rebels battled back to smother the Mustangs. And now the Reds are eager, confident.

DeFellece has finally had a couple of break-away gallops after being bottled up the first two games. Rugged halfback Mark Carlson is running at full strength again after being sidelined by an injury in the opener.

THE RIDGEWOOD defense, always a tough, hard-nosed crew, has been better than ever. "They like to hit," says Martwick. "I think our defense is as good as any in the league."

Defensively, of course, Fenton can be as tough

Knights to Enjoy Homecoming??

by CHUCK WILLOUGH

If everything goes per usual tonight at Prospect when the Knights entertain Arlington for Homecoming, the field will be deluged by rain. Prospect will score on its first series of plays, Arlington will have at least one touchdown called back, and the game will wind up in a tie.

That's the way things have been going for these two ballclubs this year. Arlington has played two of three Friday night games in downpours, has had several long touchdowns run called back, and has managed to win just one game against two losses and a tie. The Knights, on the other hand, have exploded for early TD's in every game, have run up yardage against every opponent, and have compiled a 1-3 record in the Mid-Suburban League.

So, if everything goes as it usually does... but, what the heck! That's just the point — nothing has gone per usual for these two teams this year. The usual has become the unusual.

sing attack and a good running game.

As far as Arlington coach Bob Walther is concerned, the best of the Knight runners is junior Mickey Gebert. "He's the lost gem they've been looking for," Walther said. And Gebert just might be that, rushing for 54 yards on 11 carries last week against the Pirates.

But fullbacks Don Koehler and Scott Szala have been every bit as impressive. On the year Koehler has been cracking opponent's lines for a five yards per carry average and Szala for a 9.7 mark. Throw in Pat Packard's 5.8 per yard average and you can see why the Knight offense is so respected.

The Knight offensive line is also well respected. Anchored by tackle John Manning and Mike Korf, both 200-pounders and then some, the line boasts Don Rodgers and Tim Loeffler at guards, and Lauren Nelson at center. Ends Casey Rush and Jim Dooley have consistently shown that they can pull in the clutch passes, with Rush ranking among the very best with 16 catches for 205 yards and Dooley nine for 58 yards.

Despite the lack of wins, Arlington still has the respect of Prospect mentor Don Williams. "Arlington is a team that normally does not make mistakes. They're not going to give us anything for free. They have a lot of tradition going for them too — they're always tough to beat."

Most of Williams' respect is for the Arlington defense, which ranks second best in the league. Led by linebacker Mike Hadley, probably the best man in the conference at middle linebacker, the Cards dare opponents to run, and when anybody tries to pass, Hadley and Company are well prepared for that too.

Most of Arlington's problems have come with the offensive backfield, and reflecting that problem are many changes in the lineup through the season. This week Walther will be trying out Paul Greene at fullback, who has never started before, Sam Witt at halfback, and Mike D'Angelo at slotback. They'll be joined by Terry Ormsbee, a sophomore passing whiz, who was brought up from the jayvees two weeks ago.

Arlington's offensive line has — like Prospect's — well deserved the respect of opposing coaches. Carl Anderson at 185 has to rate as one of the best pulling guards around, and Jack Hult has yet to turn in a bad performance at tackle. Filling out the line will be junior Jeff Selleck at center, Pete Harth at the other guard, and Kevin Ellertson at tackle. At ends, Walther will use Gary Bratko in the place of injured Tom Sayer and Chuck Donchess.

Looking at the game, both coaches felt that a real battle was in the making. "They're higher than a kite over there after last week," said Walther. "They've always been better than they looked and last week they jelled. Homecoming's going to help them too."

"What we have to do is stop their passing game. We have to put a strong Rush on White — he's a fine passer. If we can't do that we'll be in trouble," he added.

"We're most concerned about making mistakes," Williams said. "Arlington's a good team — don't let their record fool you — and they capitalize and win on mistakes. I'd like to think that the Palatine game has given us a start on the right track, but this game will be the test of that. It should be good."

And if the past is any indication of things to come, it should be another unusually gridiron battle for Prospect and Arlington.

Victory in Mud Boosts Confidence of Falcons

by PAUL LOGAN

What do you do, for an encore after you've won your biggest game of the season to date, if not in the history of your school?

Players from Forest View's football team are faced with this problem as they still bask in the post game sauna of victory over "big brother" Arlington last Friday night.

The Falcons, who had never scored a touchdown against the Cardinals in three years of varsity competition, splashed a six-pointer across that shoved the Cards into the mire of a 6-0 loss and also splattered mud all over their homecoming.

"That win's got to help us psychologically," said Paul Jordan, head coach at a very happy Forest View (2-0). "It's got to give us more confidence. They're (the team) sure tickled about it."

One of the two big problems facing the Falcon mentor has to be the over-confidence his team must conquer as it prepares to host last year's doormat of the Mid-Suburban League — Glenbard North — at 8:00 tonight.

And, to make matters worse, Jordan must worry about Forest View's Homecoming and the jinx that has spoiled most of the MSL homecomings so far this year.

"We've got to go along with it," Jordan said of the fall festival proceedings. "But it won't be worth a darn if we don't win the football game."

The other pressing problem for the second year coach is a growing sick list:

"A lot of kids are out with colds and the flu. We didn't even go outside last night (Monday). This was the same thing I was worried about last week. We had a hard time fielding a full team mainly because of the flu."

Presently ailing are three major parts of the Falcon offense — right end Wayne Meier, fullback John Ingo and left halfback Rich Posinger. Right Halfback Howard Mock will definitely miss the Panther game because of an injured knee.

Meanwhile, the former doormat has picked itself up with a stunning 0-0 tie on Wheeling's muddy turf. And Glenbard North (0-4-1) took great pride in that standoff as Don Elmore, its head coach, explains:

"We were overjoyed that they didn't score on those last plays of the game. They moved down to the one-yard line and had three tries to push it over before the clock ran out on them. The boys were very happy after that one."

Elmore was also elated because his Panthers went through the game without an injury.

"Unless we get somebody hurt during practice this week, we'll be at full strength," he explained. "We're getting stronger now and we're beginning to play a stronger second half."

| 185 Anastasi   | LB Posinger |
| 185 Hoge       | RB Ingo     |

"We think we have a pretty good chance against Forest View. Our scouts have looked at them a couple of times against Palatine and Arlington and they've told me that they've got a pretty good defense. They've only given up 36 points in the league and that's not many points in four ball games."

Leading the defense is Greg Swanson, a 5-11, 185 pound linebacker that many coaches tab as an equal to Palatine's Bob Carr and as two mentors labeled "better than Carr."

Swanson, who also is a stickout on offense at left guard, is aided on defense by Bill Michalek, a defensive end. "They along with Ingo, Mock and Posinger played real good games last week," said Jordan. "The whole defense hit real hard."

But the Falcon offense really pulled off a clutch performance, too. Heading the attack was senior signalcaller Rich Olson.

"We knew Olson," said Elmore. "He was at Proviso West when our line coach was there. We knew about his fine ability to throw, etc."

That ability was hampered somewhat by the downpour at Arlington, but the gutsy field general still managed to connect on four crucial ones in six attempts for 18 valuable yards. He also carried the ball three times for six yards — one of those three-footers being the game winner.

"He (Olson) said he was up mentally but said he was not up physically," said Jordan of his scrappy quarterback, who had been bothered by flu for two straight weeks. "But he went out and did the job for us."

"I think, offensively, we had one of our better games of the season. It was probably the best job of blocking all season."

The coach he defeated — Arlington's Bob Walther — echoed his comment and added that he hadn't seen such hitting in three years!

The Falcons, which occupy sixth place in the MSL in both offense and defense, have demonstrated a balanced attack (376 rushing and 353 passing). On defense they've been the toughest against the pass (186) while giving up a lot on the ground (636).

This should aid them against the Panthers who have the worst rush mark in the league — 86, and nearly the lowest passing output — 195.

Defensively, Glenbard has given up 914 rushing yards and 507 in the air. While Olson ranks second in passing yardage (328), second in total offense (432), and his top receiver — Meier — is third in catching yardage, no Panther can be found among the leaders in any category. Still, Jordan is worried:

"I don't think Glenbard has a bad ball club. I think its line is just about as good as anybody's in the league. I don't look for us to have an easy game."

It could be much closer than anybody might expect.

Harper Wins 2; DuPage CC Next

"It was a real good one... one of our best meets really."

That was Coach Bob Nolan's reaction to his Harper College cross country team's finest showing of the season last Wednesday afternoon.

The Hawks romped past visiting Lake County College and Elgin College in the double dual at Busse Woods to boost their overall dual record to an astounding 10-1. The final scores were: Harper 15, Lake County 50. Elgin only could field three runners and had to forfeit the meet.

Leading the excellent effort was Jim

Macnider who turned in a record setting 21:13 over the Harper layout. "That was 30 seconds better than the kid from Wright did here two weeks ago!" chirped the happy mentor.

"Another thing I was real pleased with was the 24-second difference between our second and fifth man."

Harper, which captured the first through seventh places, did show exceptional unity in the team's finish:

Ron Bryant in second (22:20), Bob Bachus in third (22:22), Ray Sommer in fourth (22:30), and Mike Elwart in fifth (22:44).

"There's been quite a difference in their times today and those two weeks ago," said Nolan after the big win. Macnider was better by 53 seconds, Bryant by 23, Bachus by 47, Sommer by 35 and Elwart by 54!"

Finishing out the Hawk scoring were Eric Burgess in sixth (23:34) and Tom Dwyer in seventh (24:00).

Nolan listed three reasons for the Hawks' improvement — disappointment in their fourth place showing in the Black Hawk invitational last weekend, tough workouts this week, and a relaxed mental attitude.

"If they run like this Saturday, we'll give DuPage a real battle," concluded Nolan. The meet is a double dual at the College of DuPage course — Maryknoll Seminary — at 11 a.m. with the Chipparras and Triton College. The hosts are the only team that has defeated Harper.

Title Hopefuls Square Off at Hersey

by KEITH REINHARD

Can the stout Hersey guardsmen fend off the impending attack of the fierce Conant army and save the day for their lovely homecoming queen?

Or will the invaders prevail, and their leader Sir McGraw spirit the fair lady off to live not so happily ever after in the land of Hoffman Estates?

Cougar Jim McGraw has no intention of taking Hersey's homecoming queen away from them tonight when he leads his team into battle on the Huskie field. Along the Mid-Suburban league grid circuit this appears to be about the only thing that's safe from the hard-charging all-state candidate however.

And as the Cougars face three very crucial tests going down to the wire during the next several weeks McGraw may just about spirit off with the whole MSL record book. This is the challenge presented to Hersey tonight as they attempt to avoid a defeat dampened homecoming weekend.

Currently, Ralph Losee Cougars and Len Burt's Huskies are very much involved in a conference title race. McGraw's personal attack on the circuit record manual may be incidental to this, but it is also very pertinent in one respect: Beginning with Hersey, Conant's final three outings pit them against both the first place teams and the outfit they share second place with. If the fast draw kid is to finalize his claim to at least two MSL career grid titles, he will have to do so against the best the conference can offer.

The hosts as well have a few chunks of timber to enhance the fiery duel expected tonight. In addition to their homecoming, it is the beginning of the home stretch in their first full varsity season. They have already done well for a fledgling team but could receive no better gratification for their efforts than ascending to the championship plainly in view.

The Huskies too have some formidable barriers in the way. Following Conant they must tackle the touted Palatine Pi-heads up, having lost 14 of them in four league matches, Burt had to say: "This is what we've been working on most this week... our own performance and increasing the effectiveness of our execution with the accent on concentration."

On the other hand Burt defends his squad's rather meager passing game. "Why pass when you can run? We have five boys who have proven they can carry the ball and no one should argue with the 1000 yards they've picked up in four games."

That grand ground mark is also a league leading statistic.

While the Huskies concentrate on eliminating their own mistakes, they're not forgetting about Conant. "Our scouts have reported to us that they have the best line in the conference, the best back in the conference and a quarterback who is coming along very well," noted Burt, adding, "All this adds up to make Conant a very strong ball club offensively."

rates and they windup playing the team that so far has issued them their only MSL varsity football loss ever... Glenbard North.

Hersey enters the contest with a current 3-0-1 record in tow, some impressive rushing credentials of their own and a confident defensive unit with thoughts of nailing the Rd on Fremd still fresh on their minds.

There are some lingering doubts about the Huskies, however, which Burt is fully aware of and of course which Losee must not be oblivious to either.

Hersey has a tendency to present the opposition with too many opportunities, and they have the most ineffectual passing attack in the loop. Speaking on the topic of fumbles, a category which Hersey also

The back, of course, is McGraw. Burt pointed out that he had received glowing accounts of his doing so many things so well but pointed out, "You can't forget about (Mike) O'Malley either and you can't key on McGraw because O'Malley is a big, strong runner who can hurt you if you take your eye off of him."

Mixing this in the backfield with John MacDonald, a junior quarterback who Losee himself admits has come around during the past two weeks; and halfback Tom Rambo, acknowledged by both sides as a fine pass receiver, and you have a most explosive attack.

Hersey's attack may be more predictable and more diversified but it can be every bit as effective. This week Burt has made some minor changes during scrimmage sessions and found still a sixth back worthy of a first string post.

The new possibility is Tom Gehr, a 170-pound senior who, on the basis of his performance to date, is being strongly considered as a starting halfback.

No matter who Burt goes with however, the major question looming over tonight's contest is can the Huskies stop McGraw. He's been slowed down from time to time over his three year varsity tenure but not enough to keep him capturing the MSL career rushing throne, a seat he wrested away from former Wheeling standout Jack Bastable two weeks ago and which continues to rise with each new yard he gains.

Two other career pinnacles are within reach for the 185-pound senior but they will take herculean efforts to surpass. McGraw needs 467 more yards to equal the all-time league total offense record owned by his sidelined teammate Scott Johnson and 63 more points to reach the career scoring mantle Bastable still possesses.

Perhaps the first step is to pass the second ranked names on the scoring and total offense lists. McGraw can accomplish that in one department with a single strut across the goal line this evening — a thought undoubtedly entertained by many who plan to attend tonight's significant Hersey-Conant clash.

Palatine Visits Under Lights

Patch Remembers '68; So Does Elk Grove!

by PAUL LOGAN

Maybe Elk Grove is finally ready to take another shot at Palatine's Tom Patch.

The last four games have presented the Grenadier defense with the best backs in the Mid-Suburban League. This has been the "Murderer's Row" so far:

Wheeling's Dan Hull — 205 total yards, two touchdowns;

Hersey's Bruce Frase — 209 yards, one TD;

Fremd's Bob Moloznik — 144 yards, one TD; and Conant's Jim McGraw — 77 total yards, two TDs.

As you can see, the Grove defenders have cut down the lusty output of two of District 211's tops — an optimistic note for Coach Don Schnake as he prepares to send his highly underdog Grenadiers against probably the best team in the MSL, Palatine.

At Elk Grove

| PALATINE     | ELK GROVE    |
|--------------|--------------|
| 150 Andriano | 155 LaMont   |
| 229 Frost    | 212 Chyette  |
| 145 McMiller | 118 Kanellis |
| 105 Thomas   | 190 Crawford |
| 108 Cner     | 186 Romano   |
| 106 Eberle   | 228 Toss     |
| 205 Phillips | 178 Pinder   |
| 179 Zajonc   | 130 Smith    |
| 130 Patch    | 111 Moore    |
| 126 Stanton  | 160 Mitox    |
| 719 Keating  | 165 Spawert  |

21YE Preliminary game between the Jayvees to begin at 8 p.m.; varsity contest to start at approximately 8:30 p.m.

PLACES: Elk Grove High School, 500 W. Elk Grove Blvd. and Arlington Heights Road, Elk Grove Village.

COACHES: Palatine, Arvid Herstedt; Elk Grove, Donald Schnake.

The big problem now is — how well can the pesky Patch run at night? This mystery has never been Schnake's worry, but now it is for the Grove will finally play under their lights tonight at 8:00.

"We've got to contain him (Patch) a little bit," Schnake said, recalling that fateful day in 1968.

Patch played his greatest game as a varsity member, rolling up 256 yards on 17 carries for an amazing 15-yard average. He also had two touchdowns and also had three others called back by penalties — runs of eight, nine and 86 yards!

So far this season the 150-pound speed merchant has totaled 468 yards on the ground and 92 in the air for eight scores. But Patch's terrifying end runs aren't the only things that Schnake has on his mind:

"Everybody knows what they've got — a balanced offense and a real tough defense."

That says a lot. Coach Arvid Herstedt's powerful aggregation is tops on the list in the MSL both offensively and defensively. They've mounted 1,382 yards total offense compared to the Grove's ninth place 644, and they've limited opponents to just 448 yards while their upcoming hosts have given up 1,123.

Still, Herstedt knows that the Grove is very hungry after losing five straight games that it could have won:

"They're a dangerous football team... much better than any 0-5 team I've ever seen. They run out of the slot and with passers like Smith (Joe) and Ristau (Dave) throwing to Pinder (Eugene), they're plenty dangerous."

"We can't take them lightly at all. They played good defense against Fremd and for most of the Conant game."

The Grenadiers were in the Conant game mostly on fine defensive work, but a recovered fumble in the end zone hurt their chances and four pass interceptions stopped them offensively.

"I don't think that the interceptions really cost us as much as the two clips and the face mask penalties," said Schnake. But he also added that Conant's defense "inside was really tough and just stopped him (Kevin Byrne)."

Until the Cougar contest, Byrne had been tearing through opposing defenses pretty well averaging five yards a carry over the last three games. But Byrne was held to just seven yards in six tries.

One high point of last Saturday's 29-6 loss was the fine aerial display of Smith. He completed 15 of 23 for 206 yards and a touchdown bomb of 48 yards to Rob Kruse. However, that combination won't be a threat to the Pirates tonight. Schnake explains:

"He (Kruse) broke his ankle and will be lost for the season. He was a first string halfback and one of the best defensive backs we have, too."

Replacing him in the backfield will be Al Mitsos, a 160-pound junior. The only other change in the lineup is Smith at quarterback. Schnake said he earned the start for last week's play.

"We're going to start Ron Mainati at halfback this week," said Herstedt of his only change in the starting lineup. "He's been doing real well for us the past couple of weeks and I think he deserves a starting shot."

Joining Mainati and Patch will be John Keating (47 carries for 269 yards and 2 TDs) and quarterback Guy Zajonc (17 completions for 302 yards and 4 TDs).

Zajonc's chief breakaway receiver is Chris Andriano. The speedy left has nabbed 11 for 213 yards and two scores so far in all games and has the all-time record for pass yardage in the MSL of 972.

Vying for the top pass-catching honors for the game and for the year has to be the Grove's Pinder. The rangy right end leads the league with 216 yards on 19 receptions and three touchdowns. Look for him to be on the end of most of Smith's serials.

Defensively, the Pirates have some of the best personnel in the area. Linebacker Bob Carr anchors the Palatine stoppers which have blanked three opponents so far this year. However, last Saturday the defense couldn't stop Prospect and the latter upset the Pirates, 21-20. But Herstedt thinks that his pack will be back:

"We're not down after losing last week. In fact, we're an angry football team. I think we'll bounce back. We have bruised pride but we still have a goal in mind — the league championship."

"We must start taking every game one at a time," he continued. "We can't start looking down the road past Elk Grove."

"To me they're like a cat cornered up against the wall. They can claw right back at you. Even last year when we had them 27-8, they never quit and came right back at us. They're one team you'll never see quit."

For possibly the largest crowd ever to see an Elk Grove game, Coach Schnake and his Grenadiers guarantee they won't quit.

"Last Saturday we played our best game," Schnake said, his voice leaving indications that maybe the next game would be even better.

Leaders 'Targets' In Classic Loops

The trouble with being on top is that everyone shoots for you.

That being the case, the prime "targets" this Saturday evening will be Morton Pontiac and the Paddock Classic Traveling League and Sim's Bowl in the women's classic. Morton and Sim's are the current front-runners in their respective leagues.

The men will gather this week at Thunderbird Bowl in Mount Prospect and the women will go to Hoffman Lanes. As usual, some interesting matches are on tap. In the men's loop, Morton will be trying to protect its advantage against Uncle Andy's Cow Palace. It won't be easy. Uncle Andy's is tied for third, only two points off the pace.

Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant at the Flying Carpet Motor Inn, in second place only a point out, will try to make that up when they meet Gane Oil Co. Host Thunderbird Pro Shop, a team which has been hot lately, will try to climb closer to the first division when they meet Buick in Evanston, tied with Uncle Andy's for third.

In the other match, it will be Snack Time Restaurant against Langlo's Redfinishing with both teams trying to avoid the cellar.

Highlighting the women's action will be a showdown for first place between Sim's Bowl and Girard-Brun. The latter team is only one point behind the leaders.

Kemmerly Realty, also tied for second and a point out, will be shooting for first place when it takes on Doyle's Striking Lanes, currently in sixth place. Duchess Beauty Salon, only two points out of first, will be challenged by Lattot Chevrolet and Des Plaines Lanes will go against Morton Pontiac to close out the card.

While Morton and Sim's are the leaders teamwise, Ray Olson and Lorrie Koch hold that distinction individually. Olson's 201 average is the men's best thus far, topping Ernie Koche by three pins. Lorrie has a 187 mean to top the women's list.

Standings in the men's classic reported the last two weeks in Paddock sports pages were incorrect. Instead of Uncle Andy's Cow Palace being in second place and Aladdin's Lamp Restaurant tied for third, the opposite is true. It was reported that Uncle Andy's won over Aladdin's, 4-3, in their Oct. 4 match, but Aladdin's actually won by that score. Apologies are extended to all who were misled.

The Lighter Side

Pole Prestige

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —For the past four or five weeks I've been going around in this area quietly buying up fire poles.

In small towns and villages you can get them for a song. ("I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire" is the number I use.)

I already have a sizable inventory and by the time my new company, Glamorous Fire Poles Inc., gets its charter, I expect to have a corner on the market.

The idea of going into the fire pole business came to me in a press release I received from Bernard Geis, the publisher our sales pitch on snob appeal.

The press release goes on to say that Geis "got the idea of installing the fire pole after visiting Hugh Hefner, publisher of Playboy magazine. While in Hefner's Chicago home, Geis slid down the fireman's pole that connects the living room to the swimming pool level."

Therein lies my company's bright future. If a couple of trend-setters like Hefner and Geis have fire poles in their pads or offices, fire poles are certain to become a major status symbol.

Be the first in your neighborhood to have a fire pole in your place and your reputation as a swinger will be made. Unless, of course, you happen to be a fireman.

The only difficulty I can foresee is selling fire poles to people who live in single-story ramblers or ranch houses. I mean, you can't very well slide from ground level to ground level.

I'm sure, however, you and your interior decorator can work something out.

One solution might be to cut a large circular hole in your living room ceiling and run the fire pole on up through the roof. When guests arrive, you can expedite their entrances by having them climb a ladder up to the attic and slide in.

I'll concede that your home might get a mite damp during a rainstorm. But that's a small price to pay for being fashionable.

Dick West

who specialized in sexy books. It reported that Geis installed a fire pole in his New York offices.

The pole "was put there to expedite inter-office travel from the fifth to the fourth floor," the release explained. "The elevator in the building rises only to the fourth floor and to extend it to the fifth floor was impractical."

I doubt that the fire pole is 100 per cent practical either. It may be fine for expediting inter-office travel from the fifth to the fourth floor, but when it comes to expediting inter-office travel from the fourth to the fifth floor, a fire pole has certain disadvantages.

For this reason, my company is not stressing practicality. We intend to base

40-Plus Students Seek 'Miss' Title

More than 40 high school senior girls already are entered in the 1969-70 Paddock Publications' Junior Miss Pageant following last Sunday evening's orientation meeting at Elk Grove High School.

Eligible girls (those who have maintained a "B" average or better during high school) have until Saturday, Oct. 25, to enter this year's search for the "ideal high school senior."

The only other requirement is that they must attend one of the high schools in the area covered by Paddock Publications' newspapers. These include the high schools in Districts 214, 211, 108 and 100 and Sacred Heart of Mary.

Interested girls who have not received an application form or were unable to attend last Sunday's meeting may obtain a form by calling or writing Mrs. Rat Adam, pageant chairman, 394-2300 or 773-1520, ext. 267, during office hours.

PRELIMINARY interviewing of contestants will be held in the cafeteria of Elk Grove High School, Elk Grove Boulevard and Arlington Heights Road, on Sunday, Nov. 2. Candidates will be instructed at what hour they should report.

At that time they will be scored on poise and appearance, worth 15 per cent, and personality and character based on the Judges' interview, 35 per cent. The 12 to 16 girls who score highest in these categories plus scholastic achievement, worth 15 per cent, will be invited to return for the finals Nov. 16.

At that time each girl will be scored on talent in the creative and performing arts and on youth fitness.

TWO WINNERS will be chosen, each to receive a $250 scholarship. In addition they will represent their home communities in the Illinois' Junior Miss Pageant in Niles Dec. 29 to Jan 3 at which nearly $5,000 in scholarships will be awarded.

Two runnersup will each receive a $125 scholarship. In addition there will be $50 awards for scholastic achievement and talent.

Donors of this year's scholarships are Lattif Chevrolet, Arlington Heights; Bee-line Fashions, Bensenville; and Meeske's Super Market, Mount Prospect.

Plan Simon Talk

Illinois Lt. Gov. Paul Simon will be guest speaker Tuesday at a meeting of the Salt Creek chapter of the Illinois Society of Professional Engineers.

Simon's topic will be "The Highway Bond Issue, Boon or Boondoggle?" Tickets will be available at the door for the meeting in O'Hare Inn.

The Salt Creek chapter of professional engineers serves the Northwest suburbs. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. for cocktails followed by the 7 p.m. dinner.

Simon, a Democrat from Troy, was elected lieutenant governor Nov. 5 in the same election that saw Republican Richard B. Ogilvie become governor. The lieutenant governor has been critical of some Ogilvie administration proposals, including the $2 billion highway construction bond issue passed in the last Illinois General Assembly.

WITH A BACKGROUND as newspaper publisher, Simon writes a column for more than 300 Illinois newspapers during legislative sessions. His writings have appeared in several national magazines including Harper's and Saturday Review.

One of the roles Simon has assumed as lieutenant governor is "Ombudsman," a Swedish term meaning trouble shooter. He describes his function as "serving as a lobbyist for the host of citizens who have no lobbyist."

Prior to becoming lieutenant governor Simon served eight years in the Illinois House of Representatives and six years in the State Senate.

FRUSTRATED?

Specifically . . . we have a position demanding all of the dedication and skills associated with secretaries . . . but it is not secretarial.

Thus . . . if you have that feeling of being capable of better things . . . with secretarial earnings . . . but do not care for shorthand or machine dictation . . . you will want to take a few moments to investigate.

You will need the ability to type rapidly . . . to handle details . . . and to become a storehouse of information. The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs france and an exterior of brick and cedar siding. Four bedrooms are upstairs, the master bedroom large enough for a separate dining area. Also featured is the fireplace in the paneled family room.

Offer Traditional Choices

Planned for 47 homes, the community will be built in two phases. Wooded lots range from 1/3-acre and homes from $46,900 plus site.

Two models, furnished and decorated by Barnitz Studios, are on view. The first of these, an all-brick French country house, is named the "Beaubien." The four-bedroom, 2 1/2-bath ranch features an enclosed garden courtyard entrance with double pillars against an atrium wall on each side of the courtyard.

YOU MAY ENTER either the bedroom wing or living room and family areas from the parquet foyer. The paneled family room at the back of the home features a fireplace and sliding glass doors opening onto the patio. The adjoining country kitchen and breakfast area have beamed ceilings and a brick wall.

Also on this side of the home are a formal dining room with dado rail, laundry and powder room. The 24 foot by 16 foot sunken living room is directly in back of the foyer.

The bedroom wing makes up the entire right side of the home. The 12 foot 10 inch by 18 foot 5 inch master bedroom features closets and compartmented bath with double bowl vanity. From the bath, a door leads outside to a private patio. Three other bedrooms and a full bath complete the wing.

The home has 2,849 square feet living area and sells for $54,700 plus lot.

SPACIOUS LIVING FOR a large family is emphasized in the "Concorde" model. Inspired by the architecture of early New England colonials, this home has the traditional features of a covered portico entrance and multi-paned, shuttered windows on an exterior of brick and cedar siding.

A quarry tiled center entry hall provides a warm welcome to the home. The 22-foot paneled family room features a brick fireplace and sliding glass doors, opening onto the back yard patio. Both the breakfast room and island kitchen have sliding glass doors with access to the back yard patio. A formal dining room, living room, laundry and powder room complete the first floor.

All four bedrooms are upstairs. The 20 foot six inch by 13 foot 6 inch master bedroom has enough room for a separate sitting area. It also includes a walk-in closet and compartmented bath, with a sunken tub on a raised podium. The compartmented hall bath has a double bowl vanity.

THREE OPTIONAL exterior styles are also available. The buyer may choose a New England farmhouse style, Georgian or Seaboard colonial in addition to the "Concorde." The home has 2,863 square feet living area and sells for $53,700 plus lot.

Dawn Gate is located on Meacham Road, one-half-mile north of Algonquin Road (Route 62).

Kennedy Brothers has announced the grand opening of Dawn Gate, a community of traditional residences in the Plum Grove area of Rolling Meadows.

Cars and Grades Don't Mix

The more a student uses a car during the week, the poorer the student's grades will be, emphasized assistant vice president Richard A. Hogan, Illinois Regional manager of the Allstate Insurance Companies.

Referring to "A Teenage Pattern," an Allstate study of 20,000 high school students, Hogan stated the major finding: Grades go down as driving privileges are extended.

"Parents are the only people who can supervise and enforce sensible use of the automobile during the academic year," he said.

In addition young drivers are becoming involved in more auto accidents than ever before, the insurance executive said.

Citing late statistics, he urged parents to exercise strict control over their children's driving.

"PARENTS SIMPLY must realize the importance of strict supervision of their children's driving habits," said Hogan. "Young drivers have the highest crash and death rate of any age group on the road today."

"The other important reason for parental control of young drivers is that their education will suffer if they are allowed too much use of a car."

He noted with concern late accident figures from the National Safety Council, which show that drivers in the 14 to 24 age group have a crash and death rate nearly double that of older drivers.

Young drivers under 24 have crashes at an annual rate of 41 per 100 drivers while drivers aged 40 to 65 have 18 collisions per 100 drivers.

"Many of these crashes could have been prevented if the drivers involved had been properly trained," said Hogan. "Experience shows that trained young drivers have 50 per cent fewer crashes than untrained drivers of the same age."

EVEN IF THE young driver is well trained, studies must come before driving. The Allstate "A Teenage Pattern" study showed that too much use of a car affects the grades of good students as well as poor students.

Grades start to suffer when the car is used more than two days out of five during the school week. Students who do not drive or who use the car only on weekends have the best grades, while those who drive two to four school days a week have significantly poorer grades, the survey indicated.

Hogan made these recommendations to parents interested in helping their children become good students and good drivers:

1. Make sure that scholarship comes first and driving second.
2. See that they get proper driver training in high school.
3. Restrict the use of cars to weekends and keep the week days for school work. There will be exceptions, but this is a good basic approach.
4. DON'T PERMIT a teenager to have a part-time job just to pay for a car or to support one.
5. Keep the keys in your own pocket and lend the car only under the proper circumstances.

"It's up to the parents to keep cars and school work in their proper perspective and to provide the guidance and example in use of the car," he added.

Burial Payments For War Veterans

Up to $250 for the burial expenses of an eligible deceased veteran will be paid by the Veterans Administration without regard to whether the interment is in a national cemetery or a private burial place, according to John B. Naser, manager of Veterans Administration's regional office in Chicago.

The VA spokesman said that the allowance is payable in the case of wartime veterans, including those who have served after Aug. 4, 1964. He added that peacetime as well as wartime veterans are eligible for burial in any national cemetery that has available space. The only requirement is that their last period of active duty must have ended with an honorable discharge.

NATIONAL CEMETERIES open in this state are Camp Butler (Springfield); Mound City; Quincy; Rock Island, and Alton.

Administered by the Department of the Army, the benefits are for grave site and actual interment in the national cemetery including opening, closing and marking the grave.

The Army also furnishes a headstone or grave marker for deceased veterans buried in unmarked private plots.

Information and assistance on filing for these Army-administered benefits will be furnished by any VA office, he said.

Claims for the burial allowance may be filed with the VA within two years after the veteran's burial or cremation. The claim may be filed by the undertaker, if he has not been paid, or by the party who paid the undertaker, Naser said.

COLONIAL CONCEPTS in design are used in a complex of eight general office buildings and a commercial service building, now under construction in Park Ridge. The $35 million Park Ridge Office Center, joint venture of Williamsburg Development Co. and Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., is expected to employ 4,500 persons. Occupancy of the first building is scheduled for early 1970.

Building Office Center

Ground breaking ceremonies were held recently for the $35 million Park Ridge Office Center on a 21-acre site in Park Ridge.

Pat Filippi, president, and Roland Casati, vice president of Williamsburg Development Co., announced that the development is a joint venture between their firm and the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Springfield, Mass.

Park Ridge Office Center, according to Filippi, will consist of eight general office buildings of various authentic colonial designs with each containing approximately 125,000 square feet of space along with an underground garage and surface parking for 2,500 cars. The new center is expected to employ some 4,500 persons.

CASATI REPORTED THAT in addition to the features already mentioned, there will be a three-story commercial service building which will house a large cafeteria in its lower level along with specialty shops and a bank on the main floor. A private luncheon and dining club with conference rooms will be located on the second and third floors.

All nine buildings will occupy approximately six of the 21-acres and will all be connected by protected passageways through the underground garage. The remaining 15-acres of lands will be devoted to a landscaped park-like plaza and parking facilities.

Those attending the ceremonies included Mayor Joseph Peacock of Park Ridge, John W. Baird, president of Baird and Warner, Inc., and James K. Johnson, assistant director of real estate development of Massachusetts Mutual.

Richard R. Cramer, A.R.A., of Hinsdale, is the architect. Construction, management and leasing will be handled by Williamsburg Development Co. of Park Ridge. Occupancy of the first building is scheduled for early 1970.

Enclosed Development Is Started in Schaumburg

Woodfield Associates recently held the official ground breaking for Woodfield Mall, the world's largest climate-controlled, multi-level, enclosed retail development, in Schaumburg. When completed in early 1972, this facility will have a total area of over 2 million square feet.

The Woodfield development is located on a 191-acre tract adjacent to the intersection of Interstate 90 and Golf Road (Illinois 53).

Three major department stores — Sears, Roebuck and Co., Marshall Field & Co., and J. C. Penney Co., Inc., will construct their largest suburban stores to date in the center.

THE RETAIL development buildings are positioned diagonally in the center of the 191 acre site, surrounded by parking for more than 10,000 cars.

Split-level parking which will facilitate automobile traffic to allow pedestrian arrival at each level of the multilevel center. Leasing has begun in the center which will house over 160 stores and services.

The multilevel design interlocks two and three levels; reducing walking distance within the mall, thereby creating maximum shopping exposure for the customer. Interconnecting escalators, ramps and pedestrian walkways will provide a smooth flow of customer traffic.

Three three Grand Courts within the malls will have sculpture, fountains and waterfalls.

When fully opened, Woodfield Mall will employ approximately 6,000 persons. Woodfield Mall and ancillary buildings are expected to cost in excess of $90 million.

Woodfield Mall is being developed and constructed by Woodfield Associates, the Taubman Co., Inc., developers of over 30,000,000 square feet of shopping centers and retail properties across the country.

Call to Action by Builders

Edward Zale, chairman of the 'Call to Action' committee of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago (HBAGC), said, "The recent visit to Washington by home builders from all over the United States has had a definite and good effect on the administration and on our legislators."

Zale said he learned from Dr. Sidney Jones, assigned the role of liaison with the housing industry by the Council of Economic Advisors, that the home builders' visit to Washington had a "specific impact." As a result of the visit, representatives of the home building industry will be invited to Washington in the near future to meet with Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors.

ZALE SAID A Cabinet Committee on Construction was formed under the direction of McCracken to deal with the construction industry with special focus on housing matters, consisting of Paul W. McCracken, Chairman; Maurice H. Stans, Secretary of Commerce; George P. Shultz, Secretary of Labor; George W. Romney, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development; John A. Volpe, Secretary of Transportation; Winton M. Blount, Postmaster General and Robert L. Kuzig, Administrator of General Services.

In addition, according to Zale, a steering committee was formed composed of the second in command from each of the departments on the committee. Representation was added from the Federal Reserve Board, the Bureau of the Budget and the Treasury Department.

ZALE REPORTED A study group on mortgage finance has been formed under the leadership of Herbert Stein, a member of the Council of Economic Advisors. Members of the study group represent the Treasury Department, Housing & Urban Development, Bureau of the Budget, the Federal Home Loan Bank and the Federal Reserve Board.

This group is studying the various proposals from HUD, the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) and congressmen on the flow of mortgage funds.

As part of his concern for the entire building industry, two weeks ago President Nixon, by executive order, created a 12-member construction industry collective bargaining committee representing the public organized labor and employers. Secretary of Labor George Shultz was named chairman.

JOHN A. STASTNY, a Chicago area builder and vice president-treasurer of the NAHB, was named to the committee by the President.

Zale said builders are concerned that many people who want to buy homes now fail to do so because they believe they will be able to pay less for homes in the future.

He pointed out that in a recent statement, Jack S. Kepler, president of the Home Builders Association of Chicago (HBAC), said that, although there are periodic peaks and valleys in the costs of mortgages for homes, "the purchase of a home is, today, an ideal investment."

The HBAC and the Northern Illinois Home Builders Association (NIHBA) recently formed the HBAGC which sponsored the 'visit' to Washington. Jack Hoffman is president of HBAGC, the only Chicago area builders' organization affiliated with the 50,000-member National Association of Home Builders.

Suggests Solution To Money Shortage

Sales of homes and income properties by means of purchase money mortgages and installment sales contracts, a long-established way of doing business in the real estate world, have assumed increasing importance in today's "tight money" circumstances, Leland N. Larson, executive vice president of Quinlan and Tyson Mortgage Corp. of Evanston stated recently, noting that his mortgage banking company has provided means for collecting and servicing such obligations in return for a fee.

"The main requirement for financing by purchase money mortgage or contract is that the seller not be in immediate need of his funds for other use," Larson stated, noting that a homeowner preparing for retirement, a presently active investor seeking to become an "armchair" investor, a businessman with an investment program and other assets, or an owner who has not been able to find a cash buyer for his property can all use these techniques to advantage.

Mortgages Suffering Sharp Cuts

The October Barometer of Business, published by Harris Trust and Savings Bank, Chicago, takes a look at the squeeze on the housing mortgage market.

Housing starts declined from nearly 1.9 million units in January of this year to 1.3 million this summer, due to the scarcity of mortgage funds and the reduced flow of funds into savings institutions.

Individual savers are placing greater portions of funds in marketable debt issues rather than in banks, savings and loan institutions and mutual savings banks, since some government bonds are available at a 6 per cent and long-term corporate issues at nearly 8 1/4 per cent.

A continuing slump in home building is likely since savings and loan institutions have cut their mortgage commitments most sharply in the last few months.

Capital in savings and loans rose $2.1 billion the first eight months of this year, compared with $3.2 billion in 1968. These institutions declared dividends of approximately $3 billion in the first half of 1969; therefore, withdrawals have exceeded savings inflows this year.

Barometer of Business states that the entire loss of $11 billion in assets during the first three quarters of 1969 is due to a reduction of 50 per cent in outstanding negotiable certificates of deposits over $100,000. Smaller savings and time deposits have also declined since June.

Interest rates during the next several years are expected to remain relatively high, although lower than current peaks.

IN THIS TYPE of financing, the seller, rather than a lending institution, provides funds to the buyer for a portion of the purchase price (from 50 per cent to 90 per cent in typical cases) and receives in return monthly interest and principal payments, Larson stated, with the installment contract (where title does not pass to the buyer immediately) being more common in 80 per cent or 90 per cent transactions.

The interest rate to the seller, which can be a maximum of 8 per cent to individuals in Illinois, provides him with a return, after servicing, which is superior to other types of investment, such as savings accounts, Larson said, and the property itself is pledged as security against default by the buyer.

Preparation of necessary mortgage or installment contract documents by a competent attorney representing the seller and review of all arrangements by the buyer's attorney is always recommended, Larson stated.

This type of mortgage or contract between individuals was very common as long ago as 1894, when Quinlan and Tyson was founded, Larson stated, and has been used with varying frequency over the years, in direct relation to the supply of money from other sources.

Quinlan and Tyson Mortgage Corp. is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., a diversified real estate firm.

Landwehr Has Opening

CELEBRATING GRAND OPENING Oct. 20 through 25, Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, will offer free refreshments, balloons and small household gifts during the event. The store features a variety of appliances, including televisions, radios and refrigerators.

Grand opening for Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, will be held Oct. 20 through 25, according to Ed Landwehr, store owner.

Balloons, refreshments and small household gifts will be given away during the celebration. No purchase is necessary to enter a drawing for a trip to the Bahama Islands for four days and three nights.

Landwehr has been in business in Arlington Heights since 1966, and his store was formerly located on Dunton. Five employees now handle sales and service for the store, featuring televisions, radios, other entertainment equipment, refrigerators and other appliances.

PARKING FACILITIES are available at the firm, which includes 6,000 square feet of display space, 4,000 square feet of service area and 2,000 square feet of rented space.

Landwehr, seeking to display merchandise in depth, notes that housewives pick out many of the appliance selections to blend with their home decor. Early American is the most popular choice of area residents, according to Landwehr, followed by Mediterranean.

Richard Dettmann, head of the service department, said that his working area has been increased by 50 per cent in the new location. Television accounts for the largest part of his work.

"We offer training for better service and lower cost," said Landwehr. "Our product displays are among the finest in the area, and our service facilities offer the latest in technology."

Landwehr is active in the local Chamber of Commerce.

Miller Heads Unit

Frank Miller, of Arlington Heights, a six year veteran of Cadillac Associates, Inc., Chicago, has been appointed head of the restaurant, hotel, and club executive division of Cadillac Associates, Lon D. Barton, president of the executive employment organization has announced.

Miller was graduated with a degree in chemical engineering from Purdue University with additional work in accounting and business procedures, and went from the Indiana school to management positions with Studebaker and other smaller manufacturing concerns.

At Cadillac, he was first employed in the financial executives division, but was quickly placed in the restaurant, hotel, and club executives division. Since that time, he has placed some of the outstanding executives in this field, and is constantly being called by large corporations for such search programs.

Looking Forward To Leisure Time

"With my hobbies of golf, bowling and photography, I don't expect to be bored with my leisure," said Thomas J. Flaherty of 808 S. Lancaster, Mount Prospect, who recently retired from Illinois Bell Telephone Co., after 46 years of service.

Flaherty held a number of positions in the plant department, including frame-man, building cable splicer and switch-board foreman. In 1955 he was promoted to a supervising engineer in the company's headquarters in Chicago.

He is a member of St. Raymond Catholic Church, Mount Prospect, and of North Council of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

CANYON CLUB at Apple Canyon Lake is portrayed in this drawing of the $150,000 facility, scheduled to be completed in December. The club is part of a recreational complex including a swimming pool, tennis courts and a golf course. Construction has begun on the 1,000-foot dam for Apple Canyon Lake, near Galena, a development of the Branigan Organization.

Seeks Part-Time Claims Deputies

Harold C. Spaeth, North District supervisor of the Division of Unemployment Compensation, has announced that the agency is seeking men and women to work on a part-time basis assisting in adjudicating unemployment compensation claims. Selected applicants will be trained as "Intermittent Claims Deputies" and will be stationed in Chicago and suburban offices.

The rate of pay is $3.85 an hour and the hours of work will be between 8:30 a.m. and 4:45 p.m., 4 or 5 hours a day or 2 or 3 days a week.

THE POSITIONS to be filled are civil service positions and applicants must pass an examination given by the Illinois Department of Personnel. To qualify for the examination applicants must have completed four years of college, preferably with courses in the social sciences, industrial relations, psychology, communications and labor relations.

Attacks Tax Reform Bill Hobby Lobby Celebrating Its Opening

This nation faces the virtual extinction of housing, a stagnated real estate market, and a wrecked economy if the so-called tax reform measures being considered by the Senate are approved, John Cotton, San Diego, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, warned recently.

"If Congress had set out deliberately to scuttle its own goal of 2.6 million new housing units a year, it couldn't have devised a better way than this proposed bill which attacks all aspects of the real estate industry in a variety of ways with a number of novel and complex provisions," he explained to the convention of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Chicago.

"Basically, the legislation would pull the rug out from the builders, developers, and investors by destroying the traditional incentives which have attracted them into the field," he explained.

"THE BILL WOULD burden real estate investors with higher taxes while permitting other types of investors to go ahead under continued incentives to invest," he added. "This is not tax reform but discrimination against real estate, detrimental to the needs of the country."

The provisions include severe limitations on the availability of accelerated depreciation, a harsh and unfair rule for recapture of accelerated depreciation on disposition of property, application of the limit on tax preferences with particular emphasis on real estate deductions, application of the allocation of deductions with particular emphasis on real estate deductions, limitations on deductibility of investment interest, and a "hobby-loss" rule designed for gentlemen farmers which literally would apply to all real estate which fails to produce taxable income.

"The proposals, which were approved by the House of Representatives," he added, "place burdens on segments of the real estate industry which will upset the balanced development of commercial, industrial, and residential real estate to a point inconsistent with the needs of the country. They further will adversely affect construction of buildings essential for replacement and renewal of the nation's physical plant.

"FURTHER, THERE are two situations not taken into account in the bill," Cotton said. "One is the fact that a reduced volume of sales may result in property not being properly maintained, or maintained only enough to keep tenants minimally satisfied, and secondly, it will result in decreased revenues because of postponement of the tax now collected when sales are made at a gain."

If enacted, the bill as approved by the House, and even more so with new Treasury Department proposals, would, together with tight money, cause a serious real estate depression with grave consequences for the entire economy, Cotton concluded.

Hobby Lobby Celebrating Its Opening

Hobby Lobby, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights, will hold its grand opening celebration Saturday, Oct. 18.

Door prizes, free balloons and a clearance sale on selected merchandise will be featured at the grand opening.

Formerly located at 210 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, the store now has three times the space of its former location. Owners of the business are Bill Angus, Niles, and his brother, Dave Angus, Streamwood, who bought the store a year ago.

MERCHANDISE at the shop includes trains, ships, planes, rockets and many other hobby items. A women's hobby department is a recent addition, including flower making and decoupage kits. Service is offered for all merchandise.

Bill Angus noted that approximately half the store's customers are adults, who usually buy the larger and more complicated train and ship models.

Abel Manages Branch

R. L. Boatman, manager of industrial sales for Masonite Corp., Chicago, has announced the promotion of I. P. Abel of 848 E. Pratt Drive, Palatine, to manager of the firm's midwest industrial division.

Abel most recently served as assistant to the industrial sales manager.

Training Program Includes Forums

The first regional "workshop forum" for the managers of Kassuba Development Corp.'s apartment communities in Chicagoland was held recently at the Drake Hotel in Oak Brook.

The forum was conducted by Joseph D. Lydon, sales training consultant to Kassuba, and was attended by 21 Chicago division managers. It was designed to keep the managers abreast of new and effective salesmanship techniques and to enable them to discuss their own operation with colleagues in other communities.

THE WORKSHOP FORUM is one new aspect of the over-all Kassuba training program for managers, begun this year. Other parts of the program include a training school for new Trace managers, based in Chicago. The program also comprises additional training and sales material, sent continuously to current Trace managers.

Plans are being made to hold other workshop forums for the Trace managers of other Kassuba divisions across the country. The next forum is scheduled for the central division later this month.

Aggerbeck Awarded AMA Fellowship

Lawrence J. Aggerbeck, president of L. J. Aggerbeck and Associates, Palatine, recently received a fellowship award when the American Management Association held its 46th annual meeting in its New York headquarters.

MAKING THE MOST of the recent regional workshop forum for the managers of Kassuba Development Corp. apartment communities in the Chicago area, Joseph D. Lydon, sales training consultant, gets response from one of the 21 in attendance. The meeting was held at the Drake Hotel in Oak Brook.

Bromley Delivers Building Address

An expert on housing construction in Europe will be guest speaker at the combined meeting of the Northern Illinois Home Builders Association and the DuPage Board of Resitors, set for 7 p.m. Oct. 23 at St. Andrew's Country Club.

Delivering the talk will be Thomas H. Bromley, a former master sergeant in the Army Corps of Engineers.

Bromley, a builder, is on a tour of the United States, studying building techniques in this country.

DURING THE WAR, he was stationed throughout Europe with the Army of Occupation. In the last 20 years, he has been instrumental in the development of over one-half million acres of land all over Europe, building single-family homes, multiple high rise and commercial buildings. The combined NIHBA-DuPage Board of Realtors meeting is an annual event for the two county-wide organizations.

NEW CONDOMINIUM CONCEPT, known as the Commons in Northbrook, is now under construction. Designed as one-story ranch houses, each of the 24 buildings will contain from two to five units. Some of the units, in the three types of floor plans available, have atriiums surrounded by insulating glass windows and sliding glass doors. Prices for the units, all air-conditioned, range from $40,900 to $51,400.

List Condominium Units

A new departure in condominium planning and development has been announced by the C. D. Johnson Co., Glenview, developers and builders.

The company's new development of 24 buildings, each composed of from two to five condominium units, will occupy slightly more than 12 acres located at 1900 Shermer Road in Northbrook.

According to Richard M. Pinches, vice president of the Johnson Co., the development, called "The Commons in Northbrook," will be unique in several ways.

"WE CALL THESE buildings 'Ranch Townhouses' because they are designed as one-story ranch homes, separated by 10-inch brick walls," Pinches said. "The development is isolated from adjoining properties and access is restricted to one entry. The Shermer Road frontage will have a 7-foot brick screen wall and the balance of the perimeter will have a cedar stockade fence or arbor-vitae hedge."

Individual patios are atrium-styled, with three sides formed by the dwelling and the fourth side shielded by a seven-foot stockade fence for privacy, according to Pinches.

Some of the units, in the three types of floor plans available, will also have atriiums surrounded by insulating glass windows and sliding glass doors. All units will have central air conditioning and humidifier. Outdoor areas will be individualized by a variety of planning schemes, paving bricks and exposed aggregate concrete grills and patio gas lights," Pinches said.

HE SAID THAT these two-bedroom units are designed primarily to fit the needs of couples who want the advantages of home ownership, but who no longer require a large, single-family home with attendant maintenance problems. Prices for the units will range from $40,900 to $51,400.

Plans offer compartmented baths, walk-in closets, fireplaces, book shelves and quarry tile foyers. A wall in each major room features exposed brick. Kitchens are carpeted and have self-cleaning double ovens; 22-cubic-foot, frost-free, double-door refrigerator with ice-maker; dishwasher; garbage disposer; pantry cabinets and planning desk. Garages will have automatic door operators.

Construction is to begin immediately, with completion of models scheduled for early December. Homes in the first phase of development are available for selection now. The entire project is scheduled to be completed in late 1970.

Federation Has Facts on Taxes

Did the 76th session of the Illinois General Assembly increase the Retailers' Occupation Tax (R.O.T.) rate ("sales tax")? The answer is "No," the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois said recently in its weekly release.

The reason for the question is that as of Oct. 1 there was a rearrangement of the aggregate rate. On that date the state's rate lowered from 4 1/4 per cent to 4 per cent, and municipalities and counties were given the authority to increase their local rates from 3/4 to 1 per cent to 1 per cent. Thus, the aggregate rate is still at the 5 per cent level.

To effect a change in its R.O.T. rate, a municipality must pass an ordinance or resolution calling for such an increase. Then the ordinance or resolution must be published, and it takes effect on the first day of the month next following the expiration of 10 days after it is so published. For a municipality to receive the benefits of the increase in the local R.O.T. by Oct. 1, the ordinance or resolution increasing the rate must have been enacted on or before Sept. 21. The corporate authorities of the municipality must also transmit to the Department of Revenue, on or not later than 5 days after the effective date of the ordinance or resolution, a certified copy of the ordinance or resolution imposing such tax or change.

IF A MUNICIPALITY did not meet the Oct. 1 date (earliest possible date to get the increase), it may take advantage of the increase, or any part thereof, at a later date by following the steps outlined above.

A county may effect a change in its R.O.T. rate (on retailers in unincorporated areas of a county) by passing an ordinance or resolution calling for such a change. The change in rate shall be effective on the first day of the calendar month next following the month in which such ordinance or resolution is passed. The county board shall transmit to the Department of Revenue, on or not later than 5 days after the effective date of the ordinance or resolution, a certified copy of such document imposing the tax or change.

The Tax Federation of Illinois biennial tax clinic will be held Monday, Oct. 20, at St. Nicholas Hotel, Springfield, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Benefits May Be Paid to Parents

Survivors benefits are payable upon the death of an insured worker to certain dependents of the worker.

Most people are aware that survivors benefits are payable to the surviving spouse and children of the deceased worker, providing certain other requirements are met.

However, many people are not aware that survivors benefits may also be paid to a dependent parent of the deceased worker, reported Arthur Hutchison, manager of the Northwest Social Security District Office.

In order for a surviving parent to qualify for monthly cash benefits the parent must have been receiving at least one-half of his support from his deceased son or daughter.

The period to be used in determining whether the one-half support requirement is met will usually be the one-year period preceding the worker's death. If the worker was disabled at the time he died, the support requirement may be met before the disability began.

GENERALLY, THE PROOF of support must be filed within two years after the child's disability began. Proof of support should be filed within the two year period even though the surviving parent may be too young to qualify for benefits immediately, Hutchison said.

To clarify this point, Hutchison cited an example. "Let's assume that a parent who is 55 years old loses his son in an auto accident. Even though no benefits will be payable to the dependent parent for another seven years (at age 62), the parent should file proof of support within the next two years. If the parent waits until he is 62 years old to file proof of support, the two year period in which to file will have expired, and the parent may not be able to qualify for benefits as a parent."

Smigel Wins Court Nod Against Board

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Victor Smigel, developer of an apartment complex at Lake Street and Euclid Avenue in Bloomingdale, has won a lawsuit against the village which will enable him to complete his buildings and receive sewer and water service.

In a decision handed down Tuesday, Judge William Guild of the DuPage County Circuit Court issued a writ of mandamus instructing the village to issue 13 building permits to Smigel and to allow Smigel to tap on to the appropriate sewer lines.

SMIGEL RECEIVED nine permits for the six-unit buildings now on Lake Street but had not received 13 permits for proposed buildings which will extend the project to Glen Ellyn Road. The 22 permits were applied for last April.

The village has been expecting the decision. It had refused to issue building permits to Smigel, contending it did not have adequate sewer facilities. Smigel will connect on to the sewage treatment plant which the Illinois State Sanitary Water Board has scheduled for eventual phase-out, declaring it inadequate for proper treatment of effluent.

The village would not issue permits because of the sanitary water board order, but previous R-3 zoning of the land made the village liable, by implying it could provide proper water and sewage facilities.

SMIGEL HAS cooperated with the village in trying to improve conditions at the sewage plant. The addition of polymers to the initial treatment process, which has upgraded the effluent considerably, is being paid by Smigel.

He has said he will help finance any other necessary measures for improving the plant conditions until it is phased out and replaced by the new Hoffman-Rosner built plant.

In connection with the new plant, Smigel has agreed to oversizing his sewer mains and has pledged $45,000 for his share of the plant.

ORIGINALLY, THE new plant was planned for a 600,000-gallon a day capacity. In order to accommodate its immediate development, the village has decided a plant with an initial capacity of 800,000 was needed.

The pre-annexation agreement with Hoffman-Rosner stipulates the company will pay for and build a 600,000 gallon plant, so the village began soliciting additional funds from prospective developers who would need sewer service.

Smigel and others had pledged what they considered their share of the plant based on unit per gallon estimates.

A BIG FACTOR in the plant planning is the 181-acre Campanelli development. Tentative approval of the zoning for the project seemed to clear the way for concrete negotiations on the amount of front money to be advanced but Campanelli Inc. has not contacted Ralph F. Gross, village engineer and nothing specific has been discussed.

If Campanelli were to pledge some funds, the village would have been planning a starter plant of approximately 1 million gallons a day.

With Campanelli uncommitted, Gross has begun laying out plans for an 800,000-gallon plant with provision for expansion to a 2 million-gallon plant.

THE VILLAGE will pass a resolution agreeing to authorize Hoffman-Rosner to build the 800,000 gallon plant. As the pre-annexation agreement now stands, the firm can only build a 600,000 gallon plant.

Lowell Siff, Hoffman-Rosner vice-president, suggested his company handle the payments from the other developers instead of the village collecting the cost difference.

Siff's statement came during a committee meeting Wednesday. He said originally Hoffman-Rosner was to build a plant for which it would be reimbursed through tap-on fees. Now that the company is building a larger plant to be used by other developers the situation is not as simple.

SIFF SAID cost for 600,000 gallons worth of the plant would be paid by his company and the difference by the developers directly to the company, not to the village, because equipment and materials would be ordered by Hoffman-Rosner.

The exact means of payment will be discussed fully later along with the financing of the oversized trunk system outside Hoffman-Rosner's development.

Hoffman-Rosner also received permission to build a temporary 35,000 gallon plant to service its initial residents. The request by the company came when it was clear the 800,000 plant would not be ready for the first residents of Westlake early this spring.

The plant will be eliminated as soon as the 800,000 gallon plant is built. The expense of construction will be completely assumed by Hoffman-Rosner.

Mayors Seek Sewer Financing

How to finance a countywide sewage system is still the biggest problem facing the mayors and managers of DuPage County. At Wednesday's Mayors and Managers Conference, two methods of financing land acquisition for the project were proposed.

The first would allow for an all-county referendum which would be passed and paid for by the entire county while it was being used by only those municipalities which needed help.

AN ALTERNATE plan calls for dividing the county into water shed districts and allowing each such district to pass its own referendum according to need. The drawbacks to this proposal are that there is presently no legal power to divide the county into districts. Additional legislation would be needed before this plan could be put into effect.

A study to consider the two proposals has been undertaken by an 11-man committee composed of representatives of the mayors and managers conference and just acquired the 11th man, Roy W. Roush of the Downers Grove Sanitary District. Robert Palmer, city manager of Elmhurst, is the chairman of the committee.

It was also suggested at the meeting that a proposed five-man sanitary board for the county be expanded to include seven members. Permission for the formation of a five-man board was just recently received from the state. Wednesday night, the mayors and managers voted to return to the state to request legislation to enlarge the board.

ANOTHER consideration in the subject of a county-wide sewage system is the type of services which the county will offer. It was decided Wednesday that the county should offer wholesale sewer services only to municipalities and sanitary districts, not to private developers. It was the reasoning of the conference that if developers can obtain facilities readily from the county, they will not wish to annex to any of the villages in the vicinity.

A three-man subcommittee was also appointed to work out a formula for sewage plant acquisition. The formula is expected to answer the questions "How much should be paid to the villages for their facilities?" and "How much depreciation will there be?" The committee will try to propose a plan that is acceptable to all 31 municipalities in the county.

IN OTHER business, the mayors and managers were told that a county planner has been hired but his name will not be announced until later this year. An 11-man planning commission to work with him will be appointed by the first of next year.

The conference was addressed by each of the eight con-con candidates from the 39th and 40th districts. Each candidate was given five minutes to present his views and then a brief question and answer period followed.

Alan Randall, Bensenville Park District Director announced at Wednesday's park district meeting that plans for the annual Halloween party have been completed.

The festivities will begin with a bonfire at 6 p.m. Oct. 31 at Veterans Park. Refreshments including hot dogs and pop will be served free of charge. The judging of costumes will be at 6:30 p.m. with representatives of the VFW, the village and the Lions Club serving as judges.

Prizes for the best costumes will include four transistor radios and 20 $2 gift certificates.

A DANCE WILL BE in the evening from 7 to 10 p.m. with the band the "Jimi Cream." There will be no admission charge for the dance. A special Halloween committee will make phone calls at 10:30 to teens who have registered at the dance. Twenty $2 certificates will be given to those teens who are home at 10:30.

In other business, the board reviewed and approved an audit of White Pines Golf course and voted to return $1,796.11 to the general fund from the White Pines fund.

The reorganization of committees was also carried out with director Randall proposing courses which the committees should take. Under the responsibilities of the finance committee, he listed revision of the budget structure and accounting system and suggested that the committee work closely with the planning committee in the expenditure of the $175,000 which will be received for the recreation program. Commissioners Jack Shuster and Merle Hummel will serve on the finance committee.

THE SPECIAL FACILITIES committee will deal with the general improvement of White Pines, including the well system, the mens' locker room and the initiation of House Bill 927. Members of this committee are Donald Carroll and Bill Berde.

The purpose of the personnel committee is to review salary schedules and policy for staff on matters of sick leave and vacation time. The committee is also to study the need for additional park district personnel. Shuster and Berde comprise this committee.

The program committee will deal not only with facilities and programs offered by the park district, but those offered throughout the community by other organizations. Carroll and Robert Nicols are on this committee.

Federal Tour Visits Here

Flick Reedy Corp. in Bensenville was the only small manufacturing firm visited by a group of top-ranking officials of the United States government during a recent tour of the Chicago area.

The field trip was part of the Foreign Institute's Senior Seminar in Foreign Policy, a year long program of advanced studies in international affairs offered by the federal government.

The group of 25 toured the entire facility of the plant and were guests at a luncheon hosted by Frank Flick, president and co-founder of Flick Reedy. The firm is the world's largest manufacturer of machine-tool grade air and hydraulic power cylinders.

The plant was chosen to represent industry because of its program of employee and community relations.

Flick Reedy is a three-time winner of the Helms Award given by the National Industrial Recreation Association for its participation in community affairs.

The group's Chicago-area tour included trips to the Chicago Police Headquarters, the University of Chicago, Chicago Art Institute, Chicago Board of Trade, the Department of Development and Planning and was climaxed by an interview with Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

ANOTHER FUNCTION of the program committee is to begin plans for the recreation program which will go into effect in June.

A fifth committee, planning and facilities, will be in charge of classifying and taking an inventory of all park district equipment and in updating current facilities. They will also take into consideration future needs of the park district and work under a five-year acquisition plan. Nicols and Hummel are members of this committee.

In other business, the board directed Randall to meet Supt. Martin Zuckerman from Dist. 100 and Dist. 2 to work out a park-school agreement. The park district is interested in using the school's facilities for recreational planning.

Board members also made plans for a trip to Springfield Oct. 28 through 30 for the annual Conference of Illinois Association of Park Districts. The Illinois Association is one of the largest in the country.

Debbie and Carlos Reign for Weekend

Queen Debbie Larson and King Carlos Villareal will reign over tomorrow's homecoming festivities at Fenton High School. With the newly elected royalty will be their court of attendants representing each of the classes in the school. Senior attendant is Ola Machewski; junior, Nancy Vicari; sophomore, Edna Villareal, and freshman, Kathy Landahl.

Each attendant was elected by the boys in her class and the king and queen were elected by all the girls and boys in the school respectively.

The day's activities will begin with the judging of the floats in the Fenton parking lot from 9 to 10 a.m. The parade begins at Fenton at 10 a.m. and follows the traditional homecoming route. The parade will move from the school east on Grove to Mason, north on Mason to Green, east on Green to Center, north on Center to Main, west on Main to Addison, south on Addison to Green and west on Green to Fenton High School.

AFTER THE PARADE, the winners will be announced at the school and the winning floats will remain near the field during the football game.

The frosh-soph game begins at noon, the varsity game at 2.

One part of homecoming which will be missed by many this year is the marching band. The band had to be cut out of the music program as part of the overall curtailment of all activities. In its place, a pep band will provide music at half-time of the varsity game.

Also at half-time the king, queen and their court will be presented to their subjects.

The dance which will culminate the evening will be held Saturday from 8 to 11 p.m. Last year's queen and king, Judy Wright and John Geils, will be present at the dance to crown the new king and queen.

THEME FOR the dance is "The Dawning of Aquarius" and the band will be the REO Speedwagon. Tickets range in price from $1.75 for a couple with one alumni and one student with an activity ticket to $3.75 for a couple which has no activity cards.

Firemen Celebrate 75th Year Sunday

Bensenville firemen will celebrate the 75th anniversary of their force this Sunday with a full day of activities.

A pancake breakfast, served by the Firemen's Ladies Auxiliary, will begin at 9 a.m. and continue through 11:30 at the fire hall. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

The breakfast will be followed by a parade at noon with more than 50 trucks participating from all over the northwest suburbs.

A program, which will include presentations for the best posters made by children celebrating Fire Prevention Week, will be at the reviewing stand at 15 N. York Road at 1 p.m. Village President Varble will give the welcoming address.

Steaks will be served at the firehouse from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. A dance will begin at 7 p.m. and the dinner is $2. Tickets for the dance are

THIS ARCHITECT'S conception of the Roselle Community Swimming Pool is part of a park development which should be available by June, 1970. Gaasrud Construction will begin installation of the recreation complex on Monday. The entire project will include a baseball diamond, play areas, tennis courts and an ice skating rink.

Park Contract Is Signed

The contract for the installation of a recreation complex in Roselle's Community Park was signed by the Roselle Park District Wednesday night.

The project includes a swimming pool complex, a baseball diamond, play areas, two tennis courts and a built-up area which can be flooded to form an ice skating rink.

C. W. Gaasrud General Contractors, Inc., of Park Ridge was the low bidder on the project. The original bid was $310,000, but subsequent trimming of the budget set the price at $307,200. The park district is now negotiating with sub-contractors to lower the cost even more.

Roselle Park Director Paul Derda presented the contract to Gaasrud Construction. The attorney for the development, Ralph H. Burke of Park Ridge, witnessed the signing.

DERDA SAID he was delighted to find that Gaasrud was the low bidder for the job. Gaasrud has recently completed a similar installation, including a swimming pool complex, for Elk Grove Village.

The recreation complex will be located on a 10-acre site off Prospect and Walnut in Roselle. The property adjoins the new Roselle Junior high school. Derda said he hopes to arrange reciprocal benefits for the two institutions — the junior high will be able to use park sports facilities and the park can use junior high buildings for winter and night time activities.

Construction begins Oct. 20 and should last for 240 or 250 days. Derda said he hopes to have the pool filled with water by June. Park officials will hold a groundbreaking ceremony at 9 a.m. Monday.

Village Beat

Syd Jamieson

It has been said that children live in fantasy land when they are very young and as they grow to adulthood they become for the most part realists. Often the younger dreams are shattered and torn away by the world in which we live.

When I was a kid I wanted to be a railroad engineer or a fireman or a captain of a ship. I even had hopes of being other things like a street car conductor or a famous ball player.

I LIVED THROUGH the depression when oatmeal and soup were all we had to eat three times a day and glad to get it.

As I grew older I caddied for 55 cents for 18 holes and shined shoes in a barber shop at 10 cents a shine and 75 cents for cleaning up the place on Saturday night.

If I was lucky I got a job for $9 a week and gave most of that to my mom and dad to pay for my keep.

If I lived in a slum or blighted area I didn't know it at the time; it was home and we made the best of it.

I was lucky enough to receive a $100 scholarship for sports when I went to college and was thankful I was able to drive a truck under the old National Youth Administration (NYA) for 35 cents an hour.

I don't remember hippies, yuppies or whatever you called them, but I do remember the poor kids and the hobos along the railroad and Rockefeller giving out dimes from a bag in New York City.

WHEN I ATTENDED grade school the teacher slapped your face if you had it coming or the principal pulled out that big leather strap to whack you when the occasion warranted such action.

It's no secret times have changed, and I guess such discipline in the schools has gone and past.

But now we hear of drug addiction, vandalism, rock-throwing and rioting. Maybe it is the "generation gap," but I would venture to say that such activities are with the minority of those enrolled in our nation's schools.

A pretty substantial bit of our taxes go to our schools so I would say we have a real big stake in how our tax dollar is spent.

School officials realize this investment as they too contribute like any other taxpayer.

MOST PARENTS are deeply concerned about their children's education and rightfully so. We put a lot of faith in our local school systems and the teachers who provide this education.

When we hear or witness what's happening in our schools and higher education today, we shake our heads and wonder what it is all about.

Then we hear of the good things which tend to overshadow that which we do not like to remember, but the bad things still keep cropping up and we cannot forget that it could and may be happening in suburbia.

I wonder if the children in the elementary schools are aware of these things. I hope not, for the future will depend on how well we mold their environment.

A STERN PAUL Ahlrich, Bloomingdale Trustee, warns Trustee Ralph Johnston an arbitrary policy of adjustment of bills is "heading for trouble."

Flooding Relief's In View

Water-logged citizens of Bloomingdale's Suncroft unit four may have some relief with the possibility of a new storm sewer for their neighborhood.

Village engineer Ralph F. Gross presented a proposal to the board at Wednesday night's committee meeting requesting authorization to build a storm sewer for the area that would drain directly into the lake to the east of the homes.

Unit four is north of Lake Street and east of Circle Avenue. Poor grading, illegal connections of storm sewers to sanitary sewers and heavy rains have added up to wet streets and concerned citizens.

There have been two meetings between the citizens and the village to discuss installing storm sewers in their flooded backyards. Even as these discussions have progressed, the storm sewer servicing the area has proved inadequate to drain the streets of the neighborhood.

In order to facilitate drainage of Pleasant and Prairie avenues, the streets hit hardest whenever a big rain occurs, Gross has suggested the village build a new storm sewer for the area.

The sewer will be a necessary first step in solving the backyard flooding, providing the water from the yards with an adequate outlet.

The exact extent and location of the sewer has not been planned, but Gross indicated it will be designed to allow residents easy access if and when they build storm sewers of drainage ditches along their yards.

Gross suggested the village use money from the motor fuel tax fund for the project which will cost about $6,000. Trustee Paul Ahlrich said the money should come from another fund and then be transferred back to the fund from the motor fuel fund.

Ahlrich said whenever projects are financed directly by the motor fuel fund, companies have a tendency to bid higher. He said he was in agreement with the need for the project, but thought a different method should be used to finance it.

The board instructed Gross to draw up specifications and estimate a cost for the sewers for presentation at the next board meeting.

Two Bids Accepted For Sewer Building

The Roselle Village Board voted to accept the two low bids on construction projects for the village's sewage system, pending location of funds for the developments.

Keno and Sons Construction of Hyde Park bid $14,439 for an extension to Roselle's sewage treatment plant. The village engineer had estimated the cost of the job at $14,600.

Clyde Walbur Plumbing Co. bid $18,500 for laying new water lines. The job had been estimated at $14,500, but the Lincoln Street addition to the plans ran the estimate to $17,500.

The contracts will be signed and the work started as soon as the village straightens out the construction funds deficit caused by improvements in Turner Park.

Bill Woes Evaporate

Insinuations of intended irregularities in Bloomingdale's water bill account evaporated or were at least temporarily subdued Wednesday night as more explanations concerning the LoPresti water bill were made known.

The committee meeting was scheduled to discuss the feasibility of an audit of the water books to determine who had not paid water bills.

Trustees Paul Ahlrich and Wallace Geils, originally introduced the subject of an audit, wanting specifically to discuss the LoPresti bill which they alleged had been written off by Trustee Ralph Johnston, chairman of the sewer and water committee.

MRS. FORTUNE LoPresti's bill had been originally questioned by Ahlrich and Geils because she had been recommended by Village Pres. Robert Meyers for the position of clerk which has been vacant since July.

During the committee meeting Johnston contended he had not "written off the bill but adjusted it." Later it was learned Johnston had reviewed the LoPresti account and instructed the village deputy clerk, Kay Funk to adjust the bill by $10.

The LoPresti's had a running balance on their bill of $56.93. This amount came from two separate billings, one in February and one last October, both of which, the LoPresti's contended were due to over registering meters.

AFTER JOHNSTON reviewed the account he decided to reduce the balance by $10 and close the issue.

Through a general misunderstanding and lack of communication between Johnston and Mrs. Funk, the $56.93 amount was completely eliminated from the books.

Johnston told the Register he was under the impression LoPresti had paid the $56.93. When the accusations were being hurled, "nobody came to ask me what happened or how the matter was handled," he said.

"When I said I didn't owe the village money, I didn't," Mrs. LoPresti said. "How could I have, I had not been billed for the $56.93. It's pretty clear that I'll be billed and have to pay the village the money," she added.

JOHNSTON AND Ahlrich both indicated their intention to bill Mrs. LoPresti and collect. The two will also review the books to determine if other citizens should be billed that have not been.

Ahlrich, however said, he felt Mrs. LoPresti should be billed the full amount because the claims of an over registering meter were not proven.

During the meeting, he denounced the method Johnston used to adjust the bill, asking on whose authority he did so. Johnston replied he had consulted with Village

Atty. Jack Wagborne who said an adjustment was in order.

To avoid future arbitrary adjustments of billings, the board voted to pass a resolution setting strict procedures on complaints of over registering meters.

FROM NOW ON, citizens complaining of irregular readings will have their meter removed and replaced. The old meter will be sent to the manufacturer for tests. If it is faulty, a minimum billing will be issued. If it is operative, the citizen will have to pay the contended bill.

After the meeting, Ahlrich said he was satisfied with the results because the measures taken by the board, "stopped this thing from snowballing into something that would be unmanageable."

Smigel Wins Court Nod Against Board

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Victor Smigel, developer of an apartment complex at Lake Street and Euclid Avenue in Bloomingdale, has won a lawsuit against the village which will enable him to complete his buildings and receive sewer and water service.

In a decision handed down Tuesday, Judge William Guild of the DuPage County Circuit Court issued a writ of mandamus instructing the village to issue 13 building permits to Smigel and to allow Smigel to tap on to the appropriate sewer lines.

SMIGEL RECEIVED nine permits for the six-unit buildings now on Lake Street but had not received 13 permits for proposed buildings which will extend the project to Glen Ellyn Road. The 22 permits were applied for last April.

The village has been expecting the decision. It had refused to issue building permits to Smigel, contending it did not have adequate sewer facilities. Smigel will connect on to the sewage treatment plant which the Illinois State Sanitary Water Board has scheduled for eventual phase-out, declaring it inadequate for proper treatment of effluent.

The village would not issue permits because of the sanitary water board order, but previous R-3 zoning of the land made the village liable, by implying it could provide proper water and sewage facilities.

SMIGEL HAS cooperated with the village in trying to improve conditions at the sewage plant. The addition of polymers to the initial treatment process, which has upgraded the effluent considerably, is being paid by Smigel.

He has said he will help finance any other necessary measures for improving the plant conditions until it is phased out and replaced by the new Hoffman-Rosner built plant.

In connection with the new plant, Smigel has agreed to oversizing his sewer mains and has pledged $45,000 for his share of the plant.

ORIGINALLY, THE new plant was planned for a 600,000-gallon a day capacity. In order to accommodate its immediate development, the village has decided a plant with an initial capacity of 800,000 was needed.

The pre-annexation agreement with Hoffman-Rosner stipulates the company will pay for and build a 600,000 gallon plant, so the village began soliciting additional funds from prospective developers who would need sewer service.

Smigel and others had pledged what they considered their share of the plant based on unit per gallon estimates.

A BIG FACTOR in the plant planning is the 181-acre Campanelli development. Tentative approval of the zoning for the project seemed to clear the way for concrete negotiations on the amount of front money to be advanced but Campanelli Inc. has not contacted Ralph F. Gross, village engineer and nothing specific has been discussed.

If Campanelli were to pledge some funds, the village would have been planning a starter plant of approximately 1 million gallons a day.

With Campanelli uncommitted, Gross has begun laying out plans for an 800,000-gallon plant with provision for expansion to a 2 million-gallon plant.

THE VILLAGE will pass a resolution agreeing to authorize Hoffman-Rosner to build the 800,000 gallon plant. As the pre-annexation agreement now stands, the firm can only build a 600,000 gallon plant.

Lowell Siff, Hoffman-Rosner vice-president, suggested his company handle the payments from the other developers instead of the village collecting the cost difference.

Siff's statement came during a committee meeting Wednesday. He said originally Hoffman-Rosner was to build a plant for which it would be reimbursed through tap-on fees. Now that the company is building a larger plant to be used by other developers the situation is not as simple.

SIFF SAID cost for 600,000 gallons worth of the plant would be paid by his company and the difference by the developers directly to the company, not to the village, because equipment and materials would be ordered by Hoffman-Rosner.

The exact means of payment will be discussed fully later along with the financing of the oversized trunk system outside Hoffman-Rosner's development.

Hoffman-Rosner also received permission to build a temporary 35,000 gallon plant to service its initial residents. The request by the company came when it was clear the 800,000 plant would not be ready for the first residents of Westlake early this spring.

The plant will be eliminated as soon as the 800,000 gallon plant is built. The expense of construction will be completely assumed by Hoffman-Rosner.

Mayors Seek Sewer Financing

How to finance a countywide sewage system is still the biggest problem facing the mayors and managers of DuPage County. At Wednesday's Mayors and Managers Conference, two methods of financing land acquisition for the project were proposed.

The first would allow for an all-county referendum which would be passed and paid for by the entire county while it was being used by only those municipalities which needed help.

AN ALTERNATE plan calls for dividing the county into water shed districts and allowing each such district to pass its own referendum according to need. The drawbacks to this proposal are that there is presently no legal power to divide the county into districts. Additional legislation would be needed before this plan could be put into effect.

A study to consider the two proposals has been undertaken by an 11-man committee composed of representatives of the mayors and managers conference and just acquired the 11th man, Roy W. Roush of the Downers Grove Sanitary District. Robert Palmer, city manager of Elmhurst, is the chairman of the committee.

It was also suggested at the meeting that a proposed five-man sanitary board for the county be expanded to include seven members. Permission for the formation of a five-man board was just recently received from the state. Wednesday night, the mayors and managers voted to return to the state to request legislation to enlarge the board.

ANOTHER consideration in the subject of a county-wide sewage system is the type of services which the county will offer. It was decided Wednesday that the county should offer wholesale sewer services only to municipalities and sanitary districts, not to private developers. It was the reasoning of the conference that if developers can obtain facilities readily from the county, they will not wish to annex to any of the villages in the vicinity.

A three-man subcommittee was also appointed to work out a formula for sewage plant acquisition. The formula is expected to answer the questions "How much should be paid to the villages for their facilities?" and "How much depreciation will there be?" The committee will try to propose a plan that is acceptable to all 31 municipalities in the county.

IN OTHER business, the mayors and managers were told that a county planner has been hired but his name will not be announced until later this year. An 11-man planning commission to work with him will be appointed by the first of next year.

The conference was addressed by each of the eight con-con candidates from the 39th and 40th districts. Each candidate was given five minutes to present his views and then a brief question and answer period followed.

Halloween Plans Complete

Alan Randall, Bensenville Park District Director announced at Wednesday's park district meeting that plans for the annual Halloween party have been completed.

The festivities will begin with a bonfire at 6 p.m. Oct. 31 at Veterans Park. Refreshments including hot dogs and pop will be served free of charge. The judging of costumes will be at 6:30 p.m. with representatives of the VFW, the village and the Lions Club serving as judges.

Prizes for the best costumes will include four transistor radios and 20 $2 gift certificates.

A DANCE WILL BE in the evening from 7 to 10 p.m. with the band the "Jimi Cream." There will be no admission charge for the dance. A special Halloween committee will make phone calls at 10:30 to teens who have registered at the dance. Twenty $2 certificates will be given to those teens who are home at 10:30.

In other business, the board reviewed and approved an audit of White Pines Golf course and voted to return $1,796.11 to the general fund from the White Pines fund.

The reorganization of committees was also carried out with director Randall proposing courses which the committees should take. Under the responsibilities of the finance committee, he listed revision of the budget structure and accounting system and suggested that the committee work closely with the planning committee in the expenditure of the $175,000 which will be received for the recreation program. Commissioners Jack Shuster and Merle Hummel will serve on the finance committee.

THE SPECIAL FACILITIES committee will deal with the general improvement of White Pines, including the well system, the mens' locker room and the initiation of House Bill 927. Members of this committee are Donald Carroll and Bill Berde.

The purpose of the personnel committee is to review salary schedules and policy for staff on matters of sick leave and vacation time. The committee is also to study the need for additional park district personnel. Shuster and Berde comprise this committee.

The program committee will deal not only with facilities and programs offered by the park district, but those offered throughout the community by other organizations. Carroll and Robert Nicols are on this committee.

Federal Tour Visits Here

Flick Reedy Corp. in Bensenville was the only small manufacturing firm visited by a group of top-ranking officials of the United States government during a recent tour of the Chicago area.

The field trip was part of the Foreign Institute's Senior Seminar in Foreign Policy, a year long program of advanced studies in international affairs offered by the federal government.

The group of 25 toured the entire facility of the plant and were guests at a luncheon hosted by Frank Flick, president and co-founder of Flick-Reedy. The firm is the world's largest manufacturer of machine-tool grade air and hydraulic power cylinders.

The plant was chosen to represent industry because of its program of employee and community relations.

Flick-Reedy is a three-time winner of the Helms Award given by the National Industrial Recreation Association for its participation in community affairs.

The group's Chicago-area tour included trips to the Chicago Police Headquarters, the University of Chicago, Chicago Art Institute, Chicago Board of Trade, the Department of Development and Planning and was climaxed by an interview with Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

ANOTHER FUNCTION of the program committee is to begin plans for the recreation program which will go into effect in June.

A fifth committee, planning and facilities, will be in charge of classifying and taking an inventory of all park district equipment and in updating current facilities. They will also take into consideration future needs of the park district and work under a five-year acquisition plan. Nicols and Hummel are members of this committee.

In other business, the board directed Randall to meet Supt. Martin Zuckerman from Dist. 100 and Dist. 2 to work out a park-school agreement. The park district is interested in using the school's facilities for recreational planning.

Board members also made plans for a trip to Springfield Oct. 23 through 30 for the annual Conference of Illinois Association of Park Districts. The Illinois Association is one of the largest in the country.

A pancake breakfast, served by the Firemen's Ladies Auxiliary, will begin at 9 a.m. and continue through 11:30 at the fire hall. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

The breakfast will be followed by a parade at noon with more than 50 trucks participating from all over the northwest suburbs.

A program, which will include presentations for the best posters made by children celebrating Fire Prevention Week, will be at the reviewing stand at 15 N. York Road at 1 p.m. Village Pres. John Varble will give the welcoming address.

Steaks will be fried at the firehouse from noon until 5 p.m. and a dance will begin at 7 p.m. Cost of the dinner is $2; tickets for the dance are $1.

THIS ARCHITECT'S conception of the Roselle Community Swimming Pool is part of a park development which should be available by June, 1970. Gaasrud Construction will begin installation of the recreation complex on Monday. The entire project will include a baseball diamond, play areas, tennis courts and an ice skating rink.

Park Contract Is Signed

The contract for the installation of a recreation complex in Roselle's Community Park was signed by the Roselle Park District Wednesday night.

The project includes a swimming pool complex, a baseball diamond, play areas, two tennis courts and a built-up area which can be flooded to form an ice skating rink.

C. W. Gaasrud General Contractor's, Inc., of Park Ridge was the low bidder on the project. The original bid was $310,000, but subsequent trimming of the budget set the price at $307,300. The park district is now negotiating with sub-contractors to lower the cost even more.

Roselle Park Director Paul Derda presented the contract to Gaasrud Construction. The attorney for the development, Ralph H. Burke of Park Ridge, witnessed the signing.

DERDA SAID he was delighted to find that Gaasrud was the low bidder for the job. Gaasrud has recently completed a similar installation, including a swimming pool complex, for Elk Grove Village.

The recreation complex will be located on a 10-acre site off Prospect and Walnut in Roselle. The property adjoins the new Roselle junior high school. Derda said he hopes to arrange reciprocal benefits for the two institutions — the junior high will be able to use park sports facilities and the park can use junior high buildings for winter and night time activities.

Construction begins Oct. 20 and should last for 240 or 250 days. Derda said he hopes to have the pool filled with water by June. Park officials will hold a groundbreaking ceremony at 9 a.m. Monday.

Village Beat

Syd Jamieson

It has been said that children live in fantasy land when they are very young and as they grow to adulthood they become for the most part realists. Often the younger dreams are shattered and torn away by the world in which we live.

When I was a kid I wanted to be a railroad engineer or a fireman or a captain of a ship. I even had hopes of being other things like a street car conductor or a famous ball player.

I LIVED THROUGH the depression when oatmeal and soup were all we had to eat three times a day and glad to get it.

As I grew older I caddled for 55 cents for 18 holes and shined shoes in a barber shop at 10 cents a shine and 75 cents for cleaning up the place on Saturday night.

If I was lucky I got a job for $9 a week and gave most of that to my mom and dad to pay for my keep.

If I lived in a slum or blighted area I didn't know it at the time; it was home and we made the best of it.

I was lucky enough to receive a $100 scholarship for sports when I went to college and was thankful I was able to drive a truck under the old National Youth Administration (NYA) for 35 cents an hour.

I don't remember hippies, yuppies or whatever you called them, but I do remember the poor kids and the hobos along the railroad and Rockefeller giving out dimes from a bag in New York City.

WHEN I ATTENDED grade school the teacher slapped your face if you had it coming or the principal pulled out that big leather strap to whack you when the occasion warranted such action.

It's no secret times have changed, and I guess such discipline in the schools has gone and past.

But now we hear of drug addiction, vandalism, rock-throwing and rioting. Maybe it is the "generation gap," but I would venture to say that such activities are with the minority of those enrolled in our nation's schools.

A pretty substantial bit of our taxes go to our schools so I would say we have a real big stake in how our tax dollar is spent.

School officials realize this investment as they too contribute like any other taxpayer.

MOST PARENTS are deeply concerned about their children's education and rightfully so. We put a lot of faith in our local school systems and the teachers who provide this education.

When we hear or witness what's happening in our schools and higher education today, we shake our heads and wonder what it is all about.

Then we hear of the good things which tend to overshadow that which we do not like to remember, but the bad things still keep cropping up and we cannot forget that it could and may be happening in suburbia.

I wonder if the children in the elementary schools are aware of these things. I hope not, for the future will depend on how well we mold their environment.

A STERN PAUL Ahlrich, Bloomingdale Trustee, warns Trustee Ralph Johnston an arbitrary policy of adjustment of bills is "heading for trouble."

Flooding Relief's In View

Water-logged citizens of Bloomingdale's Suncrest unit four may have some relief with the possibility of a new storm sewer for their neighborhood.

Village engineer Ralph F. Gross presented a proposal to the board at Wednesday night's committee meeting requesting authorization to build a storm sewer for the area that would drain directly into the lake to the east of the homes.

Unit four is north of Lake Street and east of Circle Avenue. Poor grading, illegal connections of storm sewers to sanitary sewers and heavy rains have added to wet streets and concerned citizens.

There have been two meetings between the citizens and the village to discuss installing storm sewers in their flooded backyards. Even as these discussions have progressed, the storm sewer servicing the area has proved inadequate to drain the streets of the neighborhood.

In order to facilitate drainage of Pleasant and Prairie avenues, the streets hit hardest whenever a big rain occurs, Gross has suggested the village build a new storm sewer for the area.

The sewer will be a necessary first step in solving the backyard flooding, providing the water from the yards with an adequate outlet.

The exact extent and location of the sewer has not been planned, but Gross indicated it will be designed to allow residents easy access if and when they build storm sewers of drainage ditches along their yards.

Gross suggested the village use money from the motor fuel tax fund for the project which will cost about $6,000. Trustee Paul Ahlrich said the money should come from another fund and then be transferred back to the fund from the motor fuel fund.

Ahlrich said whenever projects are financed directly by the motor fuel fund, companies have a tendency to bid higher. He said he was in agreement with the need for the project, but thought a different method should be used to finance it.

The board instructed Gross to draw up specifications and estimate a cost for the sewers for presentation at the next board meeting.

Two Bids Accepted For Sewer Building

The Roselle Village Board voted to accept the two low bids on construction projects for the village's sewage system, pending location of funds for the developments.

Keno and Sons Construction of Hyde Park bid $14,439 for an extension to Roselle's sewage treatment plant. The village engineer had estimated the cost of the job at $14,600.

Clyde Wilbur Plumbing Co. bid $18,500 for laying new water lines. The job had been estimated at $14,500, but the Lincoln Street addition to the plans ran the estimate to $17,500.

The contracts will be signed and the work started as soon as the village straightens out the construction funds deficit caused by improvements in Turner Park.

Bill Woes Evaporate

Insinuations of intended irregularities in Bloomingdale's water bill account evaporated or were at least temporarily subdued Wednesday night as more explanations concerning the LoPresti water bill were made known.

The committee meeting was scheduled to discuss the feasibility of an audit of the water books to determine who had not paid water bills.

Trustees Paul Ahlrich and Wallace Geils, originally introduced the subject of an audit, wanting specifically to discuss the LoPresti bill which they alleged had been written off by Trustee Ralph Johnston, chairman of the sewer and water committee.

MRS. FORTUNE LoPresti's bill had been originally questioned by Ahlrich and Geils because she had been recommended by Village Pres. Robert Meyers for the position of clerk which has been vacant since July.

During the committee meeting Johnston contended he had not "written off the bill but adjusted it." Later it was learned Johnston had reviewed the LoPresti account and instructed the village deputy clerk, Kay Funk to adjust the bill by $10.

The LoPresti's had a running balance on their bill of $56.93. This amount came from two separate billings, one in February and one last October, both of which, the LoPresti's contended were due to over registering meters.

AFTER JOHNSTON reviewed the account he decided to reduce the balance by $10 and close the issue.

Through a general misunderstanding and lack of communication between Johnston and Mrs. Funk, the $56.93 amount was completely eliminated from the books.

Johnston told the Register he was under the impression LoPresti had paid the $46.93. When the accusations were being hurled, "nobody came to ask me what happened or how the matter was handled," he said.

"When I said I didn't owe the village money, I didn't," Mrs. LoPresti said. "How could I have, I had not been billed for the $56.93. It's pretty clear that I'll be billed and have to pay the village the money," she added.

JOHNSTON AND Ahlrich both indicated their intention to bill Mrs. LoPresti and collect. The two will also review the books to determine if other citizens should be billed that have not been.

Ahlrich, however said he felt Mrs. LoPresti should be billed the full amount because the claims of an over registering meter were not proven.

During the meeting, he denounced the method Johnston used to adjust the bill, asking on whose authority he did so. Johnston replied he had consulted with Village

Atty. Jack Wagborne who said an adjustment was in order.

To avoid future arbitrary adjustments of billings, the board voted to pass a resolution setting strict procedures on complaints of over registering meters.

FROM NOW ON, citizens complaining of irregular readings will have their meter removed and replaced. The old meter will be sent to the manufacture for tests. If it is faulty, a minimum billing will be issued. If it is operative, the citizen will have to pay the contended bill.

After the meeting, Ahlrich said he was satisfied with the results because the measures taken by the board, "stopped this thing from snowballing into something that would be unmanageable."

Smigel Wins Court Nod Against Board

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Victor Smigel, developer of an apartment complex at Lake Street and Euclid Avenue in Bloomingdale, has won a lawsuit against the village which will enable him to complete his buildings and receive sewer and water service.

In a decision handed down Tuesday, Judge William Guild of the DuPage County Circuit Court issued a writ of mandamus instructing the village to issue 13 building permits to Smigel and to allow Smigel to tap on to the appropriate sewer lines.

SMIGEL RECEIVED nine permits for the six-unit buildings now on Lake Street but had not received 13 permits for proposed buildings which will extend the project to Glen Ellyn Road. The 22 permits were applied for last April.

The village has been expecting the decision. It had refused to issue building permits to Smigel, contending it did not have adequate sewer facilities. Smigel will connect on to the sewage treatment plant which the Illinois State Sanitary Water Board has scheduled for eventual phase-out, declaring it inadequate for proper treatment of effluent.

The village would not issue permits because of the sanitary water board order, but previous R-3 zoning of the land made the village liable, by implying it could provide proper water and sewage facilities.

SMIGEL HAS cooperated with the village in trying to improve conditions at the sewage plant. The addition of polymers to the initial treatment process, which has upgraded the effluent considerably, is being paid by Smigel.

He has said he will help finance any other necessary measures for improving the plant conditions until it is phased out and replaced by the new Hoffman-Rosner built plant.

In connection with the new plant, Smigel has agreed to oversizing his sewer mains and has pledged $45,000 for his share of the plant.

ORIGINALLY, THE new plant was planned for a 600,000-gallon a day capacity. In order to accommodate its immediate development, the village has decided a plant with an initial capacity of 800,000 was needed.

The pre-annexation agreement with Hoffman-Rosner stipulates the company will pay for and build a 600,000-gallon plant, so the village began soliciting additional funds from prospective developers who would need sewer service.

Smigel and others had pledged what they considered their share of the plant based on unit per gallon estimates.

A BIG FACTOR in the plant planning is the 181-acre Campanelli development. Tentative approval of the zoning for the project seemed to clear the way for concrete negotiations on the amount of front money to be advanced but Campanelli Inc. has not contacted Ralph F. Gross, village engineer and nothing specific has been discussed.

If Campanelli were to pledge some funds, the village would have been planning a starter plant of approximately 1 million gallons a day.

With Campanelli uncommitted, Gross has begun laying out plans for an 800,000-gallon plant with provision for expansion to a 2 million-gallon plant.

THE VILLAGE will pass a resolution agreeing to authorize Hoffman-Rosner to build the 800,000 gallon plant. As the pre-annexation agreement now stands, the firm can only build a 600,000 gallon plant.

Lowell Siff, Hoffman-Rosner vice-president, suggested his company handle the payments from the other developers instead of the village collecting the cost difference.

Siff's statement came during a committee meeting Wednesday. He said originally Hoffman-Rosner was to build a plant for which it would be reimbursed through tap-on fees. Now that the company is building a larger plant to be used by other developers the situation is not as simple.

SIFF SAID cost for 600,000 gallons worth of the plant would be paid by his company and the difference by the developers directly to the company, not to the village, because equipment and materials would be ordered by Hoffman-Rosner.

The exact means of payment will be discussed fully later along with the financing of the oversized trunk system outside Hoffman-Rosner's development.

Hoffman-Rosner also received permission to build a temporary 35,000 gallon plant to service its initial residents. The request by the company came when it was clear the 800,000 plant would not be ready for the first residents of Westlake early this spring.

The plant will be eliminated as soon as the 800,000 gallon plant is built. The expense of construction will be completely assumed by Hoffman-Rosner.

Mayors Seek Sewer Financing

How to finance a countywide sewage system is still the biggest problem facing the mayors and managers of DuPage County. At Wednesday's Mayors and Managers Conference, two methods of financing land acquisition for the project were proposed.

The first would allow for an all-county referendum which would be passed and paid for by the entire county while it was being used by only those municipalities which needed help.

AN ALTERNATE plan calls for dividing the county into water shed districts and allowing each such district to pass its own referendum according to need. The drawbacks to this proposal are that there is presently no legal power to divide the county into districts. Additional legislation would be needed before this plan could be put into effect.

A study to consider the two proposals has been undertaken by an 11-man committee composed of representatives of the mayors and managers conference and just acquired the 11th man, Roy W. Roush of the Downers Grove Sanitary District. Robert Palmer, city manager of Elmhurst, is the chairman of the committee.

It was also suggested at the meeting that a proposed five-man sanitary board for the county be expanded to include seven members. Permission for the formation of a five-man board was just recently received from the state. Wednesday night, the mayors and managers voted to return to the state to request legislation to enlarge the board.

ANOTHER consideration in the subject of a countywide sewage system is the type of services which the county will offer. It was decided Wednesday that the county should offer wholesale sewer services only to municipalities and sanitary districts, not to private developers. It was the reasoning of the conference that if developers can obtain facilities readily from the county, they will not wish to annex to any of the villages in the vicinity.

A three-man subcommittee was also appointed to work out a formula for sewage plant acquisition. The formula is expected to answer the questions "How much should be paid to the villages for their facilities?" and "How much depreciation will there be?" The committee will try to propose a plan that is acceptable to all 31 municipalities in the county.

IN OTHER business, the mayors and managers were told that a county planner has been hired but his name will not be announced until later this year. An 11-man planning commission to work with him will be appointed by the first of next year.

The conference was addressed by each of the eight con-con candidates from the 29th and 40th districts. Each candidate was given five minutes to present his views and then a brief question and answer period followed.

BLOOMINGDALE VILLAGE Atty. Jack Wagborne, left, and Village Pres. Robert Meyers, center, discuss the financing of the sewage trunk system to be built by the Hoffman-Rosner Corp. as Village Engineer Ralph F. Gross scans the layout for Westlake. The lines will eventually lead to an 800,000-gallon sewage treatment plant, located at the south boundary of the Hoffman-Rosner development.

Halloween Plans Complete

Alan Randall, Bensenville Park District Director announced at Wednesday's park district meeting that plans for the annual Halloween party have been completed.

The festivities will begin with a bonfire at 6 p.m. Oct. 31 at Veterans Park. Refreshments including hot dogs and pop will be served free of charge. The judging of costumes will be at 8:30 p.m. with representatives of the VFW, the village and the Lions Club serving as judges.

Prizes for the best costumes will include four transistor radios and 20 $2 gift certificates.

A DANCE WILL BE in the evening from 7 to 10 p.m. with the band the "Jimi Cream." There will be no admission charge for the dance. A special Halloween committee will make phone calls at 10:30 to teens who have registered at the dance. Twenty $2 certificates will be given to those teens who are home at 10:30.

In other business, the board reviewed and approved an audit of White Pines Golf course and voted to return $1,796.11 to the general fund from the White Pines fund.

The reorganization of committees was also carried out with director Randall proposing courses which the committees should take. Under the responsibilities of the finance committee, he listed revision of the budget structure and accounting system and suggested that the committee work closely with the planning committee in the expenditure of the $175,000 which will be received for the recreation program. Commissioners Jack Shuster and Merle Hummel will serve on the finance committee.

THE SPECIAL FACILITIES committee will deal with the general improvement of White Pines, including the well system, the men's locker room and the initiation of House Bill 927. Members of this committee are Donald Carroll and Bill Berde.

The purpose of the personnel committee is to review salary schedules and policy for staff on matters of sick leave and vacation time. The committee is also to study the need for additional park district personnel. Shuster and Berde comprise this committee.

The program committee will deal not only with facilities and programs offered by the park district but those offered throughout the community by other organizations. Carroll and Robert Nicols are on this committee.

Federal Tour Visits Here

Flick Reedy Corp. in Bensenville was the only small manufacturing firm visited by a group of top-ranking officials of the United States government during a recent tour of the Chicago area.

The field trip was part of the Foreign Institute's Senior Seminar in Foreign Policy, a year-long program of advanced studies in international affairs offered by the federal government.

The group of 25 toured the entire facility of the plant and were guests at a luncheon hosted by Frank Flick, president and co-founder of Flick-Reedy. The firm is the world's largest manufacturer of machine-tool grade air and hydraulic power cylinders.

The plant was chosen to represent industry because of its program of employee and community relations.

Flick-Reedy is a three-time winner of the Helms Award given by the National Industrial Recreation Association for its participation in community affairs.

The group's Chicago-area tour included trips to the Chicago Police Headquarters, the University of Chicago, Chicago Art Institute, Chicago Board of Trade, the Department of Development and Planning and was climaxed by an interview with Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

ANOTHER FUNCTION of the program committee is to begin plans for the recreation program which will go into effect in June.

A fifth committee, planning and facilities, will be in charge of classifying and taking an inventory of all park district equipment and in updating current facilities. They will also take into consideration future needs of the park district and work under a five-year acquisition plan. Nicols and Hummel are members of this committee.

In other business, the board directed Randall to meet Supt. Martin Zuckerman from Dist. 100 and Dist. 2 to work out a park-school agreement. The park district is interested in using the school's facilities for recreational planning.

Board members also made plans for a trip to Springfield Oct. 28 through 30 for the annual Conference of Illinois Association of Park Districts. The Illinois Association is one of the largest in the country.

Debbie and Carlos Reign for Weekend

Queen Debbie Larson and King Carlos Villareal will reign over tomorrow's homecoming festivities at Fenton High School. With the newly elected royalty will be their court of attendants representing each of the classes in the school. Senior attendant is Ola Machowski; junior, Nancy Vicari; sophomore, Edna Villareal; and freshman, Kathy Landahl.

Each attendant was elected by the boys in her class and the king and queen were elected by all the girls and boys in the school respectively.

The day's activities will begin with the judging of the floats in the Fenton parking lot from 9 to 10 a.m. The parade begins at Fenton at 10 a.m. and follows the traditional homecoming route. The parade will move from the school east on Grove to Mason, north on Mason to Green, east on Green to Center, north on Center to Main, west on Main to Addison, south on Addison to Green, and west on Green to Fenton High School.

AFTER THE PARADE, the winners will be announced at the school and the winning floats will remain near the field during the football game.

The frosh-soph game begins at noon, the varsity game at 2.

One part of homecoming which will be missed by many this year is the marching band. The band had to be cut out of the music program as part of the overall curtailment of all activities. In its place, a pep band will provide music at half-time of the varsity game.

Also at half-time the king, queen and their court will be presented to their subjects.

The dance which will culminate the evening will be held Saturday from 8 to 11 p.m. Last year's queen and king, Judy Wright and John Geils, will be present at the dance to crown the new king and queen.

THEME FOR the dance is "The Dawning of Aquarius" and the band will be the REO Speedwagon. Tickets range in price from $1.75 for a couple with one alumni and one student with an activity ticket to $3.75 for a couple which has no activity cards.

Firemen Celebrate 75th Year Sunday

Bensenville firemen will celebrate the 75th anniversary of their force this Sunday with a full day of activities.

A pancake breakfast, served by the Firemen's Ladies Auxiliary, will begin at 9 a.m. and continue through 11:30 at the fire hall. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

The breakfast will be followed by a parade at noon with more than 50 trucks participating from all over the northwest suburbs.

A program, which will include presentations for the best posters made by children celebrating Fire Prevention Week, will be at the reviewing stand at 15 N. York Road at 1 p.m. Village Pres. John Varble will give the welcoming address.

Steaks will be fried at the firehouse from noon until 5 p.m. and a dance will begin at 7 p.m. Cost of the dinner is $2, tickets for the dance are $1.

A STERN PAUL Ahlrich, Bloomingdale Trustee, warns Trustee Ralph Johnston an arbitrary policy of adjustment of bills is "heading for trouble."

Flooding Relief's In View

Water-logged citizens of Bloomingdale's Suncrest unit four may have some relief with the possibility of a new storm sewer for their neighborhood.

Village engineer Ralph F. Gross presented a proposal to the board at Wednesday night's committee meeting requesting authorization to build a storm sewer for the area that would drain directly into the lake to the east of the homes.

Unit four is north of Lake Street and east of Circle Avenue. Poor grading, illegal connections of storm sewers to sanitary sewers and heavy rains have added up to wet streets and concerned citizens.

There have been two meetings between the citizens and the village to discuss installing storm sewers in their flooded backyards. Even as these discussions have progressed, the storm sewer servicing the area has proved inadequate to drain the streets of the neighborhood.

In order to facilitate drainage of Pleasant and Prairie avenues, the streets hit hardest whenever a big rain occurs, Gross has suggested the village build a new storm sewer for the area.

The sewer will be a necessary first step in solving the backyard flooding, providing the water from the yards with an adequate outlet.

The exact extent and location of the sewer has not been planned, but Gross indicated it will be designed to allow residents easy access if and when they build storm sewers of drainage ditches along their yards.

Gross suggested the village use money from the motor fuel tax fund for the project which will cost about $6,000. Trustee Paul Ahlrich said the money should come from another fund and then be transferred back to the fund from the motor fuel fund.

Ahlrich said whenever projects are financed directly by the motor fuel fund, companies have a tendency to bid higher. He said he was in agreement with the need for the project, but thought a different method should be used to finance it.

The board instructed Gross to draw up specifications and estimate a cost for the sewers for presentation at the next board meeting.

Two Bids Accepted For Sewer Building

The Roselle Village Board voted to accept the two low bids on construction projects for the village's sewage system, pending location of funds for the developments. Keno and Sons Construction of Hyde Park bid $14,439 for an extension to Roselle's sewage treatment plant. The village engineer had estimated the cost of the job at $14,600.

Clyde Wilbur Plumbing Co. bid $18,500 for laying new water lines. The job had been estimated at $14,500, but the Lincoln Street addition to the plans ran the estimate to $17,500.

The contracts will be signed and the work started as soon as the village straightens out the construction funds deficit caused by improvements in Turner Park.

Bill Woes Evaporate

Insinuations of intended irregularities in Bloomingdale's water bill account evaporated or were at least temporarily subdued Wednesday night as more explanations concerning the LoPresti water bill were made known.

The committee meeting was scheduled to discuss the feasibility of an audit of the water books to determine who had not paid water bills.

Trustees Paul Ahlrich and Wallace Geils, originally introduced the subject of an audit, wanting specifically to discuss the LoPresti bill which they alleged had been written off by Trustee Ralph Johnston, chairman of the sewer and water committee.

MRS. FORTUNE LoPresti's bill had been originally questioned by Ahlrich and Geils because she had been recommended by Village Pres. Robert Meyers for the position of clerk which has been vacant since July.

During the committee meeting Johnston contended he had not "written off the bill but adjusted it." Later it was learned Johnston had reviewed the LoPresti account and instructed the village deputy clerk, Kay Funk to adjust the bill by $10.

The LoPresti's had a running balance on their bill of $56.93. This amount came from two separate billings, one in February and one last October, both of which, the LoPresti's contended were due to over registering meters.

AFTER JOHNSTON reviewed the account he decided to reduce the balance by $10 and close the issue.

Through a general misunderstanding and lack of communication between Johnston and Mrs. Funk, the $56.93 amount was completely eliminated from the books.

Johnston told the Register he was under the impression LoPresti had paid the $46.93. When the accusations were being hurled, "nobody came to ask me what happened or how the matter was handled," he said.

"When I said I didn't owe the village money, I didn't," Mrs. LoPresti said. "How could I have, I had not been billed for the $56.93. It's pretty clear that I'll be billed and have to pay the village the money," she added.

JOHNSTON AND Ahlrich both indicated their intention to bill Mrs. LoPresti and collect. The two will also review the books to determine if other citizens should be billed that have not been.

Ahlrich, however said he felt Mrs. LoPresti should be billed the full amount because the claims of an over registering meter were not proven.

During the meeting, he denounced the method Johnston used to adjust the bill, asking on whose authority he did so. Johnston replied he had consulted with Village

Atty. Jack Wagborne who said an adjustment was in order.

To avoid future arbitrary adjustments of billings, the board voted to pass a resolution setting strict procedures on complaints of over registering meters.

FROM NOW ON, citizens complaining of irregular readings will have their meter removed and replaced. The old meter will be sent to the manufacturer for tests. If it is faulty, a minimum billing will be issued. If it is operative, the citizen will have to pay the contended bill.

After the meeting, Ahlrich said he was satisfied with the results because the measures taken by the board, "stopped this thing from snowballing into something that would be unmanageable."

Smigel Wins Court Nod Against Board

by VIRGINIA KUCMIERZ

Victor Smigel, developer of an apartment complex at Lake Street and Euclid Avenue in Bloomingdale, has won a lawsuit against the village which will enable him to complete his buildings and receive sewer and water service.

In a decision handed down Tuesday, Judge William Guld of the DuPage County Circuit Court issued a writ of mandamus instructing the village to issue 13 building permits to Smigel and to allow Smigel to tap on to the appropriate sewer lines.

SMIGEL RECEIVED nine permits for the six-unit buildings now on Lake Street but had not received 13 permits for proposed buildings which will extend the project to Glen Ellyn Road. The 22 permits were applied for last April.

The village has been expecting the decision. It had refused to issue building permits to Smigel, contending it did not have adequate sewer facilities. Smigel will connect on to the sewage treatment plant which the Illinois State Sanitary Water Board has scheduled for eventual phase-out, declaring it inadequate for proper treatment of effluent.

The village would not issue permits because of the sanitary water board order, but previous R-3 zoning of the land made the village liable, by implying it could provide proper water and sewage facilities.

SMIGEL HAS cooperated with the village in trying to improve conditions at the sewage plant. The addition of polymers to the initial treatment process, which has upgraded the effluent considerably, is being paid by Smigel.

He has said he will help finance any other necessary measures for improving the plant conditions until it is phased out and replaced by the new Hoffman-Rosner built plant.

In connection with the new plant, Smigel has agreed to oversizing his sewer mains and has pledged $45,000 for his share of the plant.

ORIGINALLY, THE new plant was planned for a 600,000-gallon a day capacity. In order to accommodate its immediate development, the village has decided a plant with an initial capacity of 800,000 was needed.

The pre-annexation agreement with Hoffman-Rosner stipulates the company will pay for and build a 600,000 gallon plant, so the village began soliciting additional funds from prospective developers who would need sewer service.

Smigel and others had pledged what they considered their share of the plant based on unit per gallon estimates.

A BIG FACTOR in the plant planning is the 181-acre Campanelli development. Tentative approval of the zoning for the project seemed to clear the way for concrete negotiations on the amount of front money to be advanced but Campanelli Inc. has not contacted Ralph F. Gross, village engineer and nothing specific has been discussed.

If Campanelli were to pledge some funds, the village would have been planning a starter plant of approximately 1 million gallons a day.

With Campanelli uncommitted, Gross has begun laying out plans for an 800,000-gallon plant with provision for expansion to a 2 million-gallon plant.

THE VILLAGE will pass a resolution agreeing to authorize Hoffman-Rosner to build the 800,000 gallon plant. As the pre-annexation agreement now stands, the firm can only build a 600,000 gallon plant.

Lowell Siff, Hoffman-Rosner vice-president, suggested his company handle the payments from the other developers instead of the village collecting the cost difference.

Siff's statement came during a committee meeting Wednesday. He said originally Hoffman-Rosner was to build a plant for which it would be reimbursed through tap-on fees. Now that the company is building a larger plant to be used by other developers the situation is not as simple.

SIFF SAID cost for 600,000 gallons worth of the plant would be paid by his company and the difference by the developers directly to the company, not to the village, because equipment and materials would be ordered by Hoffman-Rosner.

The exact means of payment will be discussed fully later along with the financing of the oversized trunk system outside Hoffman-Rosner's development.

Hoffman-Rosner also received permission to build a temporary 35,000 gallon plant to service its initial residents. The request by the company came when it was clear the 800,000 plant would not be ready for the first residents of Westlake early this spring.

The plant will be eliminated as soon as the 800,000 gallon plant is built. The expense of construction will be completely assumed by Hoffman-Rosner.

Mayors Seek Sewer Financing

How to finance a countywide sewage system is still the biggest problem facing the mayors and managers of DuPage County. At Wednesday's Mayors and Managers Conference, two methods of financing land acquisition for the project were proposed.

The first would allow for an all-county referendum which would be passed and paid for by the entire county while it was scans the layout for Westlake. The lines will eventually lead to an 800,000-gallon sewage treatment plant, located at the south boundary of the Hoffman-Rosner development.

being used by only those municipalities which needed help.

AN ALTERNATE plan calls for dividing the county into watershed districts, and allowing each such district to pass its own referendum according to need. The drawbacks to this proposal are that there is presently no legal power to divide the county into districts. Additional legislation would be needed before this plan could be put into effect.

A study to consider the two proposals has been undertaken by an 11-man committee composed of representatives of the mayors and managers conference and just acquired the 11th man, Roy W. Roush of the Downers Grove Sanitary District. Robert Palmer, city manager of Elmhurst, is the chairman of the committee.

It was also suggested at the meeting that a proposed five-man sanitary board for the county be expanded to include seven members. Permission for the formation of a five-man board was just recently received from the state. Wednesday night, the mayors and managers voted to return to the state to request legislation to enlarge the board.

ANOTHER consideration in the subject of a countywide sewage system is the type of services which the county will offer. It was decided Wednesday that the county should offer wholesale sewer services only to municipalities and sanitary districts, not to private developers. It was the reasoning of the conference that if developers can obtain facilities readily from the county, they will not wish to annex to any of the villages in the vicinity.

A three-man subcommittee was also appointed to work out a formula for sewage plant acquisition. The formula is expected to answer the questions "How much should be paid to the villages for their facilities?" and "How much depreciation will there be?" The committee will try to propose a plan that is acceptable to all 31 municipalities in the county.

IN OTHER business, the mayors and managers were told that a county planner has been hired but his name will not be announced until later this year. An 11-man planning commission to work with him will be appointed by the first of next year.

The conference was addressed by each of the eight con-con candidates from the 39th and 40th districts. Each candidate was given five minutes to present his views and then a brief question and answer period followed.

Halloween Plans Complete

Alan Randall, Bensenville Park District Director announced at Wednesday's park district meeting that plans for the annual Halloween party have been completed.

The festivities will begin with a bonfire at 6 p.m. Oct. 31 at Veterans Park. Refreshments including hot dogs and pop will be served free of charge. The judging of costumes will be at 8:30 p.m. with representatives of the VFW, the village and the Lions Club serving as judges.

Prizes for the best costumes will include four transistor radios and 20 $2 gift certificates.

A DANCE WILL BE in the evening from 7 to 10 p.m. with the band the "Jini Cream." There will be no admission charge for the dance. A special Halloween committee will make phone calls at 10:30 to teens who have registered at the dance. Twenty $2 certificates will be given to those teens who are home at 10:30.

In other business, the board reviewed and approved an audit of White Pines Golf course and voted to return $1,796.11 to the general fund from the White Pines fund.

The reorganization of committees was also carried out with director Randall proposing courses which the committees should take. Under the responsibilities of the finance committee, he listed revision of the budget structure and accounting system and suggested that the committee work closely with the planning committee in the expenditure of the $175,000 which will be received for the recreation program. Commissioners Jack Shuster and Merle Hummel will serve on the finance committee.

THE SPECIAL FACILITIES committee will deal with the general improvement of White Pines, including the well system, the men's locker room and the initiation of House Bill 927. Members of this committee are Donald Carroll and Bill Berde.

The purpose of the personnel committee is to review salary schedules and policy for staff on matters of sick leave and vacation time. The committee is also to study the need for additional park district personnel. Shuster and Berde comprise this committee.

The program committee will deal not only with facilities and programs offered by the park district, but those offered throughout the community by other organizations. Carroll and Robert Nicols are on this committee.

Federal Tour Visits Here

Flick Reedy Corp. in Bensenville was the only small manufacturing firm visited by a group of top-ranking officials of the United States government during a recent tour of the Chicago area.

The field trip was part of the Foreign Institute's Senior Seminar in Foreign Policy, a year long program of advanced studies in international affairs offered by the federal government.

The group of 25 toured the entire facility of the plant and were guests at a luncheon hosted by Frank Flick, president and co-founder of Flick-Reedy. The firm is the world's largest manufacturer of machine-tool grade air and hydraulic power cylinders.

The plant was chosen to represent industry because of its program of employee and community relations.

Flick-Reedy is a three-time winner of the Helms Award given by the National Industrial Recreation Association for its participation in community affairs.

The group's Chicago-area tour included trips to the Chicago Police Headquarters, the University of Chicago, Chicago Art Institute, Chicago Board of Trade, the Department of Development and Planning and was climaxed by an interview with Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

Debbie and Carlos Reign for Weekend

Queen Debbie Larson and King Carlos Villareal will reign over tomorrow's homecoming festivities at Fenton High School. With the newly elected royalty will be their court of attendants representing each of the classes in the school. Senior attendant is Ola Machewski; junior, Nancy Vicari; sophomore, Edna Villareal, and freshman, Kathy Landahl.

Each attendant was elected by the boys in her class and the king and queen were elected by all the girls and boys in the school respectively.

The day's activities will begin with the judging of the floats in the Fenton parking lot from 9 to 10 a.m. The parade begins at Fenton at 10 a.m. and follows the traditional homecoming route. The parade will move from the school east on Grove to Mason, north on Mason to Green, east on Green to Center, north on Center to Main, west on Main to Addison, south on Addison to Green and west on Green to Fenton High School.

AFTER THE PARADE, the winners will be announced at the school and the winning floats will remain near the field during the football game.

The frosh-soph game begins at noon, the varsity game at 2.

One part of homecoming which will be missed by many this year is the marching band. The band had to be cut out of the music program as part of the overall curtailment of all activities. In its place, a pep band will provide music at half-time of the varsity game.

Also at half-time the king, queen and their court will be presented to their subjects.

The dance which will culminate the evening will be held Saturday from 8 to 11 p.m. Last year's queen and king, Judy Wright and John Geils, will be present at the dance to crown the new king and queen.

THEME FOR the dance is "The Dawning of Aquarius" and the band will be the REO Speedwagon. Tickets range in price from $1.75 for a couple with one alumni and one student with an activity ticket to $3.75 for a couple which has no activity cards.

Firemen Celebrate 75th Year Sunday

Bensenville firemen will celebrate the 75th anniversary of their force this Sunday with a full day of activities.

A pancake breakfast, served by the Firemen's Ladies Auxiliary, will begin at 9 a.m. and continue through 11:30 at the fire hall. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

The breakfast will be followed by a parade at noon with more than 50 trucks participating from all over the northwest suburbs.

A program, which will include presentations for the best posters made by children celebrating Fire Prevention Week, will be at the reviewing stand at 15 N. York Road at 1 p.m. Village Pres. John Varble will give the welcoming address.

Steaks will be fried at the firehouse from noon until 5 p.m. and a dance will begin at 7 p.m. Cost of the dinner is $2, tickets for the dance are $1.

THIS ARCHITECT'S conception of the Roselle Community Swimming Pool is part of a park development which should be available by June, 1970. Gaasrud Construction will begin installation of the recreation complex on Monday. The entire project will include a baseball diamond, play areas, tennis courts and an ice skating rink.

Park Contract Is Signed

The contract for the installation of a recreation complex in Roselle's Community Park was signed by the Roselle Park District Wednesday night.

The project includes a swimming pool complex, a baseball diamond, play areas, two tennis courts and a built-up area which can be flooded to form an ice skating rink.

C. W. Gaasrud General Contractors, Inc., of Park Ridge was the low bidder on the project. The original bid was $310,000, but subsequent trimming of the budget set the price at $307,200. The park district is now negotiating with sub-contractors to lower the cost even more.

Roselle Park Director Paul Derda presented the contract to Gaasrud Construction. The attorney for the development, Ralph H. Burke of Park Ridge, witnessed the signing.

DERDA SAID he was delighted to find that Gaasrud was the low bidder for the job. Gaasrud has recently completed a similar installation, including a swimming pool complex, for Elk Grove Village.

The recreation complex will be located on a 10-acre site off Prospect and Walnut in Roselle. The property adjoins the new Roselle junior high school. Derda said he hopes to arrange reciprocal benefits for the two institutions — the junior high will be able to use park sports facilities and the park can use junior high buildings for winter and night time activities.

Construction begins Oct. 20 and should last for 240 or 250 days. Derda said he hopes to have the pool filled with water by June. Park officials will hold a groundbreaking ceremony at 9 a.m. Monday.

During the meeting, he denounced the method Johnston used to adjust the bill, asking on whose authority he did so. Johnston replied he had consulted with Village

Atty. Jack Wagborne who said an adjustment was in order.

To avoid future arbitrary adjustments of billings, the board voted to pass a resolution setting strict procedures on complaints of over registering meters.

FROM NOW ON, citizens complaining of irregular readings will have their meter removed and replaced. The old meter will be sent to the manufacture for tests. If it is faulty, a minimum billing will be issued. If it is operative, the citizen will have to pay the contended bill.

After the meeting, Ahlrich said he was satisfied with the results because the measures taken by the board, "stopped this thing from snowballing into something that would be unmanageable."

Fans Are Celebrating

NEW YORK — Wild celebrations are still going on as fans of the world champion Amazin' Mets loudly proclaim the victory in the World Series.

Champagne flowed freely yesterday after the Mets beat the Orioles 5-3 on Ron Svoboda's eighth inning double that capped a typical comeback rally.

Viet Cong Troops Low

SAIGON — Official sources close to U.S. headquarters said yesterday North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troop strength in South Vietnam has dropped to about 240,000 men, lowest level in nearly two years.

However, new Communist offensives were predicted despite its manpower decline.

Demos Action Ready

WASHINGTON — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told President Nixon yesterday that Democrats in the Senate were ready for any legislation he can throw at them.

Mansfield said a Congress which was able to deal with the outpouring of the Johnson and Kennedy administrations could find more than enough time to deal with Nixon's "piecemeal" requests.

JACK WALSH, commissioner of Elk Grove Boys Football, gives members of the junior team instructions at a practice session in Lions Park. Walsh, the operator of a local sports store, said Elk Grove is fast approaching the day when 500 boys will be playing football. About 140 now play on nine teams.

Future Bear Players?

by TOM JACHIMIEC

Every week more than 140 boys in Elk Grove Village get keyed up for the big game.

They receive pep talks from their coaches, encouragement from their parents, and finally more instructions from their coaches.

They are football players who batter each other all week long in practice and then on the Saturday and Sunday, do more of the same against boys from other towns who have gone through the same thing the week before.

It's high pressure football in which the kids get psyched up each week, according to Jack Walsh, commissioner of Elk Grove Boys Football.

"THERE IS tremendous pressure to win, no doubt about that," said Walsh. "Whether it's good or bad I can't say. There are arguments both for and against that."

Walsh is the man who started the Pop Warner affiliated football program last year. It is now a $6,000 operation.

Walsh said it costs about $43 to outfit a boy properly. Each boy pays $18 to play, the rest is made up from money raised by the Elk Grove Boys Booster Club.

Boys ranging in age from 9 to 14 and weighing up to 125 pounds compete on nine teams. Three of the teams play in a traveling league, the Chicago Junior Suburban Boys Football Conference. The other six teams, including three from Queen of the Rosary Catholic Church, play only in the village.

THE PAROCHIAL school also has an entry in the Catholic Suburban League Conference of which it is the defending league champion.

Games are played at the Lions Park field on Saturday and Sunday. The high school field also is used when available.

"Proper coaching is important, asserted Walsh. "It's 50 per cent of the game."

Walsh said, "It takes a different type of guy to coach football than baseball."

"Football is a highly complicated and technical game. It takes more skill."

"And, a good football player who once played in college does not always make a good coach," Walsh said. "It takes experience working with boys to be a good coach."

COACHES TAKE the game seriously, just as the players do," Walsh added.

"The league outlawed the use of walkie talkies," said Walsh. "That's how important winning becomes."

Games are filmed and teams scouted as part of normal procedure in the traveling league.

Winning teams are invited to play in "bowl games," often traveling to neighboring states and staying in the homes of the opponents.

Walsh believes the football program will eventually pay off in the future for Elk Grove High School teams.

He cites Glenbard West High School in Glen Ellyn as an example where a strong boys football program has contributed to good high school football teams.

Horsemen To Vote On Night Racing

by JOAN KLUSMANN

The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) will survey its members within the next two weeks on the issue of night racing.

An HBPA official said yesterday that when the ballots are returned, the horsemen's group will meet with management of Arlington Park and representatives of the Illinois Racing Commission.

The 2,254 members of the Chicago Division, all owners or trainers of thoroughbred horses, are expected to return a negative vote. In a similar survey last year, 575 members cast ballots against night racing and 310 said they would like night races.

THE HBPA BOARD of directors met last week and unanimously agreed that the membership should express its opinion this year.

The group's spokesman said many owners and trainers reacted unfavorably to the night racing experiment at Arlington Park this summer. The main complaint is on behalf of the groomers and others who work in the stable area.

THOROUGHbred owners, who like to train horses early in the day, said stable help often get up before 5 a.m. on a night racing schedule, stable personnel may still be on duty at 1:30 a.m.

Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, agreed that "it is unusual to ask a man to get up at four in the morning." But in a "Sports Illustrated" interview she questioned the necessity of early morning training. "If the harness people can train during the daytime, why can't the thoroughbred people?" she asked in the magazine.

Mrs. Everett contended that training of horses later in the day would allow stable help to move away from the barns and lead a more normal family life. During the eight-day experiment with night racing hours, Mrs. Everett gave $10,000 to the HBPA for distribution to groomers and other workers.

HARNESS HORSE owners, who race their steeds at night, also oppose night thoroughbred racing. They fear the prospect of reduced crowds that direct competition may bring. Representatives of all segments of the harness industry appeared at an Illinois Racing Board meeting in August to protest Arlington Park's request for night racing hours.

Arlington Park won the decision and attracted 10,700 more fans to the track at the end of 1968's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968. However, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,288,500.

MRS. EVERETT'S philosophy is that once attendance picks up, the amount of money bet on horses will eventually fall into place, and she has been reported as saying that Arlington Park will seek a complete night racing schedule for next year, with the exception of Labor Day.

The HBPA expects its survey to be complete by November 10. The Racing Board will meet shortly afterward to allot dates and hours for next year's racing season.

By mid-November Arlington Park's annexation by Arlington Heights will most likely be completed, and while many faces of the horse industry may once more rise and protest a request for night racing, village trustees will not oppose the plan. Under the agreement they are committed to go along with night racing in Arlington Heights.

Plan Afro-American Course

Myths and stereotypes of black people will be studied in an Afro-American history class being offered at Queen of the Rosary Parish in Elk Grove Village.

The class, co-sponsored by the high school division and the community life committee of the church, is offered every Wednesday for seven weeks from 7 to 9 p.m. at Queen of the Rosary School.

"Before the Mayflower" by Lerone Bennett Jr. will be used as a textbook.

INSTRUCTOR FOR the class is Clyde Brooks, manpower director for the Office of Economic Opportunity in Chicago, and the first black man to move his family to Elk Grove Village.

Mrs. Julie Sass, high school division chairman, described Brooks as "a dynamic person" and said that "anyone who takes the course can't help but be satisfied."

Brooks said, "Too often the drives of discontent have echoed throughout our land. This discontent is but a symptom of a greater problem. Perhaps as we search the ruins of pride that now reflects in the voice of American's largest minority we can find ourselves."

William Rentschler

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressman.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25

Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional 'metropolitan' — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary," Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Governor Ogilvie's backing in the race and he could expect no primary help from President Nixon.

He said Smith could not beat Adlai Stevenson III the Democrat's likely choice for senator in a general election.

Rentschler said his name offers more party hope in capturing the Senate seat.

"This primary election will not be divisive," Rentschler promised. "It will provide healthy conditioning for the critical general election."

RENTSCHLER PROMISED to be the people's candidate, saying people want and deserve to make a choice between political candidates.

He declined in the press conference to name a campaign budget figure, although the sum of $300,000 was linked to his candidacy. Rentschler also declined later to promise a statement of income and net worth.

A former president of Martha Washington Kitchens Inc., a Chicago candy company, Rentschler sold his majority interest in the firm in April 1968 to become Nixon's Illinois campaign chairman.

He is now president of Corporation Mid-America Inc.

Land Issue On Agenda

The developer of an apartment complex outside Elk Grove Village planning to meet soon with village officials to settle a problem of land dedication.

The developer is planning to build 594 apartment and townhouse units on 30 acres east of Fleetwood Lane. However, the village wants three acres for a park in the Mark Hopkins School area.

Perry Snyderman, attorney for Shell Development Corp., said Thursday he will meet with village officials to try and come up with an agreement.

He said the meeting will be arranged as soon as it is convenient for both parties.

DONATION OF THE three acres appears to be the last hurdle before the village will annex the tract and construction can begin.

A village ordinance requiring a 10 per cent land dedication for public use has delayed the village board's approval of the $10 million development.

Snyderman had contended that the 10 per cent clause of the village zoning ordinance does not apply to builders of multiple-family dwellings.

The village contends it does and thereby lies the reason for the delay.

Elk Grove does not have a history of multiple-family developments, an indication that the situation is a test case.

"WE INTEND to comply with all laws and ordinances of the village," Snyderman said, adding that if an agreement which is economically feasible cannot be arrived at, the project may be abandoned.

The developer has offered to meet the 10 per cent land donation clause by turning operation of recreational facilities over to the park district.

The park district will not do so unless the facilities are opened up for use by the public.

Snyderman last week indicated that this was not likely.

Rentschler To Be In Senate Primary

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs became fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest Republican, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary.

Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressman.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25

TO ADD to the excitement of winners of the bronze trophies for third place was a tie-breaking contest in the 13-year-old age group between Scott Walker and Mike Rogers.

Scott proved decisive in this extra contest and along with Ed Kurpinski Jr., 91 Kendall Road; Eric Lasota, 58 Lancaster; Mark Smith, 542 Grosvenor; Steve Winsor, 237 Wildwood; and Larry Hamim, 523 Shadywood, were declared third place winners.

MSD's Bacon Makes Hanover Heroes

by STEVE NOVICK
Heroes were made of Hanover Park residents Wednesday by Supt. Vinton Bacon of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) when he spoke at a Garden Club of America forum.

His comments came during a discussion of the MSD's role in water pollution control. The forum was held at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Bacon said that two year ago options on a 25,000-acre farm site were acquired by the MSD in Kankakee County. The farm was to be irrigated with effluents from sewage treatment plants in Cook County. The process is commonly referred to as sludge farming.

The Kankakee area residents raised strong protests fearing that the effluent would create an odor problem, a gift they were not willing to accept from their Cook County neighbors.

To prove that the effluent could be used to successfully enrich soil without creating odor problems an eight-acre piece of land adjoining the Hanover Park Sewage Treatment plant was selected for an experiment.

The project was started during the summer of 1968. Although it began late in the planting season a successful crop of corn was raised.

The Hanover Park site directly adjoins single dwelling homes, and during that first summer no odor complaints were heard, Bacon said.

Results of the 1968 program led to the successful raising of crops at several locations in Cook County this past summer, he added.

An abandoned strip mine in Ottawa County also had effluents from MSD treatment plants piped in to enrich the soil there.

Bacon expects that Ottawa County will reap the advantages that the Kankakee County residents rejected, Bacon said.

During his talk Bacon also sketched over several other subjects.

He told of the tertiary treatment plant in Hanover Park that produces water that is 99 per cent pure. Water that fish can easily survive in and that can safely be used for recreational purposes including swimming comes from tertiary treatment.

He also told how since its founding in 1880 the MSD has saved Lake Michigan from the fate of Lake Erie which today is a dead lake.

But as the process water on the Mississippi River has become unusable and now the MSD has an obligation to help clean up the river for our neighbors in that region, he said.

Underground reservoirs built in the deep rock layer that runs through Cook County are planned to keep untreated sewage from flowing into the Mississippi during flood periods, Bacon said. The untreated waste travels via shipping canals.

Similar underground storage is now used for natural gas, he added.

The MSD would engineer reservoirs that sewage would be kept in during floods.

The treatment plants would then work at capacity to handle the water and sewage preventing untreated effluent from being sent to the Mississippi River.

Flood control is another MSD responsibility.

Bacon joked that at one time flood waters were kept in homeowner's basements but the public did not like this.

One step to change the situation was to build large reservoirs to contain water from overloaded sewers.

Rights of Abortion

by DON BRANNAN
Illinois laws pertaining to abortion were discussed by a doctor and priest at a meeting of the Hanover Township Young Republican Organization Wednesday night.

Under present Illinois law, a woman does not have the legal right to terminate an unwanted pregnancy. However, the law does provide that a physician may be acquitted of the charge of abortion if he proves that he performed the operation to save the mother's life.

Various bills designed to "liberalize" abortion laws in Illinois were introduced in the past session of the state legislature, but none became law.

DR. ROBERT G. Stone, speaking to the Young Republicans, said abortion is primarily a medical responsibility rather than a legal one. He contended that abortions should be performed only in cases where the mother's life was endangered.

"Anyone who thinks abortion is a relatively simple act to perform is foolish," Stone said. Dr. Stone is a specialist in obstetrics and gynecology in Elgin.

The Rev. Jerome F. Riordan, pastor of St. Ansgar Catholic Church in Hanover Park, spoke on the abortion issue from a moral standpoint.

OPPOSING THE legalization of abortion, Father Riordan approached the matter from the unborn child in the mother's womb. "Who is going to protect the rights of the unborn child?" the priest asked.

According to Riordan, the human embryo in the womb develops at some stage into a human being with human rights. And thus human's right to exist must be protected.

"All laws are designed to enhance human life in some manner," he contended.

Stone said that most women who seek an abortion are married women with children, and the majority are from the upper income group.

ACCORDING TO THE gynecologist, medical advances through laboratory tests may offer much better knowledge in the future if a child will be born with either physical or medical incapacities.

However, Father Riordan disagreed that increased knowledge would alter the morality of performing an abortion. He pointed out that he was not making any indictment of the medical profession, however. "You can find doctors opposed to abortion and clergymen strongly in favor of it," he admitted.

"I will have to be convinced of the wisdom of performing an abortion, as a doctor," Stone remarked. "As a physician I insist on having that choice."

EVEN IF ABORTION was legalized in Illinois, Stone said he is opposed to the doctor becoming a mechanic and performing abortions in a routine manner.

Those who support a more liberal abortion law in Illinois feel that abortion should be permitted in cases of rape, incest, and other "victimized" situations. Much of the opposition to changing abortion laws comes from the Roman Catholic Church.

"Science has opened a whole Pandora's box of moral problems," said the priest, when discussion turned to the Pill and contraceptive devices.

Dr. Stone emphasized that he was strongly opposed to abortion as an ex-post facto type of birth control once conception had occurred.

"THERE ARE 1100 different types if birth control devices that can be used to prevent conception," argued the physician. Routine performance of abortion under "legalized" statutes would merely encourage more social irresponsibility and the passing of the burden to the medical profession, he contended.

"I am in favor of any abortion law which would help people with their health problems, but not one intended to correct social problems," said Dr. Stone, who is president of the Kane County Medical Association.

"I do not want to see the physician assuming the responsibility of aborting anyone who makes a 'mistake,'" he concluded.

Paradoxically, said Father Riordan, society is becoming more concerned about the taking of a human life in capital punishment, but it regards abortion as something proper and permissible.

Little Grenadier -- Dash of Spirit

by JUDY COVELLI

The spirit of Elk Grove High School roams the halls occasionally in the form of a "Little Grenadier" in a band uniform that's a little baggy and with sleeves hanging down over his fingertips.

In real life, he goes by the name of Vincent Carioti, college counselor for high school seniors at Elk Grove.

But every once in a while he dons the pseudonym of "Little Grenadier" along with a borrowed band uniform, and "cajoles or threatens the students into having a little school spirit" prior to football games.

"It started at the beginning of the year when we were trying to work up the students into a bit of school spirit," he said. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?"

Carioti has tried hard, but Elk Grove's football team is still winless.

"IT'S WORKED I think, so we'll keep it up through the basketball season," he added.

As the only "Little Grenadier" of the school, Carioti has gained a unique role. "I've always felt we just haven't done enough to entice the kids around here. We haven't made it enough fun for them."

"I just generally give them a little bally-hoo," he said describing his role.

Speaking more seriously about it, he mentioned his work behind the scenes trying to get a general busing system implemented so students can more easily attend school games.

"For example, in our school we have a large element of students that live in Des Plaines. It gets to be a problem for their parents to drive them back and forth all the time."

"I'VE ALWAYS contended that if we had a bus without any commitment required, it would make it easier for the kids to come to the games," he explained.

"Somehow, somebody's going to have to underwrite this type of project. The students could pay a fee of about 50 cents, but this wouldn't cover the entire cost. I think that if they get used to the idea that a bus is available, even if they don't have tickets ahead of time, they might come to the games more often."

Carioti lives with his wife and three children in Mount Prospect.

Commenting on the student reaction to him, he said, "I know the kids think I'm nuts, so I'm not hiding anything."

"LITTLE GRENADIER" — In his tilted band cap and oversized, borrowed uniform, Vincent Carioti walks around Elk Grove High School rallying school spirit for the football team. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?" he said.

NORTHWEST PASSAGE LINKS C&NW AND CTA RAILS

Northwest Passage Opens the Way

Soon you will be able to ride the Northwest Passage.

A cooperative venture between the North Western Railway and the Chicago Transit Authority is expected to ease the problems of getting to the Loop from the suburbs and, possibly more important, open the way for more Chicago residents to suburban jobs.

Two links in a rail-to-rail hookup between the two systems will be funded in part by the U.S. Department of Transportation. The $1 million cost will also be borne by the North Western and the city of Chicago.

The connection between the CTA and the North Western will mean that link will be forged at a single terminal for the two largest passenger carriers in the Chicago metropolitan area.

THE MEETING of the two mass transportation systems will take place at the Chicago and North Western's Jefferson Park Interchange above the Kennedy Expressway.

At the station, two escalators are being installed from the C&NW train platforms to a new pedestrian tunnel under the tracks. The tunnel will connect CTA's rapid transit terminal and a large CTA bus terminal. Both will be in operation within the next few months.

The Jefferson Park interchange will enable passengers to move between three forms of transportation: Chicago and North Western Trains, CTA buses and the CTA rapid transit.

AT THE NORTH Western's downtown passenger terminal a pedestrian connection called Northwest Passage is being constructed. It will run between the terminal and the CTA's Lake-Clinton rapid transit station. The interchange is expected to be completed in January.

Larry S. Pavo, president of the North Western, said of the project... "We believe the coordination is the first giant step to break down long standing barriers to convenient movement of people to and from certain areas making job opportunities in the outer suburbs more attractive and accessible to Chicago residents."

GEORGE L. DEMENT, chairman of the CTA, said "at the same time the linkup at both points will make it convenient for more suburbanites to use fast and dependable rail service rather than expressways and local streets to reach their places of employment in Chicago."

Residents of the suburbs now served by the North Western will be able to transfer to CTA rapid transit trains at the Northwest Passage to travel all-rail to eastern and southeastern loop points.

The CTA running time from the Northwest Passage station at Lake and Clinton streets for Prudential building employees detouring at Randolph-Wabash will be four minutes, to Adams-Wabash six minutes, and to Madison-Wabash five minutes.

"In my opinion," Provo said, "this is faster than a pigeon can fly from the North Western station to the east end of the loop area."

IN ADDITION, such concentrations as the Chicago Circle Campus of the University of Illinois, and the Sears Roebuck mail order and merchandising complex on the near west side, now served directly by the CTA's Congress line, will be linked to the Chicago and North Western's three suburban lines through the Northwest Passage and the Jefferson Park Interchange.

A glance at the map of the proposed link in the transportation routes shows that in addition to an easier route to the city from the suburbs, the Northwest Passage will, for the first time, make direct rail lines possible from Chicago's south side to the suburbs.

The labor market now growing in the Northwest suburbs may have found an access to a source of labor yet untapped outside the city limits.

Ex-FBI Agent To Speak

An ex-FBI agent now critical of the civil rights movement among Negroes will speak at the next meeting of the North Suburban Truth About Civil Turmoil (TACT) Committee.

Mrs. Julia Brown, lecturer and author of the book, "I Testify," will speak about her experiences working with the FBI and the House Un-American Activities Committee. Her talk will be presented at Golf School, 9401 Waukegan Road, Morton Grove, Oct. 29 at 8 p.m.

MRS. BROWN WORKED for nine years as an undercover agent for the FBI in Cleveland. She joined the Communist Party and later testified about their activities before federal agencies and congressional committees.

She "spent countless hours at Communist schools learning of their plans to use her people as cannon fodder for the bloody race war they plan to use to take over this country."

The title of her speech for Oct. 29 is "I too have a dream."

The North Suburban TACT Committee is an organization linked to the John Birch Society.

Nimrod Asks GOP Support for Crane

John Nimrod, one of seven defeated Republican candidates for 13th District congressman, has called for support of the GOP primary nominee, Philip Crane.

Also Niles Township GOP committeeman, Nimrod has called on Republicans to "hold their fire" on action concerning the conservative winner "until our candidate has been given full opportunity to express his views as the nominee to represent the majority of the district."

He said a meeting of the eight township GOP committeemen in the 13th congressional district will likely take place tomorrow. He said he will ask his fellow committeemen to join him in unanimous support of Crane.

"OBVIOUSLY, Crane's particular conservative position is not that of Democrats in this district and it has varying support from other voters," Nimrod said. "But Mr. Crane is an intelligent man and he knows the circumstances which he faces. "And the alternative in the Nov. 25 election is to elect a Democrat to represent a solid Republican district. That is much further out than electing a conservative Republican who I am sure will listen to his constituents and represent the majority of the district," Nimrod said.

The Niles Township committeeman noted Crane was elected in a race where all candidates knew the winner could not obtain a majority vote.

"THERE WERE other conservatives in the group of candidates so that the so-called conservative vote was split, as was the moderate-liberal vote. It should be observed that Crane won on his popular appeal as well as on his conservative position."

Nimrod declared the voters had made a choice and he would support it. He said both Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Sen. Charles Percy have said they will vote for Crane.

"If there was something wrong, it was among the number of candidates who chose to run for this congressional seat and certainly not among the voters who were called upon to make a choice," he said.

Crane won the Oct. 7 GOP primary with a 2,000-vote margin over his nearest opponent, Sam Young, also a conservative.

Crane's and Young's votes reflected a total 33,836 conservative strength while five moderate candidates reflected a combined vote of 44,847.

How To Bug Bugs

A five-point program listing how municipalities can help in controlling mosquitoes was presented to mayors at the Northwest Municipal Conference Wednesday.

Wilbur R. Mitchell, director of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District, had sent the pointers at the request of the conference. Mitchell was guest speaker before the conference during its September meeting.

MITCHELL HAD outlined work of the mosquito abatement district in control work and suggested ways municipalities could help the district in its efforts:

- Develop a survey map of drainage of a municipality, including flood areas.
- Require a survey map of drainage on all proposed developments. This map should include present drainage, surface and subsurface; the proposal of drainage runoff after development; and plans for protection to landowners bordering the development.
- Establish proper procedures, responsibilities and penalties for all drainage, surface and subsurface, within municipal bounds.
- Have all weeds and grass cut once a month during June, July, August and September on all village lots and subdivisions, including those areas under construction. He noted this would prevent the dumping of junk that harbors mosquito breeding sites.
- Establish liaison with the Mosquito Abatement District to consider suggestions on drainage, public health and information that may be of assistance in municipal growth.

IN SUGGESTING law establishing proper procedures for drainage, Mitchell said it should include:

- That all waterways within a village be restored to grade and design and be maintained on a set schedule not to exceed a five-year span.
- That all waterways within a village be restored to grade and design in a new subdivision before or during actual construction.
- That all contractors, private or public, when excavating, repair or reroute all existing tiles encountered to prevent future problems.
- That consideration be given to piping all ditches, streams, creeks or waterways where possible and, when practical, incorporate into storm water system.
- That it be required that all road ditches and ditch pipe be on established grade and standard size subject to village drainage plans for the total area.
- That it restrict the number of open type ditches within municipal control and municipalities establish a maintenance program.
- That storm water storage areas or ponds be restricted to a useful purpose with established maintenance programs.

Vivian Asks for Aid from 'Good People'

by TOM WELLMAN
Rev. C. T. Vivian told a group of about 100 residents from the Arlington Heights area Tuesday night at the Southminster Presbyterian Church that there are constructive means for white suburbanites to contribute to black progress in Chicago.

"We must be radical in our thinking, Enough to forget our personal racism," said the articulate and lanky Vivian. "And we must destroy the racism that keeps us down."

Vivian said there are a variety of means for the "good people" of the suburbs to contribute to his definition of black capitalism.

HE URGED HIS listeners, for example, to put their savings into Negro-operated ghetto banks that can in turn loan money for black projects.

He said technical advice is necessary in the ghetto, as long as that advice does not turn into attempts to dominate black projects.

White people can also support the efforts of blacks to shut down construction projects built by all-white unions, Vivian said. Vivian is currently leading the attempt to gain union training programs for blacks.

Jim Tilmon, who introduced Vivian, said many churches have encouraged programs that create better understanding between blacks and whites.

Tuesday's program was the fourth and final program in a series on "Confrontation in Black and White" sponsored by three churches in Arlington Heights.

At the close of Vivian's speech, Tilmon said he would be happy to conduct additional programs. He said that for some members of the audience it had been either interesting or earthshaking, but he hoped that for most it had been provoking in terms of future action.

TILMON, WHO IS an airplane pilot, as well as the moderator of a television series, revealed that 4½ years ago he tried to find a home in Arlington Heights and was turned away.

"The worst mistake I could make would have been to carry a grudge," Tilmon said. "I hope now you've taken a couple steps towards understanding. I hope you have seven nights a week to have to think about your humanity to your fellow man."

Speaking softly, Tilmon said, "Please, for the sake of my 10-year-old and the B-52 he's building and Rev. Vivian and his children . . . don't let us down." The audience gave Tilmon a standing ovation.

Earlier, Vivian had said he felt his group was "doing well" in negotiations with the trade unions. He said he felt the negotiations and the final agreement could spawn a new black movement in Chicago and in this country.

German Trucks Won Snarf Bedsprings

Rolling Meadows entry into the scavenger business almost had Northwest Municipal Conference mayors wanting, to buy stock into the venture Wednesday.

Following a film showing conventional can pickup vs. paper bags area mayors' questions expressed appreciation for the city's example.

Two pilot studies of a 252-home area in Rolling Meadows has shown the city can provide a better service at less cost to its citizens, according to James McFeggan, superintendent of public works.

PART OF THE city's garbage service is two new $19,000 garbage trucks imported from Germany. McFeggan said the rotary disposal action of the German truck is superior to the conventional trucks' crushing compaction.

The German garbage trucks' digestion of bedsprings, steel ranges and whole pieces of furniture had mayors amazed. The amazing virtuosity of the trucks inspired the mayors to talk of the final destination of garbage and of exciting studies of exciting strides in use of land fills.

DUPAGE COUNTY'S Blackwell Forest Preserve where garbage will eventually form a ski mountain was mentioned. Also suggested was a possibility of shipping garbage out of the area by railroad and sending it down state where disposal costs would be cheaper.

It was suggested the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Northeastern Planning Commission be invited to the conference soon. The two agencies will be asked to report on studies they are making on solid waste disposal.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer and McFeggan explained the city's new program of bag pickup. McFeggan recommended the use of paper bag disposal while admitting it had required public education for acceptance and proper bag storage.

THE CITY WAS pleased with the paper bag experiment with conventional trucks but found that men could work faster than the truck mechanisms, he said.

The German trucks speed up the collection process, McFeggan said, Meyer said the trucks operate so quietly the city could go to weekly nighttime pickup to avoid school hours and the sight of garbage at curbs.

The city is terminating its present $109,000 scavenger contract with Barrington Trucking Co. Jan. 1.

The city will then be going into its own garbage pickup service.

GEORGE BORK

Man of the Week

Mount Prospect Federal Savings and Loan Association salutes George Bork, son of long-time Mount Prospect residents at 112 S. Edward St., as "Man of the Week."

George Bork is deserving of this recognition for his ability to carry on his distinguished college and professional distinction in football. As quarterback of the unsung but often victorious Chicago Owls in the Continental Football League, Bork continues to bomb football defenses with his stellar passing. This he did at Northern Illinois University to set small college records. Later, he excelled in the Canadian League.

In a recent 30-21 Owls' victory over the Ohio Valley Iron Men in Wheeling, West Virginia, Bork tossed 53, 48 and 7-yard touchdown passes.

Listen each Friday at 7:15 p.m. Over WFLI 92.3 FM, Arlington Heights, for "Man of the Week." We invite your nominations as well as your savings at an institution that cares about its community.

Lion Homecoming Matches Two Powers

St. Viator, St. Pat's Clash Sunday

by CHUCK WILLOUR

St. Viator's varsity football team hopes to go on a strictly vegetarian diet Sunday. Oh, sure, we all know that meat with its body building protein is supposed to be the staple of athletes, but when the Lions entertain St. Patrick Sunday afternoon for Homecoming at the Arlington High football field, they hope to switch to a diet of green, leafy vegetables.

The Lions, you see, have developed a sudden craving for Shamrocks — the kind that hail from St. Patrick and wears green and gold uniforms. St. Viator would like to take these particular Shamrocks, chew them up and gulp them down.

And if the Lions get their way, if they can switch to that vegetarian diet, then there will be a new name on top of the Chicagoland Prep League football standings — St. Viator.

The Lions come into Sunday's battle deadlocked with the Shamrocks for first place in the CPL. Viator boasts a 3-0 conference record, St. Pat's a 2-0 mark. Overall, the Lions have chalked up five straight wins, while the Shamrocks are 4-0-1.

And both Lion coach Joe Gliwa and Shamrock mentor Larry Scannell believe that the fate of the entire season rests on this game, the conference crown depends on who emerges as victor.

"They're one of the very best teams around," remarked Scannell, "and their record bears that out. If we want to go anywhere in the league this year, we'll have to deal with them."

And Gliwa said: "This has to be the 'must' game for both of us. Whoever wins it will be champ."

The two squads come into Sunday's game well-matched. What the Shamrocks lack in size, they make up for in speed. The Lions may not be as quick, but they're certainly bigger. Both teams boast of fine quarterbacks and effective, powerful runners. And, of course, both are undefeated — though St. Patrick was tied 6-6 by an Argo squad that the Lions topped 28-8.

The big difference in the two squads may be the defenses. Lion coach Gliwa will never hesitate to say that his defense is one of the best anywhere, and hearing him out is the fact that Viator has given up just three tallies in their five games, blanking their foes three times. St. Patrick, on the other hand, has shut out two opponents and had a rough time holding back other teams.

The Viator defense is spearheaded by linebackers Ed Klingberg, Mike Wilkin and Steve Ostermann — three of the very best. Tackles Pat McGrath and John Vandenberg anchor the line, while the secondary has yet to give up a long TD pass.

The Shamrock defense, though, has no outstanding performers, says Coach Scannell. "They play strictly as a unit," he said. "I couldn't really point out one boy as being the one person to watch. They all do their jobs."

Offensively the two squads stack up about even. The Lions will outweigh their opponents by 10 pounds per man, but the Shamrocks have parlayed their excellent speed into a winning record.

back, all three of whom are worth three yards in clutch situations. Like their Shamrock counterparts, they too have good speed.

Abinanti and Cyboran also have excellent receivers to throw to. Dennis Harrison and Bob Clark are Cyboran's primary targets, while Abinanti can throw to either Tom Anderson or Mike Pettezzano at ends.

In the line is where the size difference becomes most noticeable. Shamrock tackles Tim O'Connor and John Marsden tip the scales at 180 and 185, respectively, while the Lions will go with Greg Diem (210) and Vandenberg (185). Lion guards Ostermann and Mark Browning (170) will also have the weight advantage over their opponents, Mike Chetani (160) and Tony Giovenetti (170), while Lion center Wilkin will give up 15 pounds to Shamrock Ted Sikorski — the only spot on the Lion line where a Shamrock is bigger.

The Lions may also have a psychological factor on their side. St. Viator loves to treat returning grads to a homecoming win, and it's a school tradition that homecoming means victory. The Lions also come into Sunday's game knowing that only one other St. Viator football team has ever beaten St. Patrick — that win a 12-0 shocker in 1967 when the Lions posted their winningest season ever with a 7-2 mark.

And then there's always the knowledge that St. Patrick is rated among the top teams in the Chicago area with a 4-0-1 record, while St. Viator's 5-0-0 mark hasn't even been worth an honorable mention . . . yet.

CPL Harrier Meet Tomorrow

Junior Steve Schlickman will be the biggest hope of St. Viator's varsity cross country squad when the Lions travel to Rees Park in Chicago tomorrow for the Chicagoland Prep League cross country meet, slated to get underway at 1 p.m.

Schlickman is the top Lion harrier, and according to Lion coach Owen Fox, "he should be hitting the top 10 in the meet. If he runs well — and he's always run best against good competition — he should finish high. He's consistently been around 14:40 this year."

The Lions have had their troubles this year in cross country, winning only three meets overall and only one in the CPL.

LIVELY LION, Mike Abinanti, has been a tough man for St. Viator opponents to bring down this year, running for 188 yards and passing for another 196 to place his teammates to a 5-0 record this year and a share of the Chicagoland Prep League leadership. The Lions put their share of first on the line this week, taking on a powerful St. Patrick squad Sunday at Arlington High.

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK Sports Editor

THERE COMES A TIME for some young athletes when they do wonder just what they're doing out at practice every day, banging heads with a teammate whom they feel will be forever better.

At this stage of a football season, heading into the home stretch, a third or fourth stringer on a freshman or soph team, for example, might be asking himself if this game is worth the work.

Why stick it out? What can be gained? I'll never make the first team. I'll never play so why even bother?

A discouraged youngster, a boy who wasn't playing with a sophomore team and who saw no football future for himself, once cornered me at the halftime of a varsity game and asked us this question:

"I'm so far back in the pack right now with the third and fourth string that I'll never play when I get to the varsity. Why keep with it?"

We had known him since he was in grade school and his question admittedly deserved an answer.

How many young athletes are asking an identical question — right now, as the football season passes the halfway point?

This leads to wondering how many high school athletes judge themselves prematurely and adversely and drop out of sports without giving themselves enough time.

A system prevalent at most high schools is calculated to develop athletes at a proper pace. It is an organization of squads by classes and ability — freshman squad, soph, junior-varsity and varsity.

The system succeeds admirably, but one wonders if it also doesn't fail dismally, or at least furnish the climate whereby a boy flunks himself?

The freshman turnout is often more than the coaches can handle and the numbers around for frosh-soph ball are also large. It is as they reach their junior years that the boys call an end to their athletic careers.

Why? Because they think they have learned, in two seasons on lower class squads, that they will never make it.

It showed in our friend, who asked the question of where he was headed. He was a young tackle who could count a half dozen ahead of him on the sophomore squad and who figured they'd still be ahead of him when he tried out for the varsity.

Additionally, he notes two or three juniors who will return, so he has himself rated 10th among next season's varsity tackles. He fails to take a few things into account about himself.

He may grow, become taller and heavier, between his sophomore and junior years. On the other hand, he may grow no more than the average, but he may develop quickness, he may find a greater liking for contact, if football is his sport. He will be aware of it if he grows, but he can't be aware that he is faster and hits harder if he has given up on himself after his soph year.

There is a latent ability in most 14 and 15 year olds. The sophomore substitute may not be a varsity star, but if he gives himself the chance, he may be a varsity starter.

He doesn't give the coaches much credit if he believes they aren't giving everybody the same consideration and thinks that only those juniors who were frosh-soph regulars will get any attention. The varsity coaching staff is aware that many boys aren't ready until they're seniors.

The junior is going to have a different attitude than the soph and we are talking about the same boy. A boy matures and his outlook changes. If he gave it a "young kid" try as a sophomore, he may be wheeling and dealing like the young man he is a year later.

Attitude has much to do with how well a boy plays football or any other game.

We've been associated with high school sports for many years and have known those young men who wanted to be college football players, even though they weren't much in high school. They realized they had to gain maturity to make the grade.

Some made the grade. We remember talking to a coach at Northern Illinois University and hearing the story of a youngster named Lynn McCann. Lynn tried quarterback, center, guard, and tackle at DeKalb high school, without arousing much praise from his coaches or much esteem for himself. He wound up as an all-conference defensive tackle at Northern, a pretty fair football university.

He had tremendous desire to play college football, even though he was just 50 so in high school. He realized he had to gain maturity to make the grade and so he signed up for a six-month program in the army.

After 180 days with the infantry he figured he was ready and apparently he was right.

Army training between your sophomore and junior years in high school is hardly recommended. The example of McCann's experience is listed only to emphasize the importance of maturity to the high school athlete.

Somewhere along there in high school, the young boy grows up mentally.

The process may not take place until he is a senior, or it may occur earlier.

The boy who wants to be an athlete, but gives it up after his sophomore year, can't benefit, at least in sports, from this process of growing up.

ONE OF THE LEADING high school halfbacks in the state of Illinois this fall is deaf, which in football — a game of cadences, audibles and excited yelling — is a genuine handicap.

Willie Forrest is a 6-2, 185-pound back for Illinois School for the Deaf in Jacksonville and he's scored 13 touchdowns and 98 points this season, averaging 10.5 yards per carry.

Head coach Jim Bonds minimizes the problems of coaching deaf players. He points out that coaching techniques vary little. It is necessary to have special hand signals for both the offensive and defensive huddles.

On offense, the center snaps the ball when he feels everyone is ready. The rest of the players move when they see the ball snapped.

"This presents difficulties against blitzing defenses, since it is hard to watch both the ball and the defenders," the coach points out. "We actually have more problems defensively because the boys can't talk to each other. This makes pass defense particularly hard."

The Illinois School for the Deaf in Jacksonville is a member of the Illinois High School Association and subject to all its rules. There are 630 students from all over the state and 52 are out for football.

Fremd Puts Lofty Spot On Line Against 'Cats

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

If you have just gotten off your time machine and arrived in Mid-Suburban League territory in the year 1969, there is a little surprise in store for you — Fremd is in first place.

If it must be repeated, Fremd is in first place. No kidding. The Vikings. The home of the great cross country teams, the good basketball teams and the first division baseball teams. The Vikings are in first place in FOOTBALL.

And now that you've picked yourself off the floor, here's a few more items. Arlington is NOT near first place. The Cardinals are in SEVENTH place. Do you know which team is tied for first place with Fremd? Hersey, that's who. Hersey? Well, yes, that's the new school that was built after you left. Hersey is in its first year of varsity football and is in first place. Sounds kind of strange, doesn't it?

But that isn't all about the topsy-turvy Mid-Suburban League football race. The Vikings will be at home for Homecoming with Wheeling Saturday and Wheeling, by jove, is in sixth place. That's right. Sixth. And, you know, in the Mid-Suburban League this year it doesn't matter if a team is in first or sixth . . . because the way it is going in 1969, any team can beat any other team. Are you listening, Pete Rozelle?

The football season of 1969 has, indeed been a strange one. It is getting to the point that no team is a favorite and no team is an underdog. Just ask Palatine and Prospect.

Thus far this season, Fremd, under the coaching of Al Ratcliff for the first year, has lost to New Trier West 27-24 in a non-conference game and in the conference the Vikings have beaten Forest View 26-14, Prospect 7-6, Elk Grove 13-6 and tied Hersey 0-0.

Wheeling, meanwhile, lost its opening non-conference game 27-0 to Maine South and in the MSL has beaten Elk Grove 22-15, tied Arlington 0-0, lost to Hersey 26-16 and tied Glenbard North 0-0. And when a team like Glenbard North ties an established school like Wheeling, it's time for odds makers to pack their bags and move on to something more reliable — like Joe Frazier fights or something. Who is Joe Frazier? My, you have been away a long time.

Anyway, when you look at past scores it appears that Fremd would be the favorite. But that word does not exist any more.

The Vikings have always been noted for their speed but this year they have something more — good offensive and defensive lines. Tim Tuerk and Bill Baetzel at tackles, Dan Dwyer and Rich Bowman at guards and Jeff Creek at center have performed capably all season.

Fremd still has its usual speed, however. Mike Menick, the 10.1 sprinter, has caught 11 passes for 162 yards and three touchdowns and will be at one end and Craig Fremd, who replaces injured Scott Murphy, will be at the other.

In the backfield, Bob Moloznik, the second

Conference Run at Prospect

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Fremd High's cross country team is about as favored to win Saturday's Mid-Suburban League meet as, say, Ohio State would be taking on the Big Ten All-Stars in football.

What all this goes to say is, Fremd will be taking on top notch teams and runners but the Vikings still have the speed, endurance and depth to be the favorite.

The Viking harriers went 9-0 against Mid-Suburban League teams with each score except one by large margins. The close score was against Prospect at Prospect 27-28. And this is where the MSL meet will be held. It is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday at the home of the Knights which is on Kensington Road in Mount Prospect.

The three primary contenders for first place in the meet are the top three teams in dual meets — Fremd (8-0), Prospect (8-1) and Palatine (7-2). Conant (6-3), Arlington (4-5) and Elk Grove (4-5) are given outside chances while Wheeling (3-6), Hersey (2-7), Forest View (1-8) and Glenbard North (1-8) will have to settle for spoiler roles.

Though the competition for first place among teams will be heated, the individual first place finish will be just as contested.

Scott Butler of Arlington went undefeated against MSL harriers in seven races. Due to illness, Butler missed two races — Glenbard North and Fremd. Bob Pomrenke of Prospect lost only one race during the season and that was to Butler. Dan Pittenger of Fremd lost only one race and that was to Pomrenke in the first meet of the season. Pittenger and Butler did not meet head-to-head in dual meets but Pittenger outran Butler in the Peoria Invitational.

If Butler, Pomrenke and Pittenger do not run up to par, first place would be up for grabs for Steve Bahnsfeth of Palatine, Jim Ottinger of Elk Grove, Bob Bell of Forest View, Keith Matthews of Prospect Greg Gawlik of Hersey of Larry Ingrassia of Glenbard North.

The Vikings are favored not only because of its top runner in Pittenger but because of overall depth which won at the Forest City Invitational and took second at the pre-state meet, the Peoria Invitational. Wally Spiniolas, Rich Bowman, Bill Jarocki, Chuck Porter, Jim Jarocki, Mike Pittell and Bruce Buchholz are all capable of running near the front or in the middle of the pack — and that is enough for the MSL championship.

Besides Pomrenke and Matthews, Prospect coach Joe Wanner can rely on Bill Allen, Al Morrison and Don Henkel for creditable performances to oust Ron Menely's Fremd team from first place.

At Palatine, coach Joe Johnson has Bahnsfeth, Paul Davenport and Fred Miller to try and lodge the Pirates into first place.

Prospect's advantage will be running on its own home course. Fremd will have the advantage in confidence because the Vikings have beaten both Prospect and Palatine and did well against other schools around the state. Palatine will be out for revenge since the Pirates' only losses have come at the hands of Fremd and Prospect.

No matter which team wins the meet, and it doesn't have to be Fremd, Prospect or Palatine, the winner will be defeating an All-Star field.

Three Squads Clinch Crowns As Midgets Ignore Wet Fields

A steady rain didn't dampen the spirits of the Mount Prospect Midget Football Association teams as a full sixth-week schedule of twelve games was played on Sunday afternoon. The undefeated senior Giants and the bantam Illini and Wildcats clinched championships in their respective divisions while the junior Chiefs were assured at least a title tie.

SENIOR DIVISION
Cardinals moved into second place as a result of their 24-0 win over the Packers in Sunday's opening drencher. Halfback Bob Moore tallied twice in the first quarter on runs of 70 and 55 yards. Quarterback Randy Cherwin jaunted two yards for a tally and Mark Wegerer concluded the scoring in the last quarter on a 65-yard sprint.

End Mike Dyon's pass receiving was outstanding as was the blocking of Robby Van Schaick, Bob Stephens and Mike Petran. The defending unit was led by the quick quartet of Jim Wade, Bill Novak, Mike Di Santi and Paul Youngquist.

Bob Chamberlain, Jack Keyser and Dick Fischer were the Packers' workhorses in the backfield but couldn't crack into the end zone. Jimmy Forsander did a neat job of centering. John McKenney, John O'Brien and Bob Strasser rated laurels on defense.

The pace setting Giants scored twice in the second half to tame the frisky Colts 12-0 as Tom Maher dashed 15 yards around end. Later, quarterback Todd Buikema connected with Kenny Holan for a final 15 yard counter. Rod Klobassa and Dave Matzl ran well too.

A last minute Ray Meisen to Don Stevens pass to the one-yard line just missed being a third score as the game ended. Kurt Haaland, Mark Storhaug, Gary Helfenbain, Tom DiGangi, Mark Luciani and Gordon "Max" Reitz led in defensive points and stood out in the offensive line also.

Mike Zielinski and Bruce Metzger each picked up nice yardage for the Colts behind the crisp blocking of Pete Donahue, Larry Dambeck and Dick Lessner but couldn't penetrate the tough Giants defense. Tim Racine showed fine effort on defense as did Jim Brach, Mike Radoll, Jim Scimeca and Tom Nohmow. Dave Kennedy grabbed an enemy aerial.

JUNIOR DIVISION
The Chiefs outmuscled the Steelers 19-0 as their scoring Machine, "Bo" Broeren, chalked up three more touchdown runs. Dale Higasson added the extra point. Jim Dunsing and John Demmert contributed some fine blocking. Ray Demmert, John Appleton and Mike Crnich anchored the rugged defensive eleven.

George Bleago and Johnny Buyers were the Steelers strongest runners as they received help from Mike Conciardi's blocking. Scott Rossi, Dave Pratt and Doug Spohr led their team in defensive points.

Cornerback Tim Dooley's touchdown return of a fumble proved to be the difference as the 49ers edged by the Eagles 6-0. Paul Siegfusson passed well despite the rain and got strong blocking aid from Dave Carlson and Steve Dyon. Mike Cantieri, Terry Freeman and Mike Starkey stopped every Eagle scoring threat.

Jim Reher's punts kept the 49ers in the hole. Gary Conway was the Eagles hardest runner. Erik Peter played well both ways and received defensive help from Mike Schneider, Jose Nieves and Bill Miller.

The revitalized Rams held the tough Vikings to a scoreless tie in a hard fought battle as Jim Zielinski, Gary Horvath, Carl Hulseberg and Rich Braun spearheaded the defensive unit. Jeff Holt and Don Super blocked effectively as Dave Weislo debuted well at quarterback.

Viking standouts were many and included Mike Hermanson, Mike O'Shea, Pete Frasch, Mark Himes, Mark Kranz, Mike Wood, Bob Rutigliano, Brian Walberg, Jay Trefelner, John Guzzardo, Al Stevenson and Don Broderick.

The Redskins took advantage of the Jets numerous fumbles and went on to win 19-0. Brian McNeely and John Vojta plunged for touchdowns while Rich Chulpek scooted for his. Guard Mark Crompton opened many holes. Paul Post, Bob Lee and Bob Strebs were three tough guys on defense and helped preserve a shutout.

Steve Chronik, Ray Michaelsen and Greg Warren were among the ablest of the Jets offensive linemen. Pete Hahn, Jim Gajda and Chris Eugenis hit hard on defense. The Cowboys slid by the Browns 12-6 for their first victory as Ricky Reames trotted to a pair of second half counters. He received plenty of help from Don Thoma, Marty Kendrick, Doug Clark and Glenn Racine. Darwin Lewis intercepted a pass and Chris Lindahl and Phil Higley broke up many plays.

Jim Accurso made a leaping catch of Jon And's fourth-quarter 25-yard aerial to hit pay dirt. Jim Tagney's earlier catch helped set up the score. Clyde Mundt and Tim Gosch ran good and hard. Mid-degward Dave Hughson plugged up the center.

BANTAM DIVISION
Scott Spielmann (kickoff return), Eric Bauer (plunge) and Tim Doyle (interception) registered touchdowns as the Wildcats whipped the Hoosiers 21-0. Andy Loos and Scott Spielmann made the extra points. Dick Paulus and Ricky Lewis sparked the tough defense. Brian O'Mara and Mark Bowen blocked punts.

The Hoosiers' King Strobel, Dave Anderson and Joe Berendsen provided good blocks and Chuck Lynch, Mike Scott and Gary Kruty tackled well in a losing effort.

The Illini romped to a 34-0 victory over the Wolverines as the "big three," Jeff Layer, Louis Ciro and Tim Chmura each racked up six pointers. Layer and Wilkinson converted interceptions into scores. Timely blocks were executed by Alan Slatin, John McDonald and John Nettie. Chris Hanson and Brian Gavre made many tackles.

Jim Boyle, Rodger Consdorf, Jim Dahl on offense and Eric Zynda, Stuart Oswald and Greg Thoma on defense were among the Hoosiers' outstanding players.

The Hawkeyes "hit" the Gophers by a 23-7 count as QB Tim Dixon hit the end zone twice and Jeff Martinski once. John Maestranzi and Lon Reitz each racked up a safety. Wayne Argast, Jeff Lawlor, and Steven Hayer contributed fine blocking. Sharp tackles were made by Dave Groch, Michael Lake and Michael Schnackel.

Mark Smolen tallied the lone Gopher TD on a reverse as Tommy Smith and Jeff Winkleman blocked effectively. Tom Martindale, Mike Zielinski and Lance Dahlke played well too.

The Badgers and Spartans struggled through a no-score deadlock although a Jeff Patterson touchdown was called back for the latter squad. Dan Fischer, Joe Hamilton and Rich Conway stopped the Badgers running threats. Artie Stevens, Jim Brady and Pete Konstant tried hard to generate an attack for the lads in green.

Linebackers Paul Izban, Bob Cantieri and Dan Keller played terrific defensive ball for the Petrammen as did Bob Meyer, "Chip" Crooks and Randy Williams.

Mark Lockowitz paced the Boilermakers to an 8-0 margin of victory over the Buckeyes as he hit scoring sod on a touchdown and a safety. The Lucansky brothers, Michael and Pat ran for good yardage. The defensive demons were Ed Iwanski, "Kent" Taylor and Dan Egesdal. Bobby Morris played fine ball both ways.

The Buckeyes Red Harrison and Jeff Gibson recovered three fumbles between them. The eight-year-olds defensive unit was outstanding and was led by Mike Carroll, Tim Whitehead, Mike Skoog and Steve Ford.

and leading ground gainer in the league, will be at one halfback with Mike Parks at the other. Chuck McGuinn, often overlooked but often dangerous, will be the fullback and Tommy Bruns, the only quarterback who plays defensive tackle, will be the signal caller.

Wheeling is minus Jack Bastable this year, dear traveling friend, but there are still some runners left in Wildcat country. Burt Newman gained 33 yards against Glenbard North last week. Dan Hull has picked up as many as 120 yards in one game and Keith McGowan is a noted blocking back.

Joining the runners in the backfield is quarterback Mike Groot who has completed 10 out of 20 passes for 165 yards this season.

Wheeling's offensive line will consist of gutsy performers in ends Terry Lindquist and Brian Janus, tackles Dine Sheridan and Bill Craighead, guards Tom Holzkopf and Mike Baillargeon and center Andy Roberts.

If you still think that there is a favorite, listen to the coaches.

"Wheeling has an aggressive football team," says Ratcliff. "They run from the slot, shotgun, power 'I' and split 'T' and that's a lot of formations for a defense to worry about. They're a better team than they were last week against Glenbard North. We'll see a better team against us than we saw last week."

And Wheeling coach Jack Liljeberg says, "We're looking forward to a good strong battle and I feel that we can be right in it if a few question marks are answered right."

The question marks revolve around the injury of Steve Klop who will be out for the season. Liljeberg is counting on Newman who has just been brought up to the varsity. Hull who was injured earlier in the season and McGowan.

If the question marks are answered in Wheeling's favor, well, the Wildcats will make it a good game with the Vikings. Good enough to make it a tie game — since that's the way things have been going lately in the Mid-Suburban League.

Star Games Set Oct. 26

The Arlington Heights Boys Football League will stage its all-star games Sunday, Oct. 26, at the Arlington High School field, with trophies to be presented to the three winning squads.

For the all-star contests, the north side teams in each league band together against the south side teams. Each team provides 15 representatives for the all-star squad in its league.

Ticket sales are now underway for the all-star games, with proceeds to be used for support of the football program, which provides organized, well-coached football for 480 boys in the fifth through eighth grades. Tickets are $1 each.

Boys participating in the program can earn free footballs by selling at least 15 tickets, and the one boy who sells the most tickets will receive a football autographed by members of the Chicago Bears.

The junior league game will begin at 1 p.m., the varsity game at 3 p.m., and the senior league game at 5 p.m. The latter contest will be played under the lights.

Touchdown Grabber

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hank Soar, now an American League umpire, was an accomplished football player. In 1936 Soar caught a 25-yard forward pass that enabled the New York Giants to defeat the Green Bay Packers, 23-17, for the World's Football Championship, reports the Rheinhold Sports Bureau.

Fans Are Celebrating

NEW YORK — Wild celebrations are still going on as fans of the world champion Amazin' Mets loudly proclaim the victory in the World Series.

Champagne flowed freely yesterday after the Mets beat the Orioles 5-3 on Ron Svooboda's eighth inning double that capped a typical comeback rally.

Viet Cong Troops Low

SAIGON — Official sources close to U.S. headquarters said yesterday North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troop strength in South Vietnam has dropped to about 240,000 men, lowest level in nearly two years.

However, new Communist offensives were predicted despite its manpower decline.

Demos Action Ready

WASHINGTON — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told President Nixon yesterday that Democrats in the Senate were ready for any legislation he can throw at them.

Mansfield said a Congress which was able to deal with the outpouring of the Johnson and Kennedy administrations could find more than enough time to deal with Nixon's "piecemeal" requests.

3 Win Nobel Prizes

STOCKHOLM — Three American scientists today won the 1969 Nobel Prize for medicine for their pioneering studies of viruses. The prize is worth $75,000.

The Royal Caroline Institute of Stockholm said they were Prof. Max Del Brueck of the California Institute of Technology, Director Alfred D. Hershey of the Genetics research unit of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, and Prof. Salvador E. Luria of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

(HEP), led by Trustee Howard "Jack" Noble, lost to a village GOP ticket led by Frederick E. Downey.

Totten, who as GOP committeeman played a major role in the formation of a village slate, said the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township (ROOST) also has not yet had an opportunity to discuss the March election. He indicated, however, that the matter will come up for a decision later this month.

"It's too early to say whether I will seek another term," Totten replied when asked about possible candidacy for reelection.

IN THE 1966 race, Totten edged out his GOP opponent, Michael Barnett, by only 35 votes.

Although sharp rifts developed in ROOST after that election, Barnett and many of his supporters were welcomed back to the organization in the past several years.

Barnett served, for a short time, as co-campaign manager of the village slate last spring but apparently withdrew support from the group several weeks before the election.

Although considered slightly to the left of most ROOST members in the past, Barnett, and his wife, Juanita, were active workers in support of Philip Crane, the Wisconsin conservative seeking election to the 13th Congressional District post recently vacated by Donald Rumsfeld.

ROOST endorsed Samuel Young, Northfield Township GOP committeeman, in the 13th District primary race.

Petitions of candidacy for the committeeman post must be filed between Dec. 8 and 15.

Heroes were made of Hanover Park residents Wednesday by Supt. Vinton Bacon of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) when he spoke at a Garden Club of America forum.

His comments came during a discussion of the MSD's role in water pollution control. The forum was held at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Bacon said that two year ago options on a 25,000-acre farm site were acquired by the MSD in Kane County. The farm was to be irrigated with effluents from sewage treatment plants in Cook County. The process is commonly referred to as sludge farming.

The Kane County area residents raised strong protests fearing that the effluent would create an odor problem, a gift they were not willing to accept from their Cook County neighbors.

To prove that the effluent could be used to successfully enrich soil without creating odor problems an eight-acre piece of land adjoining the Hanover Park Sewage Treatment plant was selected for an experiment.

The project was started during the summer of 1968. Although it began late in the planting season a successful crop of corn

Rentschler Is in Race

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs became fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest resident, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary. Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressman.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25 Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional metropolitan — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen. Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary," Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Governor Ogilvie's backing in the race and he could expect no primary help from President Nixon.

He said Smith could not beat Adlai Stevenson III the Democrat's likely choice for senator in a general election.

Rentschler said his name offers more party hope in capturing the Senate seat.

"This primary election will not be divisive," Rentschler promised. "It will provide healthy conditioning for the critical general election."

RENTSCHLER PROMISED to be the people's candidate, saying people want and deserve to make a choice between political candidates.

He declined in the press conference to name a campaign budget figure, although the sum of $300,000 was linked to his candidacy. Rentschler also declined later to promise a statement of income and net worth.

A former president of Martha Washington Kitchens Inc., a Chicago candy company, Rentschler sold his majority interest in the firm in April 1968 to become Nixon's Illinois campaign chairman.

He is now president of Corporation Mid-America Inc.

was raised.

The Hanover Park site directly adjoins single dwelling homes, and during that first summer no odor complaints were heard, Bacon said.

Results of the 1968 program led to the successful raising of crops at several locations in Cook County this past summer, he added.

An abandoned strip mine in MSD treatment plants piped in to enrich the soil there.

Bacon expects that Ottawa County will

Lewin Appointment?

Gerald Lewin of Schaumburg was expected to be appointed to a vacancy on the Dist. 54 Board of Education at last night's meeting. The vacant post occurred when Donald W. Ruby resigned last month.

Lewin, who resides at 613 Springdust, is the recommended choice of the Dist. 54 community relations study group. The group interviewed five candidates last week before deciding on Lewin.

Lewin will serve until the next board election in April 1970. Ruby had been elected to a two-year term last April.

now be the site of an extensive farm on which sludge will be used to irrigate the land.

And the people of Ottawa County will reap the advantages that the Kane County residents rejected, Bacon said.

During his talk Bacon also skimmed over several other subjects.

He told of the tertiary treatment plant in Hanover Park that produces water that is 99 per cent pure. Water that fish can easily survive in and that can safely be used for recreational purposes including swimming comes from tertiary treatment.

He also told how since its founding in 1890 the MSD has saved Lake Michigan from the fate of Lake Erie which today is a dead lake.

But as the process water on the Mississippi River has become unusable and now the MSD has an obligation to help clean up the river for our neighbors in that region, he said.

Underground reservoirs built in the deep rock layer that runs through Cook County are planned to keep untreated sewage from flowing into the Mississippi during flood periods, Bacon said. The untreated waste travels via shipping canals.

Similar underground storage is now used for natural gas, he added.

The MSD would engineer reservoirs that sewage would be kept in during floods. The treatment plants would then work at capacity to handle the water and sewage preventing untreated effluent from being sent to the Mississippi River.

Flood control is another MSD responsibility.

Bacon joked that at one time flood waters were kept in homeowner's basements but the public did not like this.

One step to change the situation was to build large reservoirs to contain water from overloaded sewers.

Decorations Class Scheduled at YWCA

Holiday decorations, an Elgin YWCA class for anyone, interested in creating centerpieces, flower arrangements and fresh green wreaths, will begin Thursday, Oct. 30, at 7:30 p.m.

A different form of holiday decorations will be explored at each of the classes.

The two-hour-long sessions will continue for six weeks under the direction of Mrs. James Jochum and Mrs. Jerry Miller.

Additional information can be obtained by phoning the YW at 742-7398.

Offer Lancer Expansion Solution

The Schaumburg village board offered annexation and commercial zoning to two unincorporated homeowners as an appendage to permit the continued expansion of the Lancer Steak House Tuesday.

Because of two errors in a public notice published in 1968, the legality of the annexation of the restaurant was in doubt. Annexation proceedings began again in August and two of the restaurant's neighbors objected.

The restaurant, located at Meacham and Algonquin roads, was built under county zoning and then annexed to Schaumburg. THIS PAST WINTER an addition was added to the restaurant and parking was expanded on a lot that was previously residential. The front portion of the three quarter acre lot still has a house on it.

Atty. James L. O'Loughlin, representing William Gleason, who owns the adjacent lot, and Gregory Budinger, who lives next to Gleason, requested that the house not be razed.

Lancer owner Nick Tselos said he is planning a third addition to the restaurant and will need more parking. He plans to remove the house for the expanded parking.

O'Loughlin asked that the front portion of the lot be residential and a public hearing be held before Tselos would be allowed to remove the house. The zoning board of appeals made a recommendation to that effect.

MAYOR ROBERT O. Atcher said, "I can understand the zoning board's recommendation, but we still have an obligation to those who are part of us, much as we like to get along with our neighbors."

Trustee Donald DeVale said the house should be torn down to improve access to the parking lot at the Lancer. "Progress causes problems. This area is going commercial. The tide has already turned," DeVale told O'Loughlin.

"We don't believe that's the case right now," the attorney said.

"THE WAIT AND see period occurred a long time ago in Schaumburg. Why postpone a foregone conclusion," DeVale said. He added the area now includes Motorola, International Village apartments, a Cook County Highway Department garage and the Woodlake apartments soon to start.

Trustee Matthew Helsper suggested that Gleason and Budinger be offered annexation and commercial zoning. Atcher pledged the current board to do this if the property owners request it.

Rights of Abortion Are Moral, Legal

by DON BRANNAN

Illinois laws pertaining to abortion were discussed by a doctor and priest at a meeting of the Hanover Township Young Republican Organization Wednesday night.

Under present Illinois law, a woman does not have the legal right to terminate an unwanted pregnancy. However, the law does provide that a physician may be acquitted of the charge of abortion if he proves that he performed the operation to save the mother's life.

Various bills designed to "hberalize" abortion laws in Illinois were introduced in the past session of the state legislature, but none became law.

DR. ROBERT G. Stone, speaking to the Young Republicans, said abortion is primarily a medical responsibility rather than a legal one. He contended that abortions should be performed only in cases where the mother's life was endangered.

"Anyone who thinks abortion is a relatively simple act to perform is foolish," Stone said. Dr. Stone is a specialist in obstetrics and gynecology in Elgin.

The Rev. Jerome F. Riordan, pastor of St. Ansgar Catholic Church in Hanover Park, spoke on the abortion issue from a moral standpoint.

OPPOSING THE legalization of abortion, Father Riordan approached the matter from the unborn child in the mother's womb. "Who is going to protect the rights of the unborn child?" the priest asked.

According to Riordan, the human embryo in the womb develops at some stage into a human being with human rights. And this human's right to exist must be protected.

"All laws are designed to enhance human life in some manner," he contended.

Stone said that most women who seek an abortion are married women with children, and the majority are from the upper income group.

ACCORDING TO THE gynecologist, medical advances through laboratory tests may offer much better knowledge in the future if a child will be born with either physical or medical incapacities.

However, Father Riordan disagreed that increased knowledge would alter the morality of performing an abortion. He pointed out that he was not making any indictment of the medical profession, however. "You can find doctors opposed to abortion and clergymen strongly in favor of it," he admitted.

"I will have to be convinced of the wisdom of performing an abortion, as a doctor," Stone remarked. "As a physician I insist on having that choice."

EVEN IF ABORTION was legalized in Illinois, Stone said he is opposed to the doctor becoming a mechanic and performing abortions in a routine manner.

Those who support a more liberal abortion law in Illinois feel that abortion should be permitted in cases of rape, incest, and other "victimized" situations. Much of the opposition to changing abortion laws comes from the Roman Catholic Church.

"Science has opened a whole Pandora's box of moral problems," said the priest, when discussion turned to the Pill and contraceptive devices.

Dr. Stone emphasized that he was strongly opposed to abortion as an ex-post facto type of birth control once conception had occurred.

"THERE ARE 1100 different types of birth control devices that can be used to prevent conception," argued the physician. Routine performance of abortion under "legalized" statutes would merely encourage more social irresponsibility and the passing of the burden to the medical profession, he contended.

"I am in favor of any abortion law which would help people with their health problems, but not one intended to correct social problems," said Dr. Stone, who is president of the Kane County Medical Association.

"I do not want to see the physician assuming the responsibility of aborting anyone who makes a 'mistake,'" he concluded.

Paradoxically, said Father Riordan, society is becoming more concerned about the taking of a human life in capital punishment, but it regards abortion as something proper and permissible.

Slides of a reservoir in Stickney Township were shown. The facility was filled to capacity with water from last summer's heavy storms.

Bacon said similar plans are on the board for areas throughout the Northwest Suburbs and Cook County.

The Stickney facility doubles as a recreational area for tobogganing and ball fields. Other reservoirs will be planned with even more extensive recreational use in mind, he said.

keep your eyes off the road!

Off the road? / Sure. / You're not driving—you're riding a Milwaukee Road bi-level commuter train. Just settle back and keep your eyes on your paper. Or your book. / Or gaze through your picture window at the beautiful autumn colors. Or at that miserable autumn drizzle that turns a superhighway into Nightmare Alley. / Or snooze a little. Snug. Relaxed in your comfortable seat and enjoying our comfortable man-made weather. Enjoying the fact too, that you'll get downtown (or back home) refreshed and on time. / And here's the clincher! Commuting with us every day, you'll actually save money over the cost of driving and parking your car. / Come ride with us... and keep your eyes off the road.

Poll Horsemen on Night Hours

by JOAN KLUSMANN

The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) will survey its members within the next two weeks on the issue of night racing.

An HBPA official said yesterday that when the ballots are returned, the horsemen's group will meet with management of Arlington Park and representatives of the Illinois Racing Commission.

The 2,254 members of the Chicago Division, all owners or trainers of thoroughbred horses, are expected to return a negative vote. In a similar survey last year, 575 members cast ballots against night racing and 310 said they would like night hours.

THE HBPA BOARD of directors met last week and unanimously agreed that the membership should express its opinion this year.

The group's spokesman said many owners and trainers reacted unfavorably to the night racing experiment at Arlington Park this summer. The main complaint is on behalf of the grooms and others who work in the stable area.

THOROUGHBRED owners, who like to train horses early in the day, said stable help often get up before 5 a.m. on a night racing schedule, stable personnel may still be on duty at 1:30 a.m.

Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, agreed that "it is unnatural to ask a man to get up at four in the morning." But in a "Sports Illustrated" interview she questioned the necessity of early morning training. "If the harness people can train during the daytime, why can't the thoroughbred people?" she asked in the magazine.

Mrs. Everett contended that training of horses later in the day would allow stable help to live away from the barns and lead a more normal family life. During the eight-day experiment with night racing hours, Mrs. Everett gave $10,000 to the HBPA for distribution to grooms and other workers.

HARNESS HORSE owners, who race their steeds at night, also oppose night thoroughbred racing. They fear the prospect of reduced crowds that direct competition may bring. Representatives of all segments of the harness industry appeared at an Illinois Racing Board meeting in August to protest Arlington Park's request for night racing hours.

Arlington Park won the decision and attracted 10,700 more fans to the track at the end of 1968's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968. However, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,283,500.

MRS. EVERETT'S philosophy is that once attendance picks up, the amount of money bet on horses will eventually fall into place, and she has been reported as saying that Arlington Park will seek a complete night racing schedule for next year, with the exception of Labor Day.

The HBPA expects its survey to be complete by November 10. The Racing Board will meet shortly afterward to allot dates and hours for next year's racing season.

By mid-November Arlington Park's annexation by Arlington Heights will most likely be completed, and while many facets of the horse industry may once more rise and protest a request for night racing, village trustees will not oppose the plan. Under the agreement they are committed to go along with night racing in Arlington Heights.

Morrissey Is Committeeman

John Morrissey of Hoffman Estates has been officially named Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman by the party's Cook County Central Committee. Morrissey has been serving as acting committeeman since the resignation of Ed Deagan in August.

The Democratic Party's central committee of Cook County consists of ward and township committeemen, and is headed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

A resident of 252 Ashley, Hoffman Estates, Morrissey has lived in the township since 1957. A lawyer, he handled the incorporation of Hoffman Estates as a village 10 years ago.

LAST FALL MORRISSEY was a Democratic candidate for State Representative in the Northwest suburbs but was defeated. He ran for village president in Hoffman Estates in April and lost again.

The new Democratic committeeman said he plans to organize a Democratic Women's Club and a local chapter of the Young Democrats in the near future.

Speaking of his responsibility as local party leader for the Democrats, Morrissey said, "I am taking this post when the challenge has never been greater. With the tremendous population growth of the township and the surrounding area, suburban Cook County is no longer simply a political adjunct of Chicago."

THE POLITICAL DIRECTION of this county and state will be determined in a large measure in the future by what happens in the suburbs.

Morrissey added, "This population growth has the potential of changing the political climate in the suburbs if Democrats are active and organized enough to communicate with people."

"The Republican Party has had the good fortune of operating in a traditional Republican environment," Morrissey noted. But the Democratic Party "has had to struggle for viability as a minority in an atmosphere of discouragement."

Plan To Purchase Radios for Police

Schaumburg will purchase three two-way radios for police cars from Motorola without seeking outside bids.

Trustee Donald DeVale explained at Tuesday's village board meeting that Motorola, Schaumburg's largest industry, provides engineers free of charge to plan the village's master communications system.

Consultants to make such plans would normally cost a community many thousands of dollars, DeVale said. Motorola does it as a community service.

DEVALE SAID a master system is needed to "meet the growing complexities" of Schaumburg.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said normally anything costing more than $1,500 goes out for bids unless two-thirds of the board members vote to dispense with bids.

Each radio cost $950. The police department will trade in two radios about 10 years old, bringing the price for the three to $2,370.

The board accepted the low bid of Charles R. Hearn Pontiac Agency, Chicago, for six 1970-model squad cars for the police department. The six cars will cost $11,608. This includes a trade-in allowance of $8,000 on five 1968 squad cars.

CHIEF MARTIN CONROY said he sent specifications to four Pontiac dealers and only two responded. The other bid came from Franklin-Weber, the Schaumburg dealer. That bid totaled $13,455.

Trustees also approved purchase of a street sweeper manufactured by the Elgin Pelican dealer at a cost of $14,700. Three bids were accepted.

Hoskins Chevrolet of Elk Grove Village was the low bidder on three trucks and a car for the public works department. The village will purchase a three quarter ton truck costing $2,490, a one ton truck costing $2,758 and a 2 1/2 ton truck costing $6,285. The bid on the car was $2,465. Truck bids were also received from Gilmore of Wheeling and Pollard of Elmhurst.

Little Grenadier

--Dash of Spirit

by JUDY COVELLI

The spirit of Elk Grove High School roams the halls occasionally in the form of a "Little Grenadier" in a band uniform that's a little baggy and with sleeves hanging down over his fingertips.

In real life, he goes by the name of Vincent Carioti, college counselor for high school seniors at Elk Grove.

But every once in a while he dons the pseudonym of "Little Grenadier" along with a borrowed band uniform, and "cajoles or threatens the students into having a little school spirit" prior to football games.

"It started at the beginning of the year when we were trying to work up the students into a bit of school spirit," he said. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?"

Carioti has tried hard, but Elk Grove's football team is still winless.

"IT'S WORKED I think, so we'll keep it up through the basketball season," he added.

As the only "Little Grenadier" of the school, Carioti has gained a unique role. "I've always felt we just haven't done enough to entice the kids around here. We haven't made it enough fun for them.

"I just generally give them a little bally-hoo," he said describing his role.

Speaking more seriously about it, he mentioned his work behind the scenes trying to get a general busing system implemented so students can more easily attend school games.

"For example, in our school we have a large element of students that live in Des Plaines. It gets to be a problem for their parents to drive them back and forth all the time.

"I'VE ALWAYS contended that if we had a bus without any commitment required, it would make it easier for the kids to come to the games," he explained.

"Somehow, somebody's going to have to underwrite this type of project. The students could pay a fee of about 50 cents, but this wouldn't cover the entire cost. I think that if they get used to the idea that a bus is available, even if they don't have tickets ahead of time, they might come to the games more often."

Carioti lives with his wife and three children in Mount Prospect.

Commenting on the student reaction to him, he said, "I know the kids think I'm nuts, so I'm not hiding anything."

"LITTLE GRENADIER"—In his tilted band cap and oversized, borrowed uniform, Vincent Carioti walks around Elk Grove High School rallying school spirit for the football team. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?" he said.

Lindstrom Likes Crane

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, told the Herald he was "delighted that Philip M. Crane was the Republican nominee" in the 13th District Congressional race. Lindstrom gained nationwide notoriety as the national chairman of the "Remember the Pueblo Committee."

"His family and mine have long been personal friends and we worked together at Westminster Academy," he said.

Lindstrom said he didn't campaign actively for Crane during the recent primary race because he had other obligations. He said that he did talk to many people privately however, and recommended they vote for Crane. He said many from his church did actively campaign for Crane.

"I ALSO SENT him a telegram of congratulations," Lindstrom said.

Lindstrom stated that in the telegram he told Crane he would be "challenging the church family to pray for you" during one of his sermons.

Lindstrom was one of the founders of the Westminster Academy in 1966. In the summer of 1967, when the academy was moved from its location in Des Plaines to Northbrook, Crane became the director, or headmaster.

Lindstrom served under him as assistant headmaster.

In June, 1968, the Church of Christian Liberty and Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights were completed, and the Westminster Academy was dissolved.

"CRANE LEFT AT that time because he wanted to move into other areas. I became headmaster of the new Christian Liberty Academy, which is exactly the same as the old Westminster Academy," Lindstrom said.

The academy is a school for kindergartners through 10th grade students.

"We follow the traditional philosophy of education, which features good, old-fashioned discipline," Lindstrom said.

They Plan Bike Trail

Although faced with a lack of funds to develop a nature-bicycle trail in Palatine, Palatine Park District officials are going ahead with development of plans for a four-mile trail through the village.

At a meeting of the regional planning and recreation committee of the Council of Governments earlier this month, Tony DiCello, director of recreation, presented plans for 3-to-6-foot combined nature and bicycle path and an auxiliary bicycle trail to link Palatine parks, pools, the train station and other points of interest.

"We want community support in getting the bicycle-nature trail started and in maintenance if it," DiCello said.

THE PALATINE trail is a pilot project in a county-wide effort to link forest preserves and recreational areas in a continuous bicycle path.

"When Hickel (Walter J. Hickel, secretary of the interior) was in Chicago for the National Recreation Association meeting last month, he said that $6.3 billion would be used to develop urban recreation," Roger Bjorvik, regional committee chairman and secretary to the Palatine Park Board, said.

"If we have a definite plan ready to present to federal representatives, we may be able to obtain federal money for the bicycle trail," Bjorvik continued.

In his speech, Hickel emphasized a change in philosophy about parks and recreational facilities. The federal government will begin shifting emphasis from national parks to local ones, near where people live.

IF FEDERAL MONEY is made available in the Chicago area, it will be for the total metropolitan area of Chicago, not just Palatine.

The nature-bicycle trail DiCello is developing would begin on Palatine Road and move north along Salt Creek to just north of Thurston Drive.

From Thurston Drive it would go west along a two-mile Commonweath Edison right-of-way which lies north of Williams, Slayton, Pompano and Providence roads to the Palatine golf course.

The trail would wind on a northwest route through the golf course to an abandoned railroad right-of-way on the west side of the golf course and then turn north to Dundee Road. After crossing Dundee Road, the nature-bicycle trail would go through Camp Reinberg, cross Quentin Road, and join other bicycle paths in Deer Grove.

"OUR PROBLEM RIGHT now is finding out whether we will have to maintain the whole right-of-way," DiCello said. The right-of-way is about 135 feet wide. The trail would need about 18 feet of it.

"The park district cannot afford to cut the weeds and maintain the whole strip. We are hoping civic groups will volunteer to help with the maintenance."

Some sort of overpass or crossing marker would be needed where the nature-bicycle trail would cross Hicks, Dundee and Quentin roads going into the forest preserve.

"We are looking for suggestions on overpasses. On Dundee there may be a possibility of an underpass used by grazing animals to get from a field on one side of the road to another across the road."

The bicycle extension in the Village of Palatine would probably travel along already existing streets marked with bicycle trail signs.

"The next step after we have the plan developed is to present it to the village board for approval. We will probably have to get township approval for the parts outside the village," DiCello said.

Apartment Zoning OKd by Plan Unit

With certain stipulations, Buffalo Grove's plan commission recommended approval Wednesday of a zoning proposal for 31 acres of land at the northeast corner of Arlington Heights and Lake-Cook roads. The commission held a public hearing on the matter Oct. 1.

The proposal, submitted by the Chesterfield Development Corp., calls for construction of an apartment complex with a small shopping center on the corner.

Presently, the land is unincorporated. Chesterfield has submitted a request for annexation of the property to the Buffalo Grove Village Board. Last week the board held a public hearing on that request.

THE PLAN commission made a decision on the zoning proposal after about an hour of deliberations.

In their motion to recommend approval of the zoning, the plan commissioners stipulated that the shopping center portion of the development was to remain under single ownership. They also said the buildings in the center were to be architecturally consistent. Their motion also called for the submission of a development plan for the shopping center to the plan commission.

In their recommendation for approval, commissioners also asked that when Chesterfield submits its preliminary plat for approval, it will also turn in a report from its engineer on the drainage situation.

ALTHOUGH THE commercial portion of the development will be constructed as a simple business district, it will nonetheless have many of the characteristics of a planned business district.

These characteristics include single ownership of the property, the consistency in building design, and adequate entrance and exit drives.

Fred Hillman, vice president of Chesterfield, told the commission his company did not want the shopping center to be classified a planned business district because, "We don't want to have to develop it all at once."

He pointed out that under the planned business district classification, "you have to hold back any development until you're ready to develop it all."

HILLMAN TOLD the commissioners, "Both we and the community need to develop the shopping center as we see what the needs of the community are." He said, "We want to allow tenants to move in whenever we can find them."

Hillman quickly agreed to the stipulations concerning the architectural style, the ownership policy and the entrance drives.

He agreed just as quickly to perform the flood control study called for by the commissioners.

At first, some of the commissioners asked that a flood retention basin be built in anticipation of other developments in the area.

To this Hillman said, "If you require us to build a storm retention facility regardless of whether or not we need it, that would be a first!"

CARL GENRICH, the plan commissioner who was promoting the retention proposal, pointed out he wanted the builder to "at least consider the need for storm retention." Genrich reminded the commission that Ted Scamion, Wheeling's village president, has long called for more cooperation among communities on flood control.

Finally, the commissioners agreed on the stipulation that Chesterfield's engineer would submit a report on the drainage situation in the area when the preliminary plat was to be submitted.

Chesterfield plans to devote 27 acres of the property to apartments. The complex will contain 435 apartment units in 18 two-story buildings. No less than 40 per cent of those units will be one-bedroom.

Proposed recreational facilities include a swimming pool, barbecue pits, putting greens and tennis courts.

Rentschler Is in Race

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest Republican, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary.

Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressman.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25 Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional metropolitan — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary," Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Governor Ogilvie's backing in the race and he could expect no primary help from President Nixon.

He said Smith could not beat Adlai Stevenson III the Democrat's likely choice for senator in a general election.

Rentschler said his name offers more party hope in capturing the Senate seat.

"This primary election will not be divisive," Rentschler promised. "It will provide healthy conditioning for the critical general election."

RENTSCHLER PROMISED to be the people's candidate, saying people want and deserve to make a choice between political candidates.

He declined in the press conference to name a campaign budget figure, although the sum of $300,000 was linked to his candidacy Rentschler also declined later to promise a statement of income and net worth. A former president of Martha Washington Kitchens Inc., a Chicago candy company, Rentschler said his majority interest in the firm in April 1968 to become Nixon's Illinois campaign chairman. He is now president of Corporation Mid-America Inc.

New Park Seeks Two Volunteers

Buffalo Grove's newly formed park district commission is looking for a secretary and a treasurer, according to Val Bettin, commission president.

He said the secretary would be required to take stenographic notes and compose letters. The treasurer would handle accountants' duties, such as preparation of financial reports.

"THESE JOBS WILL both have to be volunteer at first," said Bettin. Eventually, however, the park district plans to make the jobs paying ones.

Persons interested in either job should contact Mrs. Dede Armstrong at 537-7346 for further information.

Short, Lazy Liars Need Not Apply

Few job applicants have to take lie detector tests, be over 5 feet, 7 inches tall, and do 35 sit-ups before they're hired.

These are only some of the ways applicants for jobs as policemen in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are judged.

What makes these men, as well as the men on the Cook County Sheriff's Police force, capable of being accepted as policemen is a variety of skills and talents.

Becoming a policeman is a goal for many young boys. Often, however, as the boys grow to manhood, the thrill of catching robbers becomes unimportant when they consider the dangers and responsibilities required of a policeman.

"IT TAKES SOMEONE who has a desire to help people as his main interest — they don't make it if they're out for personal gain," Wheeling Police Chief M.O. Horcher said.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith has a harder time classifying his men. "I can't type cast them; they're all different and they all become policemen for different reasons," he says.

Basic qualifications for the policeman's job are somewhat standardized; but each village can have stricter laws than those imposed by the state.

Law officers applying to join the Cook County Sheriff's Police, which serves Prospect Heights as well as other unincorporated parts of the county, must be 21 years old, at least 5 feet, 7 inches tall with proportionate weight and must have a high school diploma.

In Buffalo Grove the requirements are varied by the fire and police commission, but most officers on the force are required to be at least 5 feet, 9 or 10 inches tall. Smith said he likes to have taller men because their physical presence can often ward off trouble where a smaller man would be ignored.

IN WHEELING the requirements set minimums at 5 feet, 8 inches tall and 145 pounds. Maximum heights are also applied by the villages.

In both villages, and in Prospect Heights as well, testing and applications for police jobs are handled by independent boards of citizens.

The Cook County Sheriff Police Merit Board consists of three citizens appointed by the sheriff who serve for 6-year terms. In the two villages, state law requires that three-man boards of fire and police commissioners direct the testing.

Horcher said the men have exclusive authority to hire, promote, discipline and fire police and firemen. The justification for a civilian board is that it is to represent a cross-section of the total community and remove police department applicants from political controls.

To keep the board representative of the entire community, state law requires that no more than two of the three men can belong to the same political party. It also requires that one be an employer, one an employee and the other self-employed, the Wheeling chief said.

HORCHER SAID the law is enforced and courts have even reversed decisions about officer discipline when the board did not meet the legal specifications.

Under the direction of the board, men who meet the preliminary requirements begin their testing to enter the police force. A background check which includes interviews with the applicants' neighbors, friends, relatives, former employers and school administrators is conducted at the same time as the tests.

In Buffalo Grove, the applicant must first pass a written test of general aptitude and intelligence. Some police questions such as the ability to memorize faces of wanted men are also included.

Only if the man passes that test does he take a physical agility test which involves push-ups, situps, a standing broad jump, lifting 150 pounds and a relay running race.

IN WHEELING the order may be varied but the testing procedures are similar. Cook County policemen take written tests of personality and logic questions. In addition to the procedures followed by the two villages, county policemen must pass lie detector tests on personal background.

A physical examination is also part of the testing procedure. Personal interviews, which can vary in content, complete the testing procedures. Those who

A Spirited Grenadier

by JUDY COVELLI

The spirit of Elk Grove High School roams the halls occasionally in the form of a "Little Grenadier" in a band uniform that's a little baggy and with sleeves hanging down over his fingertips.

In real life, he goes by the name of Vincent Carioti, college counselor for high school seniors at Elk Grove.

But every once in a while he dons the pseudonym of "Little Grenadier" along with a borrowed band uniform, and "cajoles or threatens the students into having a little school spirit" prior to football games.

"It started at the beginning of the year when we were trying to work up the students into a bit of school spirit," he said. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?"

Carioti has tried hard, but Elk Grove's football team is still winless.

"IT'S WORKED I think, so we'll keep it up through the basketball season," he added.

As the only "Little Grenadier" of the school, Carioti has gained a unique role. "I've always felt we just haven't done enough to entice the kids around here. We haven't made it enough fun for them."

"I just generally give them a little belly-hoo," he said describing his role.

Speaking more seriously about it, he mentioned his work behind the scenes trying to get a general busing system implemented so students can more easily attend school games.

"For example, in our school we have a large element of students that live in Des Plaines. It gets to be a problem for their parents to drive them back and forth all the time."

"I'VE ALWAYS contended that if we had a bus without any commitment required, it would make it easier for the kids to come to the games," he explained.

"Somehow, somebody's going to have to underwrite this type of project. The students could pay a fee of about 50 cents, but this wouldn't cover the entire cost. I think that if they get used to the idea that a bus is available, even if they don't have tickets ahead of time, they might come to the games more often."

Carioti lives with his wife and three children in Mount Prospect.

Happy Homecoming—Maybe

by KEITH REINHARD
Happy homecoming, Hersey.
That's the way these affairs are supposed to read.

More often than not in the Paddock area this fall, host teams have developed shortcomings, visiting squads have been outgoing, upsets have been up-and-coming and the way has been tough going for the school that wishes to officially observe the return of its alumni.

Nevertheless Hersey goes out on the limb this weekend with the feature attraction containing no less than two squads still in the thick of the Mid-Suburban league football title race.

The Huskies face off against a powerful Conant 11 tonight at approximately 8 p.m. The Cougars, coached by Ralph Loebe, have been one of the few fortunate teams to observe a successful homecoming but it will in no way hinder their desire to spoil Hersey's big weekend.

Conant enters the clash sporting a 3-1 conference record and one of the best, if not the best, running back in the MSL this season. He is Jim "Quick Draw" McGraw and his credentials include domination of both the circuit scoring and rushing departments.

The Huskies, meanwhile, will be far from overshadowed in offensive might. The Len Burt-mentored hosts have the most prolific ground gaining game in the conference to support their own 3-0-1 record and individually the names of locals Bruce Frase and Skip Peterson appear almost directly below McGraw in the battle for rushing kudos.

Furthermore Hersey boasts a defense which last week held the number two ball carrier in the league to a meager 12 yards.

That ball carrier lugged for Fremd, co-holders of the league's top spot at present after playing Hersey to a 0-0 standoff last Saturday. The Vikings, along with the Cougars and Palatine are bunched up with Hersey at the top of the pack, meaning that Burt's group is the only school from District 214 still capable of stalking off with the conference crown in 1969.

Hersey would probably settle for a repeat of last year's tangle with Conant at the junior varsity level. The Huskies won that one 26-6.

Festivities End with Game

A week of festivities to celebrate Hersey High School's first four-class homecoming will culminate this weekend. Tonight under the lights the Huskies will meet the Conant Cougars.

Tomorrow night students will dance to the music of Bill Scott and his orchestra at the "Golden Autumn" Homecoming dance. The dance will be sponsored by the Varsity Club from 8 to 11 p.m.

This morning the king's and queen's courts will be presented to the student body for official coronation ceremonies. Homecoming royalty includes Sue Baztable, Karen Blerdeman, Linda Fracassi, Carolyn Hobbs, Sue Zimmerman, Milt Chen, Scott Randall, Gary Moravs, Skip Peterson and Mike Ryder.

The Ski Club will sponsor a car rally from approximately 4:15 to 5 p.m. this afternoon. Included in the route will be a drive past Principal Roland R. Gons' home in the Arlington Vista subdivision.

"Spirit Week" began Monday, with a hall decoration competition sponsored by the Orchestras dance group. Several class boards, clubs and organizations participated.

Tuesday consisted of "Grub Day," sponsored by the French Club, and the selling of Homecoming souvenirs. Souvenirs included buttons by Student Council; pennants by the Pomberets (drill team); ribbons by the Ensemble (singing group); shakers by the Majorettes; and mums by the cheerleaders. Orchestras is also selling helium-filled balloons at the game tonight.

Wednesday included a Class Recognition Day with each class wearing or doing something to characterize itself. The royal court was presented to the entire student body and voting for the king and queen took place.

Yesterday featured Color Day, a pep rally, bonfire, snake dance and mixer.

Lindstrom Seeks Debate with Gill

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, told the Herald yesterday he plans to send a telegram to Dist. 21 school Supt. Kenneth Gill today, challenging him to debate the topic of sex education in the public schools.

"I will send it on my own," Lindstrom said. "This will be the personal challenge of one educator to another."

When contacted by the Herald, Gill said, "Any telegrams I receive from Rev. Lindstrom will go in the wastebasket."

"I AM NOT impressed with him, and I don't think I owe him any response," he stated.

In a speech Tuesday sponsored by the Wheeling Township MOTOREDE (Movement to Restore Decency) Committee, Lindstrom publicly challenged Gill to a debate on sex education.

Lindstrom received nationwide recognition as the chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and parts of Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Rotarians Donate $12,000 in 5 Years

In the last five years, the Wheeling Rotary Club has donated approximately $12,000 to various charitable causes, the club's projects committee has announced.

The announcement was contained in a recent report by the committee to the club's membership.

Through Rotary sponsorship, Nora Vecchi of Argentina is living with the Philip Keene family in Wheeling and attending Wheeling High School.

The club has donated $2,000 to the initial funding of the Northwest Cooperative Mental Health Clinic and the DOOR workshop for handicapped persons.

Donations have also been given to such Wheeling High School activities as the drill team, the Spur Club, the band and the high school's summer scholarship. Pupils in Wheeling-Edison Grove School Dist. 21 have received help from the Rotarians with the "Patch the Pony" safety program, the Junior Achievement program, the district's band activities, and the Mark Woods Memorial Scholarship.

Although faced with a lack of funds to develop a nature-bicycle trail in Palatine, Palatine Park District officials are going ahead with development of plans for a four-mile trail through the village.

At a meeting of the regional planning and recreation committee of the Council of Governments earlier this month, Tony DiCello, director of recreation, presented plans for 3-to-6-foot combined nature and bicycle path and an auxiliary bicycle trail to link Palatine parks, pools, the train station and other points of interest.

"We want community support in getting the bicycle-nature trail started and in maintenance if it," DiCello said.

THE PALATINE trail is a pilot project in a county-wide effort to link forest preserves and recreational areas in a continuous bicycle path.

"When Hickel (Walter J. Hickel, secretary of the interior) was in Chicago for the National Recreation Association meeting last month, he said that $6.3 billion would be used to develop urban recreation," Roger Bjorvik, regional committee chairman and secretary to the Palatine Park Board, said.

"If we have a definite plan ready to present to federal representatives, we may be able to obtain federal money for the bicycle trail," Bjorvik continued.

In his speech, Hickel emphasized a change in philosophy about parks and recreational facilities. The federal government will begin shifting emphasis from national parks to local ones, near where people live.

IF FEDERAL MONEY is made available in the Chicago area, it will be for the total metropolitan area of Chicago, not just Palatine.

The nature-bicycle trail DiCello is developing would begin on Palatine Road and move north along Salt Creek to just north of Thurston Drive.

From Thurston Drive it would go west along a two-mile Commonwealth Edison right-of-way which lies north of Williams, Slayton, Pompano and Providence roads to the Palatine golf course.

The trail would wind on a northwest route through the golf course to an abandoned railroad right-of-way on the west side of the golf course and then turn north to Dundee Road. After crossing Dundee Road, the nature-bicycle trail would go through Camp Reinberg, cross Quentin Road, and join other bicycle paths in Deer Grove.

"OUR PROBLEM RIGHT now is finding out whether we will have to maintain the whole right-of-way," DiCello said. The right-of-way is about 135 feet wide. The trail would need about 18 feet of it.

"The park district cannot afford to cut the weeds and maintain the whole strip. We are hoping civic groups will volunteer to help with the maintenance."

Probe Commitment For School Site

School Dist. 23 is investigating the possibility of obtaining a commitment from the Meister and Nieberg Builders for a school site in the new Ivy Hill development.

The Ivy Hill development is bordered on the west by Windsor Drive, on the east by Windy Lane, on the south by the Commonwealth Edison highline towers and on the north by a site for future continuation of the Northgate subdivision.

When Meister and Nieberg presented plans for its new development to the village of Arlington Heights a year ago, it included a dedication of more than five acres for park use, but no land for school use. The Arlington Heights Park District does not have title to the land yet.

WHEN CHESTERFIELD Builders presented plans for a continuation of the Northgate subdivision to the village three years ago, it included a commitment of 5.8 acres for a school site. The development will now be built by Chesterfield Builders in collaboration with Miller Builders.

The problem facing the school district now is that probably the Ivy Hill development will be finished first, and no provision has been made in this area for a school site. Presently improvements are being made on the Ivy Hill land, but ground had not been broken in the Northgate development.

Furthermore, the school district feels that the 5.8 acres allotted for a school site in the Northgate development will not be large enough to accommodate children from both developments.

ACCORDING TO Gene Kucharski, Dist. 23 business manager, "Recommended standards used by education institutions advise that we need five acres for the building and an additional acre for every 100 children. Present projects say there will be 400 children in the Northgate development alone."

"We would like to have more land committed to us for our school site either from Chesterfield and Miller or from Meister and Nieberg.

"We will probably need at least 10 acres for a school to accommodate both developments," said Kucharski.

The most efficient way to handle the situation would be to obtain a commitment for land adjacent to the present site in the Northgate development from Meister and Nieberg.

If no commitment can be obtained, the school district may have to purchase land in the Ivy Hill or Northgate developments Kucharski said.

THE DISTRICT IS trying to make plans for the proposed school before the developments are completed and a new influx of students enters the district in September, 1971.

These plans are in the beginning stages and have not yet been thoroughly discussed by the district board of education.

Rentschler Is in Race

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs became fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest Republican, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary.

Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House

Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressman.

The Republican party has yet to "completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25 Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional metropolitan — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen. Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary," Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Governor Ogilvie's backing in the race and he could expect no primary help from President Nixon.

He said Smith could not beat Adlai Stevenson III the Democrat's likely choice for senator in a general election.

Rentschler said his name offers more party hope in capturing the Senate seat.

"This primary election will not be divisive," Rentschler promised. "It will provide healthy conditioning for the critical general election."

RENTSCHLER PROMISED to be the people's candidate, saying people want and deserve to make a choice between political candidates.

He declined in the press conference to name a campaign budget figure, although the sum of $300,000 was linked to his candidacy. Rentschler also declined later to promise a statement of income and net worth.

A former president of Martha Washington Kitchens Inc., a Chicago candy company, Rentschler sold his majority interest in the firm in April 1968 to become Nixon's Illinois campaign chairman.

He is now president of Corporation Mid-America Inc.

375 Romp in Park

Approximately 375 residents in the River Trails Park District are participating in the fall recreation program, reported Park Director Marvin Weiss. The program's first session was held last week.

Lions Club To Hold 'Autumn Haze Ball'

The Prospect Heights Lions Club will hold its 16th annual "Autumn Haze Ball" Nov. 1, in the Seven Eagles Restaurant, Des Plaines.

Dancing will begin at 9 p.m. to the music of the "Twilighters." Preceding the dance, a buffet will be served.

Tickets for the dance are $5 per couple and may be purchased from any Lions Club member or by calling Don Colby 537-0838, or Al Roth CL 5-6167. Dinner reservations should be made one week in advance.

Classes being offered to adults, teens and children include flag football, preschool play program, square dance, tumbling and gymnastics, volleyball and Christmas crafts.

Fees range from $1 to $18. According to Weiss, "The fees usually do not cover the cost of the program. Last year $12,500 was collected, and costs amounted to $23,350. The difference was subsidized by district taxes."

"The majority of instructors are teachers who are interested in parttime work," Weiss said.

Facilities in School Dist. 21 and 28 are being used for the program at no charge. In return, the park district maintains the school grounds and installs playground equipment.

The park district is now constructing an office and recreation building at Burning Bush Trails Park which will enable activities to be expanded. It should be finished by January, 1970.

Short, Lazy Liars Need Not Apply

Few job applicants have to take lie detector tests, be over 5 feet, 7 inches tall, and do 35 sit-ups before they're hired.

These are only some of the ways applicants for jobs as policemen in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are judged.

What makes these men, as well as the men on the Cook County Sheriff's Police force, capable of being accepted as policemen is a variety of skills and talents.

Becoming a policeman is a goal for many young boys. Often, however, as the boys grow to manhood, the thrill of catching robbers becomes unimportant when they consider the dangers and responsibilities required of a policeman.

"IT TAKES SOMEONE who has a desire to help people as his main interest — they don't make it if they're out for personal gain," Wheeling Police Chief M.O. Horcher said.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith has a harder time classifying his men. "I can't type cast them; they're all different and they all become policemen for different reasons," he says.

Basic qualifications for the policeman's job are somewhat standardized, but each village can have stricter laws than those imposed by the state.

Law officers applying to join the Cook County Sheriff's Police, which serves Prospect Heights as well as other unincorporated parts of the county, must be 21 years old, at least 5 feet, 7 inches tall with proportionate weight and must have a high school diploma.

In Buffalo Grove the requirements are varied by the fire and police commission, but most officers on the force are required to be at least 5 feet, 9 or 10 inches tall. Smith said he likes to have taller men because their physical presence can often ward off trouble where a smaller man would be ignored.

IN WHEELING the requirements set minimums at 5 feet, 8 inches tall and 145 pounds. Maximum heights are also applied by the villages.

In both villages, and in Prospect Heights as well, testing and applications for police jobs are handled by independent boards of citizens.

The Cook County Sheriff Police Merit Board consists of three citizens appointed by the sheriff who serve for 6-year terms. In the two villages, state law requires that three-man boards of fire and police commissioners direct the testing.

Horcher said the men have exclusive authority to hire, promote, discipline and fire police and firemen. The justification for a civilian board is that it is to represent a cross-section of the total community and remove police department applicants from political control.

To keep the board representative of the entire community, state law requires that no more than two of the three men can belong to the same political party. It also requires that one be an employer, one an employee and the other self-employed, the Wheeling chief said.

HORCHER SAID the law is enforced and courts have even reversed decisions about officer discipline when the board did not meet the legal specifications.

Under the direction of the board, men who meet the preliminary requirements begin their testing to enter the police force. A background check which includes interviews with the applicants' neighbors, friends, relatives, former employers and school administrators is conducted at the same time as the tests.

In Buffalo Grove, the applicant must first pass a written test of general aptitude and intelligence. Some police questions such as the ability to memorize faces of wanted men are also included.

Only if the man passes that test does he take a physical ability test which involves push-ups, situps, a standing broad jump, lifting 150 pounds and a relay running race.

IN WHEELING the order may be varied but the testing procedures are similar. Cook County policemen take written tests of personality and logic questions. In addition to the procedures followed by the two villages, county policemen must pass lie detector tests on personal background.

A physical examination is also part of the testing procedure. Personal interviews, which can vary in content, complete the testing procedures. Those who

A Spirited Grenadier

by JUDY COVELLI

The spirit of Elk Grove High School roams the halls occasionally in the form of a "Little Grenadier" in a band uniform that's a little baggy and with sleeves hanging down over his fingertips.

In real life, he goes by the name of Vincent Carloti, college counselor for high school seniors at Elk Grove.

But every once in a while he dons the pseudonym of "Little Grenadier" along with a borrowed band uniform, and "cajoles or threatens the students into having a little school spirit" prior to football games.

"It started at the beginning of the year when we were trying to work up the students into a bit of school spirit," he said. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?"

Carloti has tried hard, but Elk Grove's football team is still winless.

"IT'S WORKED I think, so we'll keep it up through the basketball season," he added.

As the only "Little Grenadier" of the school, Carloti has gained a unique role. "I've always felt we just haven't done enough to entice the kids around here. We haven't made it enough fun for them."

"I just generally give them a little bally-hoo," he said describing his role.

Speaking more seriously about it, he mentioned his work behind the scenes trying to get a general bus system implemented so students can more easily attend school games.

"For example, in our school we have a large element of students that live in Des Plaines. It gets to be a problem for their parents to drive them back and forth all the time."

"I'VE ALWAYS contended that if we had a bus without any commitment required, it would make it easier for the kids to come to the games," he explained.

"Somehow, somebody's going to have to underwrite this type of project. The students could pay a fee of about 50 cents, but this wouldn't cover the entire cost. I think that if they get used to the idea that a bus is available, even if they don't have tickets ahead of time, they might come to the games more often."

Carloti lives with his wife and three children in Mount Prospect.

Happy Homecoming—Maybe

by KEITH REINHARD
Happy homecoming, Hersey.
That's the way these affairs are posed to read.

More often than not in the Paddock area this fall, host teams have developed shortcomings, visiting squads have been out-going, upsets have been up-and-coming and the way has been tough going for the school that wishes to officially observe the return of its alumni.

Nevertheless Hersey goes out on the limb this weekend with the feature attraction containing no less than two squads still in the thick of the Mid-Suburban league football title race.

The Huskies face off against a powerful Conant 11 tonight at approximately 8 p.m. The Cougars, coached by Ralph Losee, have been one of the few fortunate teams to observe a successful homecoming but it will in no way hinder their desire to spoil Hersey's big weekend.

Conant enters the clash sporting a 3-1 conference record and one of the best, if not the best, running back in the MSL this season. He is Jim "Quick Draw" McGraw and his credentials include domination of both the circuit scoring and rushing departments.

The Huskies, meanwhile, will be far from overshadowed in offensive might. The Len Burt-mentored hosts have the most prolific ground gaining game in the conference to support their own 3-0-1 record and individually the names of locals Bruce Frase and Skip Peterson appear almost directly below McGraw in the battle for rushing kudos.

Furthermore Hersey boasts a defense which last week held the number two ball carrier in the league to a meager 12 yards.

That ball carrier lugged for Fremd, co-holders of the league's top spot at present

after playing Hersey to a 0-0 standoff last Saturday. The Vikings, along with the Cougars and Palatine are bunched up with Hersey at the top of the pack, meaning that Burt's group is the only school from District 214 still capable of stalking off with the conference crown in 1969.

Hersey would probably settle for a repeat of last year's tangle with Conant at the junior varsity level. The Huskies won that one 26-6.

Festivities End with Game

A week of festivities to celebrate Hersey High School's first four-class homecoming will culminate this weekend. Tonight under the lights the Huskies will meet the Conant Cougars.

Tomorrow night students will dance to the music of Bill Scott and his orchestra at the "Golden Autumn" Homecoming dance. The dance will be sponsored by the Varsity Club from 8 to 11 p.m.

This morning the king's and queen's courts will be presented to the student body for official coronation ceremonies. Homecoming royalty includes Sue Bastable, Karen Biederman, Linda Fracassi, Carolyn Hobbs, Sue Zimmerman, Milt Chen, Scott Randall, Gary Morava, Skip Peterson and Mike Ryder.

The Ski Club will sponsor a car rally from approximately 4:15 to 5 p.m. this afternoon. Included in the route will be a drive past Principal Roland R. Goins' home in the Arlington Vista subdivision.

"Spirit Week" began Monday, with a hall decoration competition sponsored by the Orchestis dance group. Several class boards, clubs and organizations participated.

Tuesday consisted of "Grub Day," sponsored by the French Club, and the selling of Homecoming souvenirs. Souvenirs included buttons by Student Council; pennants by the Pomberets (drill team); ribbons by the Ensemble (singing group); shakers by the Majorettes; and mums by the cheerleaders. Orchestis is also selling helium-filled balloons at the game tonight.

Wednesday included a Class Recognition Day with each class wearing or doing something to characterize itself. The royal court was presented to the entire student body and voting for the king and queen took place.

Yesterday featured Color Day, a pep rally, bonfire, snake dance and mixer.

Apartment Zoning OK'd by Plan Unit

With certain stipulations, Buffalo Grove's plan commission recommended approval Wednesday of a zoning proposal for 3 1/2 acres of land at the northeast corner of Arlington Heights and Lake-Cook roads. The commission held a public hearing on the matter Oct. 1.

The proposal, submitted by the Chesterfield Development Corp., calls for construction of an apartment complex with a small shopping center on the corner.

Presently, the land is unincorporated. Chesterfield has submitted a request for annexation of the property to the Buffalo Grove Village Board. Last week the board held a public hearing on that request.

THE PLAN commission made a decision on the zoning proposal after about an hour of deliberations.

In their motion to recommend approval of the zoning, the plan commissioners stipulated that the shopping center portion of the development was to remain under single ownership. They also said the buildings in the center were to be architecturally consistent. Their motion also called for the submission of a development plan for the shopping center to the plan commission.

In their recommendation for approval, commissioners also asked that when Chesterfield submits its preliminary plat for approval, it will also turn in a report from its engineer on the drainage situation.

ALTHOUGH THE commercial portion of the development will be constructed as a simple business district, it will nonetheless have many of the characteristics of a planned business district.

These characteristics include single ownership of the property, the consistency in building design, and adequate entrance and exit drives.

Fred Hillman, vice president of Chesterfield, told the commission his company did not want the shopping center to be classified a planned business district because, "We don't want to have to develop it all at once."

He pointed out that under the planned business district classification, "you have to hold back any development until you're ready to develop it all."

HILLMAN TOLD the commissioners, "Both we and the community need to develop the shopping center as we see what the needs of the community are." He said, "We want to allow tenants to move in whenever we can find them."

Hillman quickly agreed to the stipulations concerning the architectural style, the ownership policy and the entrance drives.

He agreed just as quickly to perform the flood control study called for by the commissioners.

At first, some of the commissioners asked that a flood retention basin be built in anticipation of other developments in the area.

To this Hillman said, "If you require us to build a storm retention facility regardless of whether or not we need it, that would be a first!"

CARL GENRICH, the plan commissioner who was promoting the retention proposal, pointed out he wanted the builder to "at least consider the need for storm retention." Genrich reminded the commission that Ted Scanlon, Wheeling's village president, has long called for more cooperation among communities on flood control.

Finally, the commissioners agreed on the stipulation that Chesterfield's engineer would submit a report on the drainage situation in the area when the preliminary plat was to be submitted.

Chesterfield plans to devote 27 acres of the property to apartments. The complex will contain 435 apartment units in 18 two-story buildings. No less than 40 per cent of those units will be one-bedroom.

Proposed recreational facilities include a swimming pool, barbecue pits, putting greens and tennis courts.

Rentschler Is in Race

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs became fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest Republican, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary.

Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressmen.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25 Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional metropolitan — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen. Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary," Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Governor Ogilvie's backing in the race and he could expect no primary help from President Nixon.

He said Smith could not beat Adlai Stevenson III the Democrat's likely choice for senator in a general election.

Rentschler said his name offers more party hope in capturing the Senate seat. "This primary election will not be divisive," Rentschler promised. "It will provide healthy conditioning for the critical general election."

RENTSCHLER PROMISED to be the people's candidate, saying people want and deserve to make a choice between political candidates.

He declined in the press conference to name a campaign budget figure, although the sum of $300,000 was linked to his candidacy. Rentschler also declined later to promise a statement of income and net worth. A former president of Martha Washington Kitchens Inc., a Chicago candy company, Rentschler sold his majority interest in the firm in April 1968 to become Nixon's Illinois campaign chairman.

He is now president of Corporation Mid-America Inc.

New Park Seeks Two Volunteers

Buffalo Grove's newly formed park district commission is looking for a secretary and a treasurer, according to Val Bettin, commission president.

He said the secretary would be required to take stenographic notes and compose letters. The treasurer would handle accountant's duties, such as preparation of financial reports.

"THESE JOBS WILL both have to be volunteer at first," said Bettin. Eventually, however, the park district plans to make the jobs paying ones.

Persons interested in either job should contact Mrs. Dede Armstrong at 537-7346 for further information.

Short, Lazy Liars Need Not Apply

Few job applicants have to take lie detector tests, be over 5 feet, 7 inches tall, and do 35 sit-ups before they're hired.

These are only some of the ways applicants for jobs as policemen in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are judged.

What makes those men, as well as the men on the Cook County Sheriff's Police force, capable of being accepted as policemen is a variety of skills and talents.

Becoming a policeman is a goal for many young boys. Often, however, as the boys grow to manhood, the thrill of catching robbers becomes unimportant when they consider the dangers and responsibilities required of a policeman.

"IT TAKES SOMEONE who has a desire to help people as his main interest — they don't make it if they're out for personal gain," Wheeling Police Chief M.O. Horcher said.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith has a harder time classifying his men. "I can't type cast them; they're all different and they all become policemen for different reasons," he says.

Basic qualifications for the policeman's job are somewhat standardized, but each village can have stricter laws than those imposed by the state.

Law officers applying to join the Cook County Sheriff's Police, which serves Prospect Heights as well as other unincorporated parts of the county, must be 21 years old, at least 5 feet, 7 inches tall with proportionate weight and must have a high school diploma.

In Buffalo Grove the requirements are varied by the fire and police commission, but most officers on the force are required to be at least 5 feet, 9 or 10 inches tall. Smith said he likes to have taller men because their physical presence can often ward off trouble where a smaller man would be ignored.

IN WHEELING the requirements set minimums at 5 feet, 8 inches tall and 145 pounds. Maximum heights are also applied by the villages.

In both villages, and in Prospect Heights as well, testing and applications for police jobs are handled by independent boards of citizens.

The Cook County Sheriff Police Merit Board consists of three citizens appointed by the sheriff who serve for 6-year terms. In the two villages, state law requires that three-man boards of fire and police commissioners direct the testing.

Horcher said the men have exclusive authority to hire, promote, discipline and fire police and firemen. The justification for a civilian board is that it is to represent a cross-section of the total community and remove police department applicants from political controls.

To keep the board representative of the entire community, state law requires that no more than two of the three men can belong to the same political party. It also requires that one be an employer, one an employee and the other self-employed, the Wheeling chief said.

HORCHER SAID the law is enforced and courts have even reversed decisions about officer discipline when the board did not meet the legal specifications.

Under the direction of the board, men who meet the preliminary requirements begin their testing to enter the police force. A background check which includes interviews with the applicants' neighbors, friends, relatives, former employers and school administrators is conducted at the same time as the tests.

In Buffalo Grove, the applicant must first pass a written test of general aptitude and intelligence. Some police questions such as the ability to memorize faces of wanted men are also included.

Only if the man passes that test does he take a physical agility test which involves push-ups, sit-ups, a standing broad jump, lifting 150 pounds and a relay running race.

IN WHEELING the order may be varied but the testing procedures are similar. Cook County policemen take written tests of personality and logic questions. In addition to the procedures followed by the two villages, county policemen must pass lie detector tests on personal background.

A physical examination is also part of the testing procedure. Personal interviews, which can vary in content, complete the testing procedures. Those who

A Spirited Grenadier

by JUDY COVELLI

The spirit of Elk Grove High School roams the halls occasionally in the form of a "Little Grenadier" in a band uniform that's a little baggy and with sleeves hanging down over his fingertips.

In real life, he goes by the name of Vincent Carioti, college counselor for high school seniors at Elk Grove.

But every once in a while he dons the pseudonym of "Little Grenadier" along with a borrowed band uniform, and "cajoles or threatens the students into having a 'little school spirit'" prior to football games.

"It started at the beginning of the year when we were trying to work up the students into a bit of school spirit," he said. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?"

Carioti has tried hard, but Elk Grove's football team is still winless.

"IT'S WORKED I think, so we'll keep it up through the basketball season," he added.

As the only "Little Grenadier" of the school, Carioti has gained a unique role. "I've always felt we just haven't done enough to entice the kids around here. We haven't made it enough fun for them."

"I just generally give them a little bally-hoo," he said describing his role. Speaking more seriously about it, he mentioned his work behind the scenes trying to get a general bus system implemented so students can more easily attend school games.

"For example, in our school we have a large element of students that live in Des Plaines. It gets to be a problem for their parents to drive them back and forth all the time."

"I'VE ALWAYS contended that if we had a bus without any commitment required, it would make it easier for the kids to come to the games," he explained.

"Somehow, somebody's going to have to underwrite this type of project. The students could pay a fee of about 50 cents, but this wouldn't cover the entire cost. I think that if they get used to the idea that a bus is available, even if they don't have tickets ahead of time, they might come to the games more often."

Carioti lives with his wife and three children in Mount Prospect.

Happy Homecoming—Maybe

by KEITH REINHARD
Happy homecoming, Hersey.
That's the way these affairs are supposed to read.

More often than not in the Paddock area this fall, host teams have developed shortcomings, visiting squads have been out-going, upsets have been up-and-coming and the way has been tough going for the school that wishes to officially observe the return of its alumni.

Nevertheless Hersey goes out on the limb this weekend with the feature attraction containing no less than two squads still in the thick of the Mid-Suburban league football title race.

The Huskies face off against a powerful Conant 11 tonight at approximately 8 p.m. The Cougars, coached by Ralph Loeke, have been one of the few fortunate teams to observe a successful homecoming but it will in no way hinder their desire to spoil Hersey's big weekend.

Conant enters the clash sporting a 3-1 conference record and one of the best, if not the best, running back in the MSL this season. He is Jim "Quick Draw" McGraw and his credentials include domination of both the circuit scoring and rushing departments.

The Huskies, meanwhile, will be far from overshadowed in offensive might. The Len Burt-mentored hosts have the most prolific ground gaining game in the conference to support their own 3-0-1 record and individually the names of local Bruce Frase and Skip Peterson appear almost directly below McGraw in the battle for rushing kudos.

Furthermore Hersey boasts a defense which last week held the number two ball carrier in the league to a meager 12 yards.

That ball carrier lugged for Fremd, co-holders of the league's top spot at present

after playing Hersey to a 0-0 standoff last Saturday. The Vikings, along with the Cougars and Palatine are bunched up with Hersey at the top of the pack, meaning that Burt's group is the only school from District 214 still capable of stalking off with the conference crown in 1969.

Hersey would probably settle for a repeat of last year's tangle with Conant at the junior varsity level. The Huskies won that one 26-6.

Festivities End with Game

A week of festivities to celebrate Hersey High School's first four-class homecoming will culminate this weekend. Tonight under the lights the Huskies will meet the Conant Cougars.

Tomorrow night students will dance to the music of Bill Scott and his orchestra at the "Golden Autumn" Homecoming dance. The dance will be sponsored by the Varsity Club from 8 to 11 p.m.

This morning the king's and queen's courts will be presented to the student body for official coronation ceremonies. Homecoming royalty includes Sue Bastable, Karen Bierdeman, Linda Fracassi, Carolyn Hobbs, Sue Zimmerman, Milt Chen, Scott Randall, Gary Morava, Skip Peterson and Mike Ryder.

The Ski Club will sponsor a car rally from approximately 4:15 to 5 p.m. this afternoon. Included in the route will be a drive past Principal Roland R. Goins' home in the Arlington Vista subdivision.

"Spirit Week" began Monday, with a hall decoration competition sponsored by the Orchestras dance group. Several class boards, clubs and organizations participated.

Tuesday consisted of "Grub Day," sponsored by the French Club, and the selling of Homecoming souvenirs. Souvenirs included buttons by Student Council; pennants by the Pomerets (drill team); ribbons by the Ensemble (singing group); shakers by the Majorettes; and mums by the cheerleaders. Orchestras is also selling helium-filled balloons at the game tonight.

Wednesday included a Class Recognition Day with each class wearing or doing something to characterize itself. The royal court was presented to the entire student body and voting for the king and queen took place.

Yesterday featured Color Day, a pep rally, bonfire, snake dance and mixer.

Viet Cong Troops Low

However, new Communist offensives were predicted despite its manpower decline.

Demos Action Ready

WASHINGTON — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told President Nixon yesterday that Democrats in the Senate were ready for any legislation he can throw at them.

Mansfield said a Congress which was able to deal with the outpouring of the Johnson and Kennedy administrations could find more than enough time to deal with Nixon's "piecemeal" requests.

TWO DAYS' WORK was destroyed in one night when vandals tore down brick mortar, chimney tile and metal door and window frames of the First Bank and Trust Drive-In building on Brockway and Coffax scheduled to be completed by Dec. 1. Construction company officials estimate the damage at $4,000 plus labor costs. Palatine police say neighbors heard banging in the lot about 2 a.m. but did not call police to investigate the incident. Completion of the building will be delayed about a month, William W. Heise Jr., First Bank and Trust president, said. He said bank officials are baffled by the display of disregard for business property in the village.

Bicycle Nature Trail Planned

Although faced with a lack of funds to develop a nature-bicycle trail in Palatine, Palatine Park District officials are going ahead with development of plans for a four-mile trail through the village.

At a meeting of the regional planning and recreation committee of the Council of Governments earlier this month, Tony DiCello, director of recreation, presented plans for 3-to-4-foot combined nature and bicycle path and an auxiliary bicycle trail to link Palatine parks, pools, the train station and other points of interest.

"We want community support in getting the bicycle-nature trail started and in maintenance if it," DiCello said.

THE PALATINE trail is a pilot project in a county-wide effort to link forest preserves and recreational areas in a continuous bicycle path.

"When Hickel (Walter J. Hickel, secretary of the interior) was in Chicago for the National Recreation Association meeting last month, he said that $6.3 billion would be used to develop urban recreation," Roger Bjorvik, regional committee chairman and secretary to the Palatine Park Board, said.

"If we have a definite plan ready to present to federal representatives, we may be able to obtain federal money for the bicycle trail," Bjorvik continued.

In his speech, Hickel emphasized a change in philosophy about parks and recreational facilities. The federal government will begin shifting emphasis from national parks to local ones, near where people live.

IF FEDERAL MONEY is made available in the Chicago area, it will be for the total metropolitan area of Chicago, not just Palatine.

The nature-bicycle trail DiCello is developing would begin on Palatine Road and move north along Salt Creek to just north of Thurston Drive.

From Thurston Drive it would go west along a two-mile Commonwealth Edison right-of-way which lies north of Williams, Slayton, Pompano and Providence roads to the Palatine golf course.

The trail would wind on a northwest route through the golf course to an abandoned railroad right-of-way on the west side of the golf course and then turn north to Dundee Road. After crossing Dundee Road, the nature-bicycle trail would go through Camp Reinberg, cross Quentia Road, and join other bicycle paths in Deer Grove.

"OUR PROBLEM RIGHT now is finding out whether we will have to maintain the whole right-of-way," DiCello said. The right-of-way is about 135 feet wide. The trail would need about 18 feet of it.

"The park district cannot afford to cut the weeds and maintain the whole strip. We are hoping civic groups will volunteer to help with the maintenance."

Some sort of overpass or crossing marker would be needed where the nature-bicycle trail would cross Hicks, Dundee and Quentin roads going into the forest preserve.

"We are looking for suggestions on overpasses. On Dundee there may be a possibility of an underpass used by grazing animals to get from a field on one side of the road to another across the road."

The bicycle extension in the Village of Palatine would probably travel along already existing streets marked with bicycle trail signs.

"The next step after we have the plan developed is to present it to the village board for approval. We will probably have to get township approval for the parts outside the village," DiCello said.

Homecoming's Fun When You're No. 1

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

The homecoming festivities at Fremd High School are seemingly more enjoyable this year. And there is little wonder. After all, the students and alumni will be watching their Viking football team tomorrow afternoon — a Viking football team which is in first place in the Mid-Suburban League.

First place has been a spot that Fremd has never seen in football until 1969. Assuredly, the Viking fans are hoping that Fremd will remain in the top spot after meeting Wheeling at 2 p.m. on Hall Hildebrandt Field tomorrow.

Palatine High's football team, dropped to second place last week by Prospect, and west on Illinois back to the school.

GAMES WITH THE Wheeling Wildcats will begin at noon for the junior varsity and 2 p.m. for varsity. Between the games the queen and her court will be presented.

A semi-formal dance for Fremd Alumni and students will begin in the school gym at 8 p.m. Saturday. The "Timeation" will play. Tickets are $2 per couple. Alumni are admitted free.

Chairman of the 1969 Fremd Homecoming is Bonnie Smith. Steering committee chairmen include pep week, Barb Dee; elections, Debbie Shaw; bonfire, Sue Jaeger; parade, Kit Berdan and Connie Boles; queen and court, Peggy Flinn; and dance, JoAnn Hargrave.

Rentschler Is in Race

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs became fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest Republican, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary.

Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressman.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25 Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional metropolitan — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary."

Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Governor Ogilvie's backing in the race and he could expect no primary help from President Nixon.

He said Smith could not beat Adlai Stevenson III the Democrat's likely choice for senator in a general election.

Rentschler said his name offers more party hope in capturing the Senate seat.

"This primary election will not be divisive," Rentschler promised. "It will provide healthy conditioning for the critical general election."

As the "beat goes on" celebrating Fremd High School's 1969 homecoming tonight, a homecoming queen and four attendants will be announced at the end of the sock-hop, just before the team and supporters go outside to an "Eve of Destruction" bonfire.

"The Beat Goes On" from a 3 p.m. pep rally today in the gym.

TONIGHT'S SOCK-HOP will have entertainment by "The Funnel" from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. This morning students will select one of five senior girls as queen. The five were elected last week.

Senior nominees are Becki Davis, Deedee DeMarco, Kathy Flinn, Sue Gage and Franci Mayotte.

Junior nominees for attendant are Peg Flinn, Cindy Cipri and Janie Trees; sophomore nominees are Leslie Palmer, Marcia Eickenberg and Cheri Howell; freshman nominees are Jan Jacobi, Pat Larson and Wendy Woods.

The queen will reign over the "Eve of Destruction" bonfire where a Wheeling Wildcat will be burned in effigy.

Cars and floats will line up tomorrow in the Fremd High School parking lot at 10:30 a.m.

The parade will leave Fremd at 11 a.m., travel north on Quentin to Palatine Road, east on Palatine to Plum Grove Road, south on Plum Grove to Helen, west on Helen to Cedar, south on Cedar to Illinois,

Mail Opens Drive

The fall fund-raising campaign of the Palatine Community Combined Appeal (PCCA) will begin this weekend when more than 8,000 letters go out to Palatine residents.

The local fund-raising group, an arm of the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy, has set a goal of $15,000 for this year's drive.

The goal in last year's campaign was $13,000.

"We asked the groups to submit their estimates and this year we decided to try for $15,000," said John Newkirk, PCCA board president.

IN THE LETTERS, the PCCA board of directors will ask residents to contribute to the united campaign for the Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Clearbrook Community Center for the Retarded, Countryside Center for the Handicapped, the Northwest Mental Health Association, the United Servicemen's Organization, Camp Reinberg and Salvation Army family services.

Community groups have been working since early fall addressing and stuffing envelopes, Newkirk said.

Board members are also soliciting local businessmen for support for the drive. Village Trustee Tom Kearns is campaign chairman.

GROUPS ORGANIZED BY Mrs. Bernice O'Neil and Gordon McLain have been stuffing envelopes. "We will be sending letters to every home in Palatine next week," Newkirk said. "All the envelopes are not finished yet."

The Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, Western Electric employees, and students at Countryside Center for the Handicapped have stuffed the envelopes which will be sent out tomorrow.

Residents should receive their letters some time next week.

Those who do not receive letters and would like to contribute may mail contributions to Palatine Community Combined Appeal, P.O. Box 241, Palatine, 60067.

"If people have questions or would like to work, they should contact me at 392-8850," Newkirk said.

will be out to salvage its season when the Pirates visit Elk Grove tonight at 8.

FREM, WHICH HAS A 3-1-1 record and a 3-0-1 record in the Mid-Suburban League, relies on speed and an ever-improving line for victories. The speed comes from the backfield of quarterback Tommy Bruns, halfbacks Bob Moloznik and Mike Parks, fullback Chuck McGunn and end Mike Menick.

Coach Al Ratcliff's starting offensive line will have Craig Freund at end with Menick, Bill Baetzal and Tim Tuerk at tackles, Dan Dwyer and Rich Bowman at guards and Jeff Creek at center. Defensive stalwarts for the Vikings have been Bob Smith, Larry Hanks, Tim Simpson, Bob Loughlin, Tom Reed and Mark Wicklund. Dan Sharpe will be getting his first start on the defensive unit this week.

WHEELING'S WILDCATS have a 1-2-2 record with a win over Elk Grove, ties to Arlington and Glenbard North and losses to Hersey and Maine South.

Palatine, coached by Arv Herstedt, has beaten Glenbrook North, Arlington, Glenbard North and Forest View and lost to Prospect. Elk Grove is winless in five games.

Palatine's starting lineup will have Chris Andriano and Charley Phillips at end, Jeff Frost and Bruce Eberle at tackles, Ron McAlister and Bob Carr at guards, John Thomas at center, Guy Zajonc or Jim Stauner at quarterback, Tom Patch and Ron Malnati at halfback and John Keating at fullback.

Defensively, it will be McAlister and Bob Hall at end, Chuck Drake and Mike Selsky at tackle, Thomas at middle guard, Carr and Bill Hathaway at linebacker, Scott Harris and Keating at cornerback and Andriano and Ed Meyer at safety.

M-Day Is Viewed

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

This week's issue centers on the Vietnam Moratorium held Wednesday. Some of the questions asked were if residents supported the moratorium, and what they think it might accomplish.

Mrs. Joseph Ackerman, 227 S. Forest Ave., Palatine, said she didn't know too much about the moratorium, but heard about student rallies across the country.

"These students, or so-called students in the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) are only adding to the disruption in our country. Our students will follow along," she said.

Mrs. Ackerman said she doesn't think President Nixon has had much of an opportunity, and hasn't had enough time yet. "It will take a lot of working to accomplish anything," she said. She thinks the moratorium will probably hurt the United States position in Hanoi and with the Paris peace talks.

MRS. EARL THOMAS, 3100 Starling Lane, Rolling Meadows, said "I was opposed to the day, and so was the rest of my family. We elected a president, and we should go along with his policy." She said she agreed with President Nixon. "We made a commitment in Vietnam, if we pull out, it is giving in to communism," she said.

"I have two sons, and I will be more than glad if they can go and do some good serving the country," she said. One of her sons is of draft age right now, and the other one is younger. "My son went to a peace forum today, discussing the war, and he said it was ridiculous," she said.

"I don't think anyone wants war, but this is something we are committed to. We could be the Vietnamese, on the other side," she said Mrs. Thomas thinks the U.S. has a moral obligation to be in Vietnam.

Mrs. David Adams, 318 Rose St., Palatine, said a moratorium day shouldn't be held on the campuses. "If people want to register protest, they should write to their Congressmen," she said.

IF THE DAY IS nonviolent, then it is alright, she said. Activities on the day should include forums and speakers, she added. Mrs. Adams thinks there could be violence. "The way it's been going, give them a little and they will take more." She thinks factions are using the day to put their own ideas in front of the people. "I don't think it's the war so much, but their own ideas, like the SDS," she said.

"We all want to see the war over, but I can't see where this will do any good. I can't see the point to a day like this," she said. "Maybe the government will pull out a few troops, but this won't help."

Mrs. Adams added she has a boy in the service. She generally thinks that the moratorium is another day for radicals to use for their own purposes.

A ROLLING MEADOWS resident who preferred not to be identified said he should support the U.S. involvement. She said the moratorium discredits our country and plays into the hands of those we are fighting. "Peaceful protest is alright, but protest doesn't seem to be conducted peacefully," she said.

Lindstrom Seeks Debate with Gill

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, told the Herald yesterday he plans to send a telegram to Dist. 21 school Supt. Kenneth Gill today, challenging him to debate the topic of sex education in the public schools.

"I will send it on my own," Lindstrom said. "This will be the personal challenge of one educator to another."

When contacted by the Herald, Gill said, "Any telegrams I receive from Rev. Lindstrom will go in the wastebasket."

"I AM NOT impressed with him, and I don't think I owe him any response," he stated.

In a speech Tuesday sponsored by the Wheeling Township MOTOREDE (Movement to Restore Decency) Committee, Lindstrom publicly challenged Gill to a debate on sex education.

Lindstrom received nationwide recognition as the chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and parts of Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Horsemen To Vote On Night Racing

by JOAN KLUSMANN

The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) will survey its members within the next two weeks on the issue of night racing.

An HBPA official said yesterday that when the ballots are returned, the horsemen's group will meet with management of Arlington Park and representatives of the Illinois Racing Commission.

The 2,254 members of the Chicago Division, all owners or trainers of thoroughbred horses, are expected to return a negative vote. In a similar survey last year, 575 members cast ballots against night racing and 310 said they would like night hours.

THE HBPA BOARD of directors met last week and unanimously agreed that the membership should express its opinion this year.

The group's spokesman said many owners and trainers reacted unfavorably to the night racing experiment at Arlington Park this summer. The main complaint is on behalf of the groomers and others who work in the stable area.

THOROUGHBREDED owners, who like to train horses early in the day, said stable help often get up before 5 a.m. on a night racing schedule, stable personnel may still be on duty at 1:30 a.m.

Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, agreed that "it is unnatural to ask a man to get up at four in the morning." But in a "Sports Illustrated" interview she questioned the necessity of early morning training. "If the harness people can train during the daytime, why can't the thoroughbred people?" she asked in the magazine.

Mrs. Everett contended that training of horses later in the day would allow stable help to live away from the barns and lead a more normal family life. During the eight-day experiment with night racing hours, Mrs. Everett gave $10,000 to the HBPA for distribution to groomers and other workers.

HARNESS HORSE owners, who race their steeds at night, also oppose night thoroughbred racing. They fear the prospect of reduced crowds that direct competition may bring. Representatives of all segments of the harness industry appeared at an Illinois Racing Board meeting in August to protest Arlington Park's request for night racing hours.

Arlington Park won the decision and attracted 10,700 more fans to the track at the end of 1969's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968. However, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,283,500.

MRS. EVERETT'S philosophy is that once attendance picks up, the amount of money bet on horses will eventually fall into place, and she has been reported as saying that Arlington Park will seek a complete night racing schedule for next year, with the exception of Labor Day.

The HBPA expects its survey to be complete by November 10. The Racing Board will meet shortly afterward to allot dates and hours for next year's racing season.

By mid-November Arlington Park's annexation by Arlington Heights will most likely be completed, and while many facets of the horse industry may once more rise and protest a request for night racing, village trustees will not oppose the plan. Under the agreement they are committed to go along with night racing in Arlington Heights.

MSD's Bacon Makes Hanover Heroes

by STEVE NOVICK

Heroes were made of Hanover Park residents Wednesday by Supt. Vinton Bacon of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) when he spoke at a Garden Club of America forum.

His comments came during a discussion of the MSD's role in water pollution control. The forum was held at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Bacon said that two year ago options on a 25,000-acre farm site were acquired by the MSD in Kankakee County. The farm was to be irrigated with effluents from sewage treatment plants in Cook County. The process is commonly referred to as sludge farming.

The Kankakee area residents raised strong protests fearing that the effluent would create an odor problem, a gift they were not willing to accept from their Cook County neighbors.

To prove that the effluent could be used to successfully enrich soil without creating odor problems an eight-acre piece of land adjoining the Hanover Park Sewage Treatment plant was selected for an experiment.

The project was started during the summer of 1968. Although it began late in the planting season a successful crop of corn was raised.

The Hanover Park site directly adjoins single dwelling homes, and during that first summer no odor complaints were heard, Bacon said.

Results of the 1968 program led to the successful raising of crops at several locations in Cook County this past summer, he added.

An abandoned strip mine in Ottawa County also had effluents from MSD treatment plants piped in to enrich the soil there.

Bacon expects that Ottawa County will now be the site of an extensive farm on which sludge will be used to irrigate the land.

And the people of Ottawa County will reap the advantages that the Kankakee County residents rejected, Bacon said.

During his talk Bacon also skimmed over several other subjects.

He told of the tertiary treatment plant in Hanover Park that produces water that is 99 per cent pure. Water that fish can easily survive in and that can safely be used for recreational purposes including swimming comes from tertiary treatment.

He also told how since its founding in 1890 the MSD has saved Lake Michigan from the fate of Lake Erie which today is a dead lake.

But as the process water on the Mississippi River has become unusable and now the MSD has an obligation to help clean up the river for our neighbors in that region, he said.

Underground reservoirs built in the deep rock layer that runs through Cook County are planned to keep untreated sewage from flowing into the Mississippi during flood periods, Bacon said. The untreated waste travels via shipping canals.

Similar underground storage is now used for natural gas, he added.

The MSD would engineer reservoirs that sewage would be kept in during floods. The treatment plants would then work at capacity to handle the water and sewage preventing untreated effluent from being sent to the Mississippi River.

Flood control is another MSD responsibility.

Bacon joked that at one time flood waters were kept in homeowner's basements but the public did not like this.

One step to change the situation was to build large reservoirs to contain water from overloaded sewers.

Lindstrom Likes Crane

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, told the Herald he was "delighted" that Philip M. Crane was the Republican nominee "in the 13th District Congressional race. Lindstrom gained nationwide notoriety as the national chairman of the "Remember the Pueblo Committee."

"His family and mine have long been personal friends and we worked together at Westminster Academy," he said.

Lindstrom said he didn't campaign actively for Crane during the recent primary race because he had other obligations. He said that he did talk to many people privately however, and recommended they vote for Crane. He said many from his church did actively campaign for Crane.

"I ALSO SENT him a telegram of congratulations," Lindstrom said.

Lindstrom stated that in the telegram he told Crane he would be "challenging the church family to pray for you" during one of his sermons.

Lindstrom was one of the founders of the Westminster Academy in 1966. In the summer of 1967, when the academy was moved from its location in Des Plaines to Northbrook, Crane became the director, or headmaster.

Lindstrom served under him as assistant headmaster.

In June, 1968, the Church of Christian Liberty and Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights were completed, and the Westminster Academy was dissolved.

"CRANE LEFT AT that time because he wanted to move into other areas. I became headmaster of the new Christian Liberty Academy, which is exactly the same as the old Westminster Academy," Lindstrom said.

The academy is a school for kindergartners through 10th grade students.

"We follow the traditional philosophy of education, which features good, old-fashioned discipline," Lindstrom said.

Attack Liberal Abortion Laws

by DON BRANNAN

Illinois laws pertaining to abortion were discussed by a doctor and priest at a meeting of the Hanover Township Young Republican Organization Wednesday night.

Under present Illinois law, a woman does not have the legal right to terminate an unwanted pregnancy. However, the law does provide that a physician may be acquitted of the charge of abortion if he proves that he performed the operation to save the mother's life.

Various bills designed to "liberalize" abortion laws in Illinois were introduced in the past session of the state legislature, but none became law.

DR. ROBERT G. Stone, speaking to the Young Republicans, said abortion is primarily a medical responsibility rather than a legal one. He contended that abortions should be performed only in cases where the mother's life was endangered.

"Anyone who thinks abortion is a relatively simple act to perform is foolish," Stone said. Dr. Stone is a specialist in obstetrics and gynecology in Elgin.

The Rev. Jerome F. Riordan, pastor of St. Ansgar Catholic Church in Hanover Park, spoke on the abortion issue from a moral standpoint.

OPPOSING THE legalization of abortion, Father Riordan approached the matter from the unborn child in the mother's womb. "Who is going to protect the rights of the unborn child?" the priest asked.

According to Riordan, the human embryo in the womb develops at some stage into a human being with human rights. And this human's right to exist must be protected.

"All laws are designed to enhance human life in some manner," he contended.

Stone said that most women who seek an abortion are married women with children, and the majority are from the upper income group.

ACCORDING TO THE gynecologist, medical advances through laboratory tests may offer much better knowledge in the future if a child will be born with either physical or medical incapacities.

However, Father Riordan disagreed that increased knowledge would alter the morality of performing an abortion. He pointed out that he was not making any indictment of the medical profession, however. "You can find doctors opposed to abortion and clergymen strongly in favor of it," he admitted.

"I will have to be convinced of the wisdom of performing an abortion, as a doctor," Stone remarked. "As a physician I insist on having that choice."

EVEN IF ABORTION was legalized in Illinois, Stone said he is opposed to the doctor becoming a mechanic and performing abortions in a routine manner.

Those who support a more liberal abortion law in Illinois feel that abortion should be permitted in cases of rape, incest, and other "victimized" situations. Much of the opposition to changing abortion laws comes from the Roman Catholic Church.

"Science has opened a whole Pandora's box of moral problems," said the priest, when discussion turned to the Pill and contraceptive devices.

Dr. Stone emphasized that he was strongly opposed to abortion as an ex-post facto type of birth control once conception had occurred.

"THERE ARE 1100 different types of birth control devices that can be used to prevent conception," argued the physician. Routine performance of abortion under "legalized" statutes would merely encourage more social irresponsibility and the passing of the burden to the medical profession, he contended.

"I am in favor of any abortion law which would help people with their health problems, but not one intended to correct social problems," said Dr. Stone, who is president of the Kane County Medical Association.

"I do not want to see the physician assuming the responsibility of aborting anyone who makes a 'mistake,'" he concluded.

Paradoxically, said Father Riordan, society is becoming more concerned about the taking of a human life in capital punishment, but it regards abortion as something proper and permissible.

Slides of a reservoir in Stickney Township were shown. The facility was filled to capacity with water from last summer's heavy storms.

Bacon said similar plans are on the board for areas throughout the Northwest Suburbs and Cook County.

The Stickney facility doubles as a recreational area for tobogganing and ball fields. Other reservoirs will be planned with even more extensive recreational use in mind, he said.

Short, Lazy Liars Need Not Apply

Few job applicants have to take lie detector tests, be over 5 feet, 7 inches tall, and do 35 sit-ups before they're hired.

These are only some of the ways applicants for jobs as policemen in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are judged.

What makes those men, as well as the men on the Cook County Sheriff's Police force, capable of being accepted as policemen is a variety of skills and talents.

Becoming a policeman is a goal for many young boys. Often, however, as the boys grow to manhood, the thrill of catching robbers becomes unimportant when they consider the dangers and responsibilities required of a policeman.

"IT TAKES SOMEONE who has a desire to help people as his main interest — they don't make it if they're out for personal gain," Wheeling Police Chief M.O. Horcher said.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith has a harder time classifying his men. "I can't type cast them; they're all different and they all become policemen for different reasons," he says.

Basic qualifications for the policeman's job are somewhat standardized, but each village can have stricter laws than those imposed by the state.

Law officers applying to join the Cook County Sheriff's Police, which serves Prospect Heights as well as other unincorporated parts of the county, must be 21 years old, at least 5 feet, 7 inches tall with proportionate weight and must have a high school diploma.

In Buffalo Grove the requirements are varied by the fire and police commission, but most officers on the force are required to be at least 5 feet, 9 or 10 inches tall. Smith said he likes to have taller men because their physical presence can often ward off trouble where a smaller man would be ignored.

IN WHEELING the requirements set minimums at 5 feet, 8 inches tall and 145 pounds. Maximum heights are also applied by the villages.

In both villages, and in Prospect Heights as well, testing and applications for police jobs are handled by independent boards of citizens.

The Cook County Sheriff Police Merit Board consists of three citizens appointed by the sheriff who serve for 6-year terms. In the two villages, state law requires that three-man boards of fire and police commissioners direct the testing.

Horcher said the men have exclusive authority to hire, promote, discipline and fire police and firemen. The justification for a civilian board is that it is to represent a cross-section of the total community and remove police department applicants from political controls.

To keep the board representative of the entire community, state law requires that no more than two of the three men can belong to the same political party. It also requires that one be an employer, one an employee and the other self-employed, the Wheeling chief said.

HORCHER SAID the law is enforced and courts have even reversed decisions about officer discipline when the board did not meet the legal specifications.

Under the direction of the board, men who meet the preliminary requirements begin their testing to enter the police force. A background check which includes interviews with the applicants' neighbors, friends, relatives, former employers and school administrators is conducted at the same time as the tests.

In Buffalo Grove, the applicant must first pass a written test of general aptitude and intelligence. Some police questions such as the ability to memorize faces of wanted men are also included.

Only if the man passes that test does he take a physical ability test which involves push-ups, situps, a standing broad jump, lifting 150 pounds and a relay running race.

IN WHEELING the order may be varied but the testing procedures are similar. Cook County policemen take written tests of personality and logic questions. In addition to the procedures followed by the two villages, county policemen must pass lie detector tests on personal background.

A physical examination is also part of the testing procedure. Personal interviews, which can vary in content, complete the testing procedures. Those who pass all the tests are placed on a list for hiring in order of their scores.

TWO DAYS' WORK was destroyed in one night when vandals tore down brick mortar, chimney tile and metal door and window frames of the First Bank and Trust Drive-In building on Brockway, and Colfax scheduled to be completed by Dec. 1. Construction company officials estimate the damage at $4,000 plus labor costs. Palatine police say neighbors heard banging in the lot about 2 a.m. but did not call police to investigate the incident. Completion of the building will be delayed about a month, William W. Heise Jr., First Bank and Trust president, said. He said bank officials are baffled by the display of disregard for business property in the village.

Rentschler To Run for Senate

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs became fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest Republican, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary.

Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for Congress.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25 Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional metropolitan — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen. Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary," Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Governor Ogilvie's backing in the race and he people's candidate, saying people want and deserve to make a choice between political candidates.

He declined in the press conference to name a campaign budget figure, although the sum of $300,000 was linked to his candidacy Rentschler also declined later to promise a statement of income and net worth.

Pay Discussion Closes City Door

Rolling Meadows City Council will meet behind closed doors tonight to review salaries of all fulltime city employees.

The special meeting was sparked by a proposal to raise the salaries of the lieutenant and chief in the police department.

This proposal was tabled at Tuesday's council meeting, resulting in the verbal resignation of Police Chief Cy Campbell.

According to James Watson, city manager, he has not discussed the resignation with Campbell and has not received a written resignation.

Lt. Ralph Evans said he has not been notified of the resignation of Campbell as chief, and as far as he's concerned, Campbell is still chief.

CAMPBELL HAS NOT been available for comment. Watson said hopefully Campbell will reconsider his statement at the council meeting.

"Maybe it's the best thing that Campbell stays away for a while and gets unwound," Watson said. Campbell needs a vacation," Watson said, and he hopes he will take the time coming to him.

At tonight's meeting, the new garbage department will also be considered, Watson said. The city has about 45 fulltime employees.

Current base pay for police chief is $13,720. Lieutenant is $11,532. Sergeant's base is $10,452. Patrolmen's pay ranges from $7,824 to $9,960. Recent proposals provide overtime for sergeants on down, plus incentive pay.

CHIEF AND LIEUTENANT are excluded from overtime and incentive pay, Watson said.

Instead of acting on the proposal concerning the two police employees, the council decided to review all salaries. Mayor Roland Meyer said raises for police chief and lieutenant would be retroactive to Oct. 14.

Homecoming's Fun When You're No. 1

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

The homecoming festivities at Fremd High School are seemingly more enjoyable this year. And there is little wonder. After all, the Vikings and alumni will be watching their Viking football team tomorrow afternoon — a Viking football team which is in first place in the Mid-Suburban League.

First place has been a spot that Fremd has never seen in football until 1969. Assuredly, the Viking fans are hoping that Fremd will remain in the top spot after meeting Wheeling at 2 p.m. on Hall Hildebrandt Field tomorrow.

Palatine High's football team, dropped to second place last week by Prospect, will be out to salvage its season when the Pirates visit Elk Grove tonight at 8.

FREMDS WHICH HAS A 3-1 record and a 3-0-1 record in the Mid-Suburban League, relies on speed and an ever-improving line for victories. The speed comes from the backfield of quarterback Tommy Bruns, halfbacks Bob Moloznik and Mike Parks, fullback Chuck McGuinn and end Mike Menick.

Coach Al Ratchiff's starting offensive line will have Craig Freund at end with Menick, Bill Baetzel and Tim Tuerk at tackles, Dan Dwyer and Rich Bowman at guards and Jeff Creek at center. Defensive stalwarts for the Vikings have been Bob Smith, Larry Hanks, Tim Simpson, Bob Loughlin, Tom Reed and Mark Wicklund. Dan Sharpe will be getting his first start on the defensive unit this week.

WHEELING'S WILDCATS have a 1-2-2 record with a win over Elk Grove, ties to Arlington and Glenbard North and losses to Hershey and Maine South.

Palatine, coached by Art Herstedt, has beaten Glenbrook North, Arlington, Glenbard North and Forest View and lost to Prospect. Elk Grove is winless in five games.

Palatine's starting lineup will have Chris Andriano and Charley Phillips at end, Jeff Frost and Bruce Eberle at tackles, Ron McAlister and Bob Carr at guards, John Thomas at center, Guy Zajonc or Jim Stainer at quarterback, Tom Patch and Ron Malnati at halfback and John Keating at fullback.

Defensively, it will be McAlister and Bob Hall at end, Chuck Drake and Mike Selsky at tackle, Thomas at middle guard, Carr and Bill Hathaway at linebacker, Scott Harris and Keating at cornerback and Andriano and Ed Meyer at safety.

M-Day Is Viewed

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

This week's issue centers on the Vietnam Moratorium held Wednesday. Some of the questions asked were if residents supported the moratorium, and what they think it might accomplish.

Mrs. Joseph Ackerman, 227 S. Forest Ave., Palatine, said she didn't know too much about the moratorium, but heard about student rallies across the country. "These students, or so-called students in the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) are only adding to the disruption in our country. Our students will follow along," she said.

Mrs. Ackerman said she doesn't think President Nixon has had much of an opportunity, and hasn't had enough time yet. "It will take a lot of working to accomplish anything," she said. She thinks the moratorium will probably hurt the United States position in Hanoi and with the Paris peace talks.

MRS. EARL THOMAS, 3100 Starling Lane, Rolling Meadows, said "I was opposed to the day, and so was the rest of my family. We elected a president, and we should go along with his policy." She said she agreed with President Nixon. "We made a commitment in Vietnam, if we pull out, it is giving in to communism," she said.

"I have two sons, and I will be more than glad if they can go and do some good serving the country," she said. One of her sons is of draft age right now, and the other one is younger. "My son went to a peace forum today, discussing the war, and he said it was ridiculous," she said.

"I don't think anyone wants war, but this is something we are committed to. We could be the Vietnamese, on the other side," she said. Mrs. Thomas thinks the U.S. has a moral obligation to be in Vietnam.

Mrs. David Adams, 318 Rose St., Palatine, said a moratorium day shouldn't be held on the campuses. "If people want to register protest, they should write to their Congressmen," she said.

IF THE DAY IS nonviolent, then it is alright, she said. Activities on the day should include forums and speakers, she added. Mrs. Adams thinks there could be violence. "The way it's been going, give them a little and they will take more." She thinks factions are using the day to put their own ideas in front of the people. "I don't think it's the war so much, but their own ideas, like the SDS," she said.

"We all want to see the war over, but I can't see where this will do any good. I can't see the point to a day like this," she said. "Maybe the government will pull out a few troops, but this won't help."

Mrs. Adams added she has a boy in the service. She generally thinks that the moratorium is another day for radicals to use for their own purposes.

A ROLLING MEADOWS resident who preferred not to be identified said he should support the U.S. involvement. She said the moratorium discredits our country and plays into the hands of those who are fighting. "Peaceful protest is alright, but protest doesn't seem to be conducted peacefully," she said.

Lindstrom Seeks Debate with Gill

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, told the Herald yesterday he plans to send a telegram to Dist. 21 school Supt. Kenneth Gill today, challenging him to debate the topic of sex education in the public schools.

"I will send it on my own," Lindstrom said. "This will be the personal challenge of one educator to another."

When contacted by the Herald, Gill said, "Any telegrams I receive from Rev. Lindstrom will go in the wastebasket."

"I AM NOT impressed with him, and I don't think I owe him any response," he stated.

In a speech Tuesday sponsored by the Wheeling Township MOTOREDE (Movement to Restore Decency) Committee, Lindstrom publicly challenged Gill to a debate on sex education.

Lindstrom received nationwide recognition as the chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and parts of Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Horsemen To Vote On Night Racing

by JOAN KLUSMANN

The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) will survey its members within the next two weeks on the issue of night racing.

An HBPA official said yesterday that when the ballots are returned, the horsemen's group will meet with management of Arlington Park and representatives of the Illinois Racing Commission.

The 2,254 members of the Chicago Division, all owners or trainers of thoroughbred horses, are expected to return a negative vote. In a similar survey last year, 575 members cast ballots against night racing and 310 said they would like night hours.

THE HBPA BOARD of directors met last week and unanimously agreed that the membership should express its opinion this year.

The group's spokesman said many owners and trainers reacted unfavorably to the night racing experiment at Arlington Park this summer. The main complaint is on behalf of the groomers and others who work in the stable area.

THOROUGHBRED owners, who like to train horses early in the day, said stable help often get up before 5 a.m. on a night racing schedule, stable personnel may still be on duty at 1:30 a.m.

Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, agreed that "it is unnatural to ask a man to get up at four in the morning." But in a "Sports Illustrated" interview she questioned the necessity of early morning training. "If the harness people can train during the daytime, why can't the thoroughbred people?" she asked in the magazine.

Mrs. Everett contended that training of horses later in the day would allow stable help to live away from the barns and lead a more normal family life. During the eight-day experiment with night racing hours, Mrs. Everett gave $10,000 to the HBPA for distribution to groomers and other workers.

HARNESS HORSE owners, who race their steeds at night, also oppose night thoroughbred racing. They fear the prospect of reduced crowds that direct competition may bring. Representatives of all segments of the harness industry appeared at an Illinois Racing Board meeting in August to protest Arlington Park's request for night racing hours.

Arlington Park won the decision and attracted 10,700 more fans to the track at the end of 1968's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968. However, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,289,500.

MRS. EVERETT'S philosophy is that once attendance picks up, the amount of money bet on horses will eventually fall into place, and she has been reported as saying that Arlington Park will seek a complete night racing schedule for next year, with the exception of Labor Day.

The HBPA expects its survey to be complete by November 10. The Racing Board will meet shortly afterward to allot dates and hours for next year's racing season.

By mid-November Arlington Park's annexation by Arlington Heights will most likely be completed, and while many facets of the horse industry may once more rise and protest a request for night racing, village trustees will not oppose the plan. Under the agreement they are committed to go along with night racing in Arlington Heights.

The HBPA expects its survey to be complete by November 10. The Racing Board will meet shortly afterward to allot dates and hours for next year's racing season.

MSD's Bacon Makes Hanover Heroes

by STEVE NOVICK

Heroes were made of Hanover Park residents Wednesday by Supt. Vinton Bacon of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) when he spoke at a Garden Club of America forum.

His comments came during a discussion of the MSD's role in water pollution control. The forum was held at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Bacon said that two year ago options on a 25,000-acre farm site were acquired by the MSD in Kankakee County. The farm was to be irrigated with effluents from sewage treatment plants in Cook County. The process is commonly referred to as sludge farming.

The Kankakee area residents raised strong protests fearing that the effluent would create an odor problem, a gift they were not willing to accept from their Cook County neighbors.

Lindstrom Likes Crane

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, told the Herald he was "delighted that Philip M. Crane was the Republican nominee" in the 13th District Congressional race. Lindstrom gained nationwide notoriety as the national chairman of the "Remember the Pueblo Committee."

"His family and mine have long been personal friends and we worked together at Westminster Academy," he said.

Lindstrom said he didn't campaign actively for Crane during the recent primary race because he had other obligations. He said that he did talk to many people privately however, and recommended they vote for Crane. He said many from his church did actively campaign for Crane.

"I ALSO SENT him a telegram of congratulations," Lindstrom said.

Lindstrom stated that in the telegram he told Crane he would be "challenging the church family to pray for you" during one of his sermons.

Lindstrom was one of the founders of the Westminster Academy in 1966. In the summer of 1967, when the academy was moved from its location in Des Plaines to Northbrook, Crane became the director, or headmaster.

Lindstrom served under him as assistant headmaster.

In June, 1968, the Church of Christian Liberty and Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights were completed, and the Westminster Academy was dissolved.

"CRANE LEFT AT that time because he wanted to move into other areas. I became headmaster of the new Christian Liberty Academy, which is exactly the same as the old Westminster Academy," Lindstrom said.

The academy is a school for kindergartners through 10th grade students.

"We follow the traditional philosophy of education, which features good, old-fashioned discipline," Lindstrom said.

Rally Sears the Cold

Amid the crowd pushing and shoving to get as close to the bonfire as possible came the shout, "It's too cold out here." Because it was indeed cold last night, nobody could blame the irate student for feeling the way he did. However, because it was a homecoming rally and the first time Prospect High School got a chance to celebrate at night, the weather wasn't all that important.

The drizzle that fell just before the parade began at 6:30 p.m. finally let up and, although in some spots mud puddles engulfed freshly-polished shoes, the ground was relatively solid. The night was clear and the strong wind tended to be more refreshing than bothersome.

ALMOST 1,000 STUDENTS turned out for the rally at the high school and hundreds of older citizens paused to watch as the parade of floats and open convertibles made its way through the village.

The Prospect High School Band led the way with red-faced youngsters clinging to their ice-cold instruments and playing the school song. They would play it many more times before the evening was through.

Five convertibles carrying the hopefuls for the title of homecoming queen followed the band with the floats trailing closely behind.

Nearly all the floats depicted dead Arlington Cardinals, Prospect's opponent, and prompted one student to cry out "Gee, they're all dead chickens."

WHEN THE PARADE finally came to a halt, the Mount Prospect Fire Department got a chance to start a fire for a change. The flames raged throughout the rally.

Village Mayor Bob Teichert briefly addressed the students, wishing them luck in the game Saturday and expressing his desire that holding the rally at night be continued next year.

Football Coach Don Williams, as expected, expressed optimism, saying, "We've never beaten Arlington before, but we will tomorrow night." And the crowd roared.

The five queen candidates were introduced and it was announced that students were to vote this morning with the coronation taking place at 2:25 p.m. in the fieldhouse.

The five hopefuls are Marty Frans, Sue Bates, Sally Yoder, Pam Konstant and Pam Hall.

IN THE JUDGING for the best class float the seniors took first place and the freshmen second. Best club float was the Drama Club with GRA — Pep Club and the Russian Club tying for second. The top float in the Car or Walking float category was the Diversified Occupations Club with the Audio-Visual Club taking second.

Horsemen To Vote On Night Racing

by JOAN KLUSMANN

The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) will survey its members within the next two weeks on the issue of night racing.

FREEZING TEMPERATURES did not diminish the enthusiasm of these three ladies or the approximately 1,000 students who turned out for the Prospect

Rentschler To Run for Senate

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs became fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest Republican, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary.

Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressman.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25 Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional metropolitan — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen. Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary," Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Govern-

He said Smith could not beat Adlai Stevenson III the Democrat's likely choice for senator in a general election.

Rentschler said his name offers more party hope in capturing the Senate seat.

"This primary election will not be divisive," Rentschler promised. "It will provide healthy conditioning for the critical general election."

RENTSCHLER PROMISED to be the people's candidate, saying people want and deserve to make a choice between political candidates.

He declined in the press conference to name a campaign budget figure, although the sum of $300,000 was linked to his candidacy. Rentschler also declined later to promise a statement of income and net worth.

nor Ogilvie's backing in the race and he could expect no primary help from President Nixon.

Flag Football Is Their Game

by DAVE PALERMO

It was like one of those toy electric football games coming to life.

Two teams of 10-year-old Mount Prospect kids were running, passing, blocking, kicking and generally playing their hearts out in a rough and tumble game of flag football.

"Come on Jerry, catch it!" bellowed a four-foot quarterback, standing with his hands on his hips.

"GET WITH IT BUTCH!" cried another, wiping crusted mud off his knees.

"You're supposed to be blocking."

There were even pint-sized cheerleaders jumping up and down and shouting "go team, go!" from the sidelines.

The players are fifth graders at Fairview Elementary School in Mount Prospect. And the game they play is flag football, a game very much like high school football.

Flag football involves all the fundamentals of the regular game, but is safer because instead of tackling an opponent, a boy need only grab a plastic flag dangling from his opponent's belt.

The youngsters at Fairview are just a few of the approximately 455 children enrolled in the Mount Prospect Park District's flag football program being inaugurated this year in cooperation with most of the elementary and junior high schools in Dist. 57 and Dist. 59 in Mount Prospect.

THE OBJECTIVE of the program is to give students who were unable to participate in the little league football program a chance to play.

"This program was to go over and above the fantastic little league program," said Paul Caldwell, assistant director of parks and recreation in Mount Prospect. "This program makes it easy for them to get together and have some fun."

"A great deal of kids," he added, "for some reason or another do not get involved."

Caldwell expected only about 150 kids to participate, and was overwhelmed when the response tripled his expectations.

Schools participating in the program include Busse, Fairview, Westbrook, Lions Park, Sunset, John Jay, Einstein, High Ridge Knolls, Lincoln and Dempster.

PARTICIPATING SCHOOLS must contribute the field markers, coaches and balls, while the park district furnishes the flags.

After six weeks of round robin play, the winners of each grade in each school will play other schools for the championship.

School, team and individual trophies will be awarded and certificates will be given to all players who participate in the program. (See picture on page 2.)

Caucus Begins Talks For April Election

Ten general caucus of Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 will meet at Busse School, 101 North Owen Street, Wednesday at 8 p.m. to discuss qualifications required for candidates who wish to seek election to the school board in April.

There will be three vacancies on the board of education which will be filled by election. The terms of Pres. Harry Hanson, Ralph Walberg and Charles Houchins will expire in April.

Hanson will discuss the duties and responsibilities of school board members at Wednesday's meeting and Dr. Eric Sehlberg, superintendent, will discuss the relationship of the school board and administration.

The meeting is open to the public and refreshments will be served.

Self-Help Class Opens

The Mount Prospect Civil Defense Unit will sponsor a medical self-help training course beginning Nov. 3 for six consecutive Monday evenings at the Randhurst Town Hall in the Randhurst Shopping Center at 7:30 p.m.

The course offers 18 hours of intensive training in medical self-help measures taught by members of the Mount Prospect Civil Defense Unit and the Mount Prospect Fire Department.

THE SIX-LESSON course will include instruction in rescue breathing and water safety, emergency childbirth, infant and child care, nursing, fractures and splinting, bleeding and bandaging, radioactive fallout and shelter, and personal hygiene and sanitation.

"The Civil Defense course is more comprehensive than the standard first aid course. We concentrate on practical application and treatment of injuries using common household items which are easily available.

"By the time the course is completed, a person will be able to treat and help injured persons without buying an expensive first-aid kit first," said Lt. Larry Pairitz, Mount Prospect Civil Defense director.

"We teach people how to make a stretcher from two broomsticks and a blanket and splint a fractured ankle or broken foot with a pillow and a belt. Or if there is a suspected back injury, to use an ironing board as a stretcher," he said.

PAIRITZ SAID the purpose of the course is to learn how to immediately care for an injured person until medical attention can be obtained plus additional instruction on first aid procedures when medical help is not readily available.

"A person can take a first aid course and never have an opportunity to practice what he's learned. But then again, it's that one time when you really need to know the basic first aid techniques that makes the course invaluable.

"With the increasing number of people who go camping on their vacations, a first aid course is a necessity because medical help isn't usually readily available. Even if a person doesn't go camping, there's the possibility that getting to a hospital in the area in time isn't conceivable, like during a bad snow storm or tornado.

"And in cases which involve serious bleeding, waiting for an ambulance can be too long. Time is the most important factor. There are a lot of reasons why people should have some knowledge of what to do and how to react in an emergency because they always happen when least expected," he said.

THERE IS NO charge for the course, and enrollment is open to anyone living in the Northwest suburban area. Certificates will be awarded upon completion of the course.

The tentative class schedule is as follows: Nov. 3, rescue breathing and water safety; Nov. 10, bleeding, bandaging and loss of blood; Nov. 17, emergency childbirth (this class will be taught by a team of doctors from the Northwest suburban area).

Nov. 24, fractures and shock; Dec. 1, burns, carries and lifts; Dec. 8, behavior and conduct in an emergency. The final class will also include instruction of the legal aspects of emergency aid, as well as give students an opportunity to treat simulated injuries for practical application exercises.

Registration will be held at the first class meeting.

Further information is available from the Mount Prospect Civil Defense director at 253-3930.

McGuire's Faces Another Hearing

The Mount Prospect plan commission will hold its second public hearing on Butch McGuire's rezoning request for the old Wayne's Redwood Inn on Rand Road at 3 p.m. today in the village hall.

A public hearing was held Aug. 15 on McGuire's petition for commercial rezoning, but residents who live adjacent to the property appealed to the plan commission for a rehearing on the grounds that proper public notice had not been served prior to the first hearing.

McGUIRE IS SEEKING a zoning change from residential with a non-conforming use for commercial. Under the village's zoning ordinance, McGuire cannot change or remodel the present building unless the zoning change is approved.

McGuire, who purchased Wayne's Redwood Inn last month, is already open for business, despite the issue which is pending before the plan commission.

The village board approved a liquor license transfer for the pub Sept. 20 which authorized McGuire to open for business as long as he did not extensively remodel the old Redwood Inn.

Residents will reportedly submit a petition to plan commissioners tonight in an effort to block McGuire's rezoning approval and discourage the owner from continuing his business.

RESIDENTS ARE OBJECTING to the pub on the grounds that it will increase the traffic and noise on residential streets as well as endanger the safety of their children.

Attorney Ross Miller of Mount Prospect will represent the group of residents objecting to the rezoning before the plan commission.

Despite the plan commission's decision, McGuire can still operate the pub, but if the rezoning is denied, he will not be able to change the present building which the owner says is in need of repair.

Plan commissioners are expected to render a final decision on the case next month.

Rights of Abortion Are Moral, Legal

by DON BRANNAN

Illinois laws pertaining to abortion were discussed by a doctor and priest at a meeting of the Hanover Township Young Republican Organization Wednesday night.

Under present Illinois law, a woman does not have the legal right to terminate an unwanted pregnancy. However, the law does provide that a physician may be acquitted of the charge of abortion if he proves that he performed the operation to save the mother's life.

Various bills designed to "liberalize" abortion laws in Illinois were introduced in the past session of the state legislature, but none became law.

DR. ROBERT G. Stone, speaking to the Young Republicans, said abortion is primarily a medical responsibility rather than a legal one. He contended that abortions should be performed only in cases where the mother's life was endangered.

"Anyone who thinks abortion is a relatively simple act to perform is foolish," Stone said. Dr. Stone is a specialist in obstetrics and gynecology in Elgin.

The Rev. Jerome F. Riordan, pastor of St. Ansgar Catholic Church in Hanover Park, spoke on the abortion issue from a moral standpoint.

OPPOSING the legalization of abortion, Father Riordan approached the matter from the unborn child in the mother's womb. "Who is going to protect the rights of the unborn child?" the priest asked.

According to Riordan, the human embryo in the womb develops at some stage into a human being with human rights. And this human's right to exist must be protected.

"All laws are designed to enhance human life in some manner," he contended.

Stone said that most women who seek an abortion are married women with children, and the majority are from the upper income group.

ACCORDING TO THE gynecologist, medical advances through laboratory tests may offer much better knowledge in the future if a child will be born with either physical or medical incapacities.

However, Father Riordan disagreed that increased knowledge would alter the morality of performing an abortion. He pointed out that he was not making any indictment of the medical profession, however. "You can find doctors opposed to abortion and clergymen strongly in favor of it," he admitted.

"I will have to be convinced of the wisdom of performing an abortion, as a doctor," Stone remarked. "As a physician I insist on having that choice."

EVEN IF ABORTION was legalized in Illinois, Stone said he is opposed to the doctor becoming a mechanic and performing abortions in a routine manner.

Those who support a more liberal abortion law in Illinois feel that abortion should be permitted in cases of rape, incest, and other "victimless" situations. Much of the opposition to changing abortion laws comes from the Roman Catholic Church.

"Science has opened a whole Pandora's box of moral problems," said the priest, when discussion turned to the Pill and contraceptive devices.

Dr. Stone emphasized that he was strongly opposed to abortion as an ex-post facto type of birth control once conception had occurred.

"THERE ARE 1100 different types of birth control devices that can be used to prevent conception," argued the physician. Routine performance of abortion under "legalized" statutes would merely encourage more social irresponsibility and the passing of the burden to the medical profession, he contended.

"I am in favor of any abortion law which would help people with their health problems, but not one intended to correct social problems," said Dr. Stone, who is president of the Kane County Medical Association.

"I do not want to see the physician assuming the responsibility of aborting anyone who makes a 'mistake,'" he concluded.

Paradoxically, said Father Riordan, society is becoming more concerned about the taking of a human life in capital punishment, but it regards abortion as something proper and permissible.

Slides of a reservoir in Stickney Township were shown. The facility was filled to capacity with water from last summer's heavy storms.

Bacon said similar plans are on the board for areas throughout the Northwest Suburbs and Cook County.

The Stickney facility doubles as a recreational area for tobogganing and ball fields. Other reservoirs will be planned with even more extensive recreational use in mind, he said.

MSD's Bacon Makes Hanover Heroes

by STEVE NOVICK

Heroes were made of Hanover Park residents Wednesday by Supt. Vinton Bacon of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) when he spoke at a Garden Club of America forum.

His comments came during a discussion of the MSD's role in water pollution control. The forum was held at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Bacon said that two year ago options on a 25,000-acre farm site were acquired by the MSD in Kankakee County. The farm was to be irrigated with effluents from sewage treatment plants in Cook County. The process is commonly referred to as sludge farming.

The Kankakee area residents raised strong protests fearing that the effluent would create an odor problem, a gift they were not willing to accept from their Cook County neighbors.

To prove that the effluent could be used to successfully enrich soil without creating odor problems an eight-acre piece of land adjoining the Hanover Park Sewage Treatment plant was selected for an experiment.

The project was started during the summer of 1968. Although it began late in the planting season a successful crop of corn was raised.

The Hanover Park site directly adjoins single dwelling homes, and during that first summer no odor complaints were heard, Bacon said.

Results of the 1968 program led to the successful raising of crops at several locations in Cook County this past summer, he added.

An abandoned strip mine in Ottawa

County also had effluents from MSD treatment plants piped in to enrich the soil there.

Bacon expects that Ottawa County will reap the advantages that the Kankakee County residents rejected, Bacon said.

During his talk Bacon also skimmed over several other subjects.

He told of the tertiary treatment plant in Hanover Park that produces water that is 99 per cent pure. Water that fish can easily survive in and that can safely be used for recreational purposes including swimming comes from tertiary treatment.

He also told how since its founding in 1890 the MSD has saved Lake Michigan from the fate of Lake Erie which today is a dead lake.

But as the process water on the Mississippi River has become unusable and now the MSD has an obligation to help clean up the river for our neighbors in that region, he said.

Underground reservoirs built in the deep rock layer that runs through Cook County are planned to keep untreated sewage from flowing into the Mississippi during flood periods, Bacon said. The untreated waste travels via shipping canals.

Similar underground storage is now used for natural gas, he added.

The MSD would engineer reservoirs that sewage would be kept in during floods. The treatment plants would then work at capacity to handle the water and sewage preventing untreated effluent from being sent to the Mississippi River.

er would be needed where the nature-bicycle trail would cross Hicks, Dundee and Quentin roads going into the forest preserve.

"We are looking for suggestions on overpasses. On Dundee there may be a possibility of an underpass used by grazing animals to get from a field on one side of the road to another across the road."

The bicycle extension in the Village of Palatine would probably travel along already existing streets marked with bicycle trail signs.

"The next step after we have the plan developed is to present it to the village board for approval. We will probably have to get township approval for the parts outside the village," DiCello said.

Little Grenadier --Dash of Spirit

by JUDY COVELLI

The spirit of Elk Grove High School roams the halls occasionally in the form of a "Little Grenadier" in a band uniform that's a little baggy and with sleeves hanging down over his fingertips.

In real life, he goes by the name of Vincent Carioti, college counselor for high school seniors at Elk Grove.

But every once in a while he dons the pseudonym of "Little Grenadier" along with a borrowed band uniform, and "cajoles or threatens the students into having a little school spirit" prior to football games.

"It started at the beginning of the year when we were trying to work up the students into a bit of school spirit," he said. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?"

Carioti has tried hard, but Elk Grove's football team is still winless.

"IT'S WORKED I think, so we'll keep it up through the basketball season," he added.

As the only "Little Grenadier" of the school, Carioti has gained a unique role. "I've always felt we just haven't done enough to entice the kids around here. We haven't made it enough fun for them.

"I just generally give them a little bally-hoo," he said describing his role.

Speaking more seriously about it, he mentioned his work behind the scenes trying to get a general busing system implemented so students can more easily attend school games.

"For example, in our school we have a large element of students that live in Des Plaines. It gets to be a problem for their parents to drive them back and forth all the time.

"I'VE ALWAYS contended that if we had a bus without any commitment required, it would make it easier for the kids to come to the games," he explained.

"Somehow, somebody's going to have to underwrite this type of project. The students could pay a fee of about 50 cents, but this wouldn't cover the entire cost. I think that if they get used to the idea that a bus is available, even if they don't have tickets ahead of time, they might come to the games more often."

Carioti lives with his wife and three children in Mount Prospect.

Commenting on the student reaction to him, he said, "I know the kids think I'm nuts, so I'm not hiding anything."

"LITTLE GRENADIER" — In his tilted band cap and oversized, borrowed uniform, Vincent Carioti walks around Elk

Grove High School rallying school spirit for the football team. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?" he said.

Lindstrom Seeks Debate with Gill

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, told the Herald yesterday he plans to send a telegram to Dist. 21 school Supt. Kenneth Gill today, challenging him to debate the topic of sex education in the public schools.

"I will send it on my own," Lindstrom said. "This will be the personal challenge of one educator to another."

When contacted by the Herald, Gill said, "Any telegrams I receive from Rev. Lindstrom will go in the wastebasket."

"I AM NOT impressed with him, and I don't think I owe him any response," he stated.

In a speech Tuesday sponsored by the Wheeling Township MOTOREDE (Movement to Restore Decency) Committee, Lindstrom publicly challenged Gill to a debate on sex education.

Lindstrom received nationwide recognition as the chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and parts of Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Surtax Extension OKd

WASHINGTON — The Senate Finance Committee yesterday approved extension of the income tax surcharge at a 5 per cent rate for the first half of 1970.

It also watered down tax increases for banks and savings and loans which the House had approved. The surtax is currently 10 per cent and is scheduled to expire at the end of the year.

Nixon To Speak Today

WASHINGTON — President Nixon will address the nation today on the rising cost of living, the White House announced.

The President's decision to go before the people on the subject of rising prices came after a series of high-level White House discussions over the last several days on the state of the economy. The address is to be carried over all radio networks, but not television, at 4 p.m. EDT.

Fans Are Celebrating

NEW YORK — Wild celebrations are still going on as fans of the world champion Amazin' Mets loudly proclaim the victory in the World Series.

Champagne flowed freely yesterday after the Mets beat the Orioles 5-3 on Ron Svoboda's eighth inning double that capped a typical comeback rally.

3 Win Nobel Prizes

STOCKHOLM — Three American scientists today won the 1969 Nobel Prize for medicine for their pioneering studies of viruses. The prize is worth $75,000.

The Royal Caroline Institute of Stockholm said they were Prof. Max Del Brueck of the California Institute of Technology, Director Alfred D. Hershey of the Genetics research unit of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, and Prof. Salvador E. Iuria of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Rally Sears the Cold

Amid the crowd pushing and shoving to get as close to the bonfire as possible came the shout, "It's too cold out here."

Because it was indeed cold last night, nobody could blame the irate student for feeling the way he did. However, because it was a homecoming rally and the first time Prospect High School got a chance to celebrate at night, the weather wasn't all that important.

The drizzle that fell just before the parade began at 6:30 p.m. finally let up and, although in some spots mud puddles engulfed freshly-polished shoes, the ground was relatively solid. The night was clear and the strong wind tended to be more refreshing than bothersome.

ALMOST 1,000 STUDENTS turned out for the rally at the high school and hundreds of older citizens paused to watch as the parade of floats and open convertibles made its way through the village.

The Prospect High School Band led the way with red-faced youngsters clinging to their ice-cold instruments and playing the school song. They would play it many more times before the evening was through.

Five convertibles carrying the hopefuls for the title of homecoming queen followed the band with the floats trailing closely behind.

Nearly all the floats depicted dead Arlington Cardinals, Prospect's opponent, and prompted one student to cry out "Gee, they're all dead chickens."

WHEN THE PARADE finally came to a halt, the Mount Prospect Fire Department got a chance to start a fire for a change. The flames raged throughout the rally.

Village Mayor Bob Teichert briefly addressed the students, wishing them luck in the game Saturday and expressing his desire that holding the rally at night be continued next year.

Football Coach Don Williams, as expected, expressed optimism, saying, "We've never beaten Arlington before, but we will tomorrow night." And the crowd roared.

The five queen candidates were introduced and it was announced that students were to vote this morning with the coronation taking place at 2:25 p.m. in the fieldhouse.

The five hopefuls are Marty Frans, Sue Bates, Sally Yoder, Pam Konstant and Pam Hall.

IN THE JUDGING for the best class float the seniors took first place and the freshmen second. Best club float was the Drama Club with GRA — Pep Club and the Russian Club tying for second. The top float in the Car or Walking float category was the Diversified Occupations Club with the Audio-Visual Club taking second.

Horsemen To Vote On Night Racing

by JOAN KLUSMANN

The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) will survey its members within the next two weeks on the issue of night racing.

An HBPA official said yesterday that when the ballots are returned, the horsemen's group will meet with management of Arlington Park and representatives of the Illinois Racing Commission.

The 2,254 members of the Chicago Division, all owners or trainers of thoroughbred horses, are expected to return a negative vote. In a similar survey last year, 575 members cast ballots against night racing and 310 said they would like night hours.

THE HBPA BOARD of directors met last week and unanimously agreed that the membership should express its opinion this year.

The group's spokesman said many owners and trainers reacted unfavorably to the night racing experiment at Arlington Park this summer. The main complaint is on behalf of the groomers and others who work in the stable area.

THOROUGHbred owners, who like to train horses early in the day, said stable help often get up before 5 a.m. on a night racing schedule, stable personnel may still be on duty at 1:30 a.m.

Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, agreed that "it is unnatural to ask a man to get up at four in the morning." But in a "Sports Illustrated" interview she questioned the necessity of early morning training. "If the harness people can train during the daytime, why can't the thoroughbred people?" she asked in the magazine.

FREEZING TEMPERATURES did not diminish the enthusiasm of these three ladies or the approximately 1,000 students who turned out for the Prospect

High School homecoming rally last night. It was the first time the event was held in the evening. The Arlington Cardinals will face the Knights on their home field Friday night at 8 p.m.

Rentschler To Run for Senate

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs became fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest Republican, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary.

Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressman.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25 Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional metropolitan — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen. Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary," Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Govern-

William Rentschler

He said Smith could not beat Adlai Stevenson III the Democrat's likely choice for senator in a general election.

Rentschler said his name offers more party hope in capturing the Senate seat.

"This primary election will not be divisive," Rentschler promised. "It will provide healthy conditioning for the critical general election."

RENTSCHLER PROMISED to be the people's candidate, saying people want and deserve to make a choice between political candidates.

He declined in the press conference to name a campaign budget figure, although the sum of $300,000 was linked to his candidacy. Rentschler also declined later to promise a statement of income and net worth.

A former president of Martha Washington Kitchens Inc., a Chicago candy company, Rentschler sold his majority interest in the firm in April 1968 to become Nixon's Illinois campaign chairman.

He is now president of Corporation Mid-America Inc.

Flag Football Is Their Game

by DAVE PALERMO

It was like one of those toy electric football games coming to life.

Two teams of 10-year-old Mount Prospect kids were running, passing, blocking, kicking and generally playing their hearts out in a rough and tumble game of flag football.

"Come on Jerry, catch it!" bellowed a four-foot quarterback, standing with his hands on his hips.

"GET WITH IT BUTCH!" cried another, wiping crusted mud off his knees. "You're supposed to be blocking."

There were even pint-sized cheerleaders jumping up and down and shouting "go team, go" from the sidelines.

The players are fifth graders at Fairview Elementary School in Mount Prospect. And the game they play is flag football, a game very much like high school football.

Flag football involves all the fundamentals of the regular game, but is safer because instead of tackling an opponent, a boy need only grab a plastic flag dangling from his opponent's belt.

The youngsters at Fairview are just a few of the approximately 455 children enrolled in the Mount Prospect Park District's flag football program being inaugurated this year in cooperation with most of the elementary and junior high schools in Dist. 57 and Dist. 59 in Mount Prospect.

THE OBJECTIVE OF the program is to give students who were unable to participate in the little league football program a chance to play.

"This program was to go over and above the fantastic little league program," said Paul Caldwell, assistant director of parks and recreation in Mount Prospect. "This program makes it easy for them to get together and have some fun."

"A great deal of kids," he added, "for some reason or another do not get involved."

Caldwell expected only about 150 kids to participate and was overwhelmed when the response tripled his expectations.

Schools participating in the program include Busse, Fairview, Westbrook, Lions Park, Sunset, John Jay, Einstein, High Ridge Knolls, Lincoln and Dempster.

PARTICIPATING SCHOOLS must contribute the field markers, coaches and balls, while the park district furnishes the flags.

After six weeks of round robin play, the winners of each grade in each school will play other schools for the championship.

School, team and individual trophies will be awarded and certificates will be given to all players who participate in the program. (See picture on page 2.)

Caucus Begins Talks For April Election

Ten general caucus of Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 will meet at Busse School, 101 North Owen Street, Wednesday at 8 p.m. to discuss qualifications required for candidates who wish to seek election to the school board in April.

There will be three vacancies on the board of education which will be filled by election. The terms of Pres. Harry Hanson, Ralph Walberg and Charles Houchins will expire in April.

Hanson will discuss the duties and responsibilities of school board members at Wednesday's meeting and Dr. Eric Sahlborg, superintendent, will discuss the relationship of the school board and administration.

The meeting is open to the public and refreshments will be served.

Self-Help Class Opens

The Mount Prospect Civil Defense Unit will sponsor a medical self-help training course beginning Nov. 3 for six consecutive Monday evenings at the Randhurst Town Hall in the Randhurst Shopping Center at 7:30 p.m.

The course offers 16 hours of intensive training in medical self-help measures taught by members of the Mount Prospect Civil Defense Unit and the Mount Prospect Fire Department.

THE SIX-LESSON course will include instruction in rescue breathing and water safety, emergency childbirth, infant and child care, nursing, fractures and splinting, bleeding and bandaging, radioactive fallout and shelter, and personal hygiene and sanitation.

"The Civil Defense course is more comprehensive than the standard first aid course. We concentrate on practical application and treatment of injuries using common household items which are easily available.

"By the time the course is completed, a person will be able to treat and help injured persons without buying an expensive first-aid kit first," said Lt. Larry Pairitz, Mount Prospect Civil Defense director.

"We teach people how to make a stretcher from two broomsticks and a blanket and splint a fractured ankle or broken foot with a pillow and a belt. Or if there is a suspected back injury, to use an ironing board as a stretcher," he said.

PAIRITZ SAID the purpose of the course is to learn how to immediately care for an injured person until medical attention can be obtained plus additional instruction on first aid procedures when medical help is not readily available.

"A person can take a first aid course and never have an opportunity to practice what he's learned. But then again, it's that one time when you really need to know the basic first aid techniques that makes the course invaluable.

"With the increasing number of people who go camping on their vacations, a first aid course is a necessity because medical help isn't usually readily available. Even if a person doesn't go camping, there's the possibility that getting to a hospital in the area in time isn't conceivable, like during a bad snow storm or tornado.

"And in cases which involve serious bleeding, waiting for an ambulance can be too long. Time is the most important factor. There are a lot of reasons why people should have some knowledge of what to do and how to react in an emergency because they always happen when least expected," he said.

THERE IS NO charge for the course, and enrollment is open to anyone living in the Northwest suburban area. Certificates will be awarded upon completion of the course.

The tentative class schedule is as follows: Nov. 3, rescue breathing and water safety; Nov. 10, bleeding, bandaging and loss of blood; Nov. 17, emergency childbirth (this class will be taught by a team of doctors from the Northwest suburban area).

Nov. 24, fractures and shock; Dec. 1, burns, carries and lifts; Dec. 8, behavior and conduct in an emergency. The final class will also include instruction of the legal aspects of emergency aid, as well as give students an opportunity to treat simulated injuries for practical application exercises.

Registration will be held at the first class meeting.

Further information is available from the Mount Prospect Civil Defense director at 253-3930.

McGuire's Faces Another Hearing

The Mount Prospect plan commission will hold its second public hearing on Butch McGuire's rezoning request for the old Wayne's Redwood Inn on Rand Road at 8 p.m. today in the village hall.

A public hearing was held Aug. 15 on McGuire's petition for commercial rezoning, but residents who live adjacent to the property appealed to the plan commission for a rehearing on the grounds that proper public notice had not been served prior to the first hearing.

McGUIRE IS SEEKING a zoning change from residential with a non-conforming use for commercial. Under the village's zoning ordinance, McGuire cannot change or remodel the present building unless the zoning change is approved.

McGuire, who purchased Wayne's Redwood Inn last month, is already open for business, despite the issue which is pending before the plan commission.

The village board approved a liquor license transfer for the pub Sept. 29 which authorized McGuire to open for business as long as he did not extensively remodel the old Redwood Inn.

Residents will reportedly submit a petition to plan commissioners tonight in an effort to block McGuire's rezoning approval and discourage the owner from continuing his business.

RESIDENTS ARE OBJECTING to the pub on the grounds that it will increase the traffic and noise on residential streets, as well as endanger the safety of their children.

Attorney Ross Miller of Mount Prospect will represent the group of residents objecting to the rezoning before the plan commission.

Despite the plan commission's decision, McGuire can still operate the pub, but if the rezoning is denied, he will not be able to change the present building, which the owner says is in need of repair.

Plan commissioners are expected to render a final decision on the case next month.

Rights of Abortion Are Moral, Legal

by DON BRANNAN
Illinois laws pertaining to abortion were discussed by a doctor and priest at a meeting of the Hanover Township Young Republican Organization Wednesday night.

Under present Illinois law, a woman does not have the legal right to terminate an unwanted pregnancy. However, the law does provide that a physician may be acquitted of the charge of abortion if he proves that he performed the operation to save the mother's life.

Various bills designed to "liberalize" abortion laws in Illinois were introduced in the past session of the state legislature, but none became law.

DR. ROBERT G. Stone, speaking to the Young Republicans, said abortion is primarily a medical responsibility rather than a legal one. He contended that abortions should be performed only in cases where the mother's life was endangered.

"Anyone who thinks abortion is a relatively simple act to perform is foolish," Stone said. Dr. Stone is a specialist in obstetrics and gynecology in Elgin.

The Rev. Jerome F. Riordan, pastor of St. Ansgar Catholic Church in Hanover Park, spoke on the abortion issue from a moral standpoint.

OPPOSING THE legalization of abortion, Father Riordan approached the matter from the unborn child in the mother's womb. "Who is going to protect the rights of the unborn child?" the priest asked.

According to Riordan, the human embryo in the womb develops at some stage into a human being with human rights. And this human's right to exist must be protected.

"All laws are designed to enhance human life in some manner," he contended. Stone said that most women who seek an abortion are married women with children, and the majority are from the upper income group.

ACCORDING TO THE gynecologist, medical advances through laboratory tests may offer much better knowledge in the future if a child will be born with either physical or medical incapacities.

However, Father Riordan disagreed that increased knowledge would alter the morality of performing an abortion. He pointed out that he was not making any indictment of the medical profession, however. "You can find doctors opposed to abortion and clergymen strongly in favor of it," he admitted.

"I will have to be convinced of the wisdom of performing an abortion, as a doctor," Stone remarked. "As a physician I insist on having that choice."

EVEN IF ABORTION was legalized in Illinois, Stone said he is opposed to the doctor becoming a mechanic and performing abortions in a routine manner.

Those who support a more liberal abortion law in Illinois feel that abortion should be permitted in cases of rape, incest, and other "victimised" situations. Much of the opposition to changing abortion laws comes from the Roman Catholic Church.

facto type of birth control once conception had occurred.

"THERE ARE 1100 different types of birth control devices that can be used to prevent conception," argued the physician. Routine performance of abortion under "legalized" statutes would merely encourage more social irresponsibility and the passing of the burden to the medical profession, he contended.

"I am in favor of any abortion law which would help people with their health problems, but not one intended to correct social problems," said Dr. Stone, who is president of the Kane County Medical Association.

"I do not want to see the physician assuming the responsibility of aborting anyone who makes a 'mistake,'" he concluded.

Paradoxically, said Father Riordan, society is becoming more concerned about the taking of a human life in capital punishment, but it regards abortion as something proper and permissible.

Slides of a reservoir in Stickney Township were shown. The facility was filled to capacity with water from last summer's heavy storms.

Bacon said similar plans are on the board for areas throughout the Northwest Suburbs and Cook County.

The Stickney facility doubles as a recreational area for tobogganing and ball fields. Other reservoirs will be planned with even more extensive recreational use in mind, he said.

They Plan Bike Trail

Although faced with a lack of funds to develop a nature-bicycle trail in Palatine, Palatine Park District officials are going ahead with development of plans for a four-mile trail through the village.

At a meeting of the regional planning and recreation committee of the Council of Governments earlier this month, Tony DiCello, director of recreation, presented plans for 3-to-6-foot combined nature and bicycle path and an auxiliary bicycle trail to link Palatine parks, pools, the train station and other points of interest.

"We want community support in getting the bicycle-nature trail started and in maintenance if it," DiCello said.

THE PALATINE trail is a pilot project in a county-wide effort to link forest preserves and recreational areas in a continuous bicycle path.

"When Hickel (Walter J. Hickel, secretary of the Interior) was in Chicago for the National Recreation Association meeting last month, he said that $6.3 billion would be used to develop urban recreation," Roger Bjorvik, regional committee chairman and secretary to the Palatine Park Board, said.

"If we have a definite plan ready to present to federal representatives, we may be able to obtain federal money for the bicycle trail," Bjorvik continued.

In his speech, Hickel emphasized a change in philosophy about parks and recreational facilities. The federal government will begin shifting emphasis from national parks to local ones, near where people live.

IF FEDERAL MONEY is made available in the Chicago area, it will be for the total metropolitan area of Chicago, not just Palatine.

The nature-bicycle trail DiCello is developing would begin on Palatine Road and move north along Salt Creek to just north of Thurston Drive.

From Thurston Drive it would go west along a two-mile Commonwealth Edison right-of-way which lies north of Williams, Slayton, Pompano and Providence roads to the Palatine golf course.

The trail would wind on a northwest route through the golf course to an abandoned railroad right-of-way on the west side of the golf course and then turn north to Dundee Road. After crossing Dundee Road, the nature-bicycle trail would go through Camp Reinberg, cross Quentin Road, and join other bicycle paths in Deer Grove.

"OUR PROBLEM RIGHT now is finding out whether we will have to maintain the whole right-of-way," DiCello said. The right-of-way is about 135 feet wide. The trail would need about 18 feet of it.

"The park district cannot afford to cut the weeds and maintain the whole strip. We are hoping civic groups will volunteer to help with the maintenance."

Some sort of overpass or crossing mark-

MSD's Bacon Makes Hanover Heroes

by STEVE NOVICK

Heroes were made of Hanover Park residents Wednesday by Supt. Vinton Bacon of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) when he spoke at a Garden Club of America forum.

His comments came during a discussion of the MSD's role in water pollution control. The forum was held at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel.

Bacon said that two year ago options on a 25,000-acre farm site were acquired by the MSD in Kankakee County. The farm was to be irrigated with effluents from sewage treatment plants in Cook County. The process is commonly referred to as sludge farming.

The Kankakee area residents raised strong protests fearing that the effluent would create an odor problem, a gift they were not willing to accept from their Cook County neighbors.

To prove that the effluent could be used to successfully enrich soil without creating odor problems an eight-acre piece of land adjoining the Hanover Park Sewage Treatment plant was selected for an experiment.

The project was started during the summer of 1968. Although it began late in the planting season a successful crop of corn was raised.

The Hanover Park site directly adjoins single dwelling homes, and during that first summer no odor complaints were heard, Bacon said.

Results of the 1968 program led to the successful raising of crops at several locations in Cook County this past summer, he added.

An abandoned strip mine in Ottawa

County also had effluents from MSD treatment plants piped in to enrich the soil there.

Bacon expects that Ottawa County will now be the site of an extensive farm on which sludge will be used to irrigate the land.

And the people of Ottawa County will reap the advantages that the Kankakee County residents rejected, Bacon said.

During his talk Bacon also skummed over several other subjects.

He told of the tertiary treatment plant in Hanover Park that produces water that is 99 per cent pure. Water that fish can easily survive in and that can safely be used for recreational purposes including swimming comes from tertiary treatment.

He also told how since its founding in 1890 the MSD has saved Lake Michigan from the fate of Lake Erie which today is a dead lake.

But as the process water on the Mississippi River has become unusable and now the MSD has an obligation to help clean up the river for our neighbors in that region, he said.

Underground reservoirs built in the deep rock layer that runs through Cook County are planned to keep untreated sewage from flowing into the Mississippi during flood periods, Bacon said. The untreated waste travels via shipping canals.

Similar underground storage is now used for natural gas, he added.

The MSD would engineer reservoirs that sewage would be kept in during floods. The treatment plants would then work at capacity to handle the water and sewage preventing untreated effluent from being sent to the Mississippi River.

Flood control is another MSD responsibility.

Bacon joked that at one time flood waters were kept in homeowner's basements but the public did not like this.

One step to change the situation was to build large reservoirs to contain water from overloaded sewers.

Scrutinize Track Pact

Surtax Extension OK'd

WASHINGTON — The Senate Finance Committee yesterday approved extension of the income tax surcharge at a 5 per cent rate for the first half of 1970.

It also watered down tax increases for banks and savings and loans which the House had approved. The surtax is currently 10 per cent and is scheduled to expire at the end of the year.

Nixon To Speak Today

WASHINGTON — President Nixon will address the nation today on the rising cost of living, the White House announced.

The President's decision to go before the people on the subject of rising prices came after a series of high-level White House discussions over the last several days on the state of the economy. The address is to be carried over all radio networks, but not television, at 4 p.m. EDT.

Fans Are Celebrating

NEW YORK — Wild celebrations are still going on as fans of the world champion Amazin' Mets loudly proclaim the victory in the World Series.

Champagne flowed freely yesterday after the Mets beat the Orioles 5-3 on Ron Svoboda's eighth inning double that capped a typical comeback rally.

3 Win Nobel Prizes

STOCKHOLM — Three American scientists today won the 1969 Nobel Prize for medicine for their pioneering studies of viruses. The prize is worth $75,000.

The Royal Caroline Institute of Stockholm said they were Prof. Max Del Bruck of the California Institute of Technology, Director Alfred D. Hershey of the Genetics research unit of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, and Prof. Salvador E. Luria of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Arlington Heights Board of Trustees dissected the annexation agreement between the village and Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises Inc. (CTE) at its meeting last night of the committee of the whole.

The village board went through the recently revised agreement point by point. Atty. Harold Klingner, BOLI member and critic of previous annexation agreements questioned the liquor license provision of the agreement.

That provision states: "The village agrees to amend its liquor control ordinance so as to permit sufficient liquor licenses to be issued upon approval of the annexation, and from time to time thereafter, as reasonably required for the race track hotel and other facilities to be included in the proposed development."

KLINGNER ASKED HOW many licenses would be required and stated that the village would have to grant liquor licenses. CTE Atty. Richard Theiss, said there are currently six liquor licenses on the site.

Village Pres. Jack Walsh asked if liquor licenses could be limited to the site's developer, Gulf and Western Land Development Corp. Theiss said it couldn't. Village Atty. Jack Siegel said if Gulf and Western sold the property, the village would still be required to grant liquor licenses for five years.

Theiss said, "I think putting a limit on liquor license is ludicrous, and is like putting up a red flag."

ON THE PROVISION requiring the village to build a police substation in five years if the owner requests it, Klingner said, "I don't think any property owner has the right to require the village to erect a police or fire station."

The board and Theiss agreed and the erection of such stations will be up to the village.

A newly written paragraph of provision seven stated: "The owner agrees to make available for commuter parking purposes at least 300 parking places in the general vicinity of the new train station for the accommodation of the public."

Walsh said, "The figure of 300 was arrived at to set a minimum figure and the assumption is they will offer a lot more."

THEN THE QUESTION of a land donation arose.

Walsh read a tax statement stating that CTE had paid $148,237 to School Dist. 15 last year. Klingner quickly said, "I'd like to see them donate eight acres of land for a school, and if a school isn't built in so many years the land will revert back to Gulf and Western."

Theiss replied, "Gulf and Western doesn't want to put a provision in the agreement committing themselves to donating land for a school."

Walsh added, "I sat on the fence on this issue until I saw the documented evidence of the money they've already given to the school district."

When asked if this would set a bad precedent for the future, Siegel replied, "We can defend this policy because this is an annexation agreement. I see no development comparable to this."

Road Paving Plans Ordered

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) last night directed its engineers to prepare plans for the paving of Kennicott Avenue at a width of 36 feet.

However, the board reserved the right to change its mind later on the width of the street. Residents have protested at many previous meetings against the 36-foot street.

In an attempt to speed progress on the project, BOLI gave its engineers the go-ahead. The project would include paving of Kennicott from Northwest Highway north to Oakton Street.

THE MAIN CONTROVERSY over the project centers around the trees on the heavily shaded two blocks. A preliminary survey shows there are 73 trees in the two-block area, and Kennicott resident Andrew Lofquist estimated that at least 32 trees would be lost. Lofquist also said he thought 12 trees would be in danger of damage.

BOLI member Harold Klingner said the board had taken special steps in other projects to save trees and had found that with special precautions curbs could be constructed very close to the base of a tree. With this in mind, Klingner estimated that no trees would be lost if Kennicott were 36 feet wide.

Klingner said he still has three questions he wants answered concerning the project and has not definitely decided that Kennicott will be 36 feet wide.

EXAMINING NEW FILMS, which will be available to Arlington Heights Memorial Library patrons on Nov. 1, are Harold Ard, executive librarian, and Mrs. Eleanor Felleisen, assistant circulation librarian.

Bulk of the 350 reels received are 8 mm. silent films. The collection includes black and white and color films which vary in length from 10 minutes to more than an hour. Friends of the Library contributed $500 to the program. Included in the collection are "John F. Kennedy, Man and President," films on Apollo 11 and Antarctica, and for the adventurous — "Horrors of Dracula" and "Frankenstein."

Poll Horsemen on Night Hours

by JOAN KLUSMANN

The Chicago Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (HBPA) will survey its members within the next two weeks on the issue of night racing.

An HBPA official said yesterday that when the ballots are returned, the horsemen's group will meet with management of Arlington Park and representatives of the Illinois Racing Commission.

The 2,254 members of the Chicago Division, all owners or trainers of thoroughbred horses, are expected to return a negative vote. In a similar survey last year, 575 members cast ballots against night racing and 310 said they would like night hours.

THE HBPA BOARD of directors met last week and unanimously agreed that the membership should express its opinion this year.

The group's spokesman said many owners and trainers reacted unfavorably to the night racing experiment at Arlington Park this summer. The main complaint is on behalf of the grooms and others, who work in the stable area.

Park Orders Equipment

Ninety-five park benches, five combination football and soccer goals and a concrete water-spraying purpose will be installed in Arlington Heights parks next year.

Purchase of more than $18,000 in recreational equipment were approved by the park board during its meeting Tuesday night.

Of the 95 park benches, 16 will be installed in Frontier Park, 16 in Heritage Park, 16 in Camelot Park, 12 in Raven Park, 12 in Patriot Park, 10 in Carefree Park, seven in Virginia Terrace Park and six in Evergreen Park.

The combination football and soccer goals will be installed in Heritage, Carefree, Greenbrier School, Recreation and the First Methodist Church parks. The park at the church, 1908 E. Euclid, St., is being developed under a free use agreement between the church and the park district.

The spraying purpose, which will cost $425, will be installed at Olympic Park Pool, just west of Arlington High School.

Other approved purchases included 29 basketball backstops to be placed in the following parks: Frontier, Heritage, Carefree, Evergreen, Camelot, Raven, Patriot and Virginia Terrace.

THOROUGHbred owners, who like to train horses early in the day, said stable help often get up before 5 a.m. on a night racing schedule, stable personnel may still be on duty at 1:30 a.m.

Mrs. Marie Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, agreed that "it is unnatural to ask a man to get up at four in the morning." But in a "Sports Illustrated" interview she questioned the necessity of early morning training. "If the harness people can train during the daytime, why can't the thoroughbred people?" she asked in the magazine.

Mrs. Everett contended that training of horses later in the day would allow stable help to live away from the barns and lead a more normal family life. During the eight-day experiment with night racing hours, Mrs. Everett gave $10,000 to the HBPA for distribution to grooms and other workers.

HARNESS HORSE owners, who race their steeds at night, also oppose night thoroughbred racing. They fear the prospect of reduced crowds that direct competition may bring. Representatives of all segments of the harness industry appeared at an Illinois Racing Board meeting in August to protest Arlington Park's request for night racing hours.

Arlington Park won the decision and attracted 10,700 more fans to the track at the end of 1968's season than during a comparable eight-day period in 1968. However, wagering for the trial period declined by $1,283,500.

MRS. EVERETT'S philosophy is that once attendance picks up, the amount of money bet on horses will eventually fall into place, and she has been reported as saying that Arlington Park will seek a complete night racing schedule for next year, with the exception of Labor Day.

The HBPA expects its survey to be complete by November 10. The Racing Board will meet shortly afterward to allot dates and hours for next year's racing season.

By mid-November Arlington Park's annexation by Arlington Heights will most likely be completed, and while many faces of the horse industry may once more rise and protest a request for night racing, village trustees will not oppose the plan. Under the agreement they are committed to go along with night racing in Arlington Heights.

Rentschler To Be In Senate Primary

A rumor circulating in the Northwest Suburbs became fact yesterday when William Rentschler, President Nixon's 1968 Illinois campaign chairman, announced candidacy for the U.S. Senate.

A Lake Forest Republican, Rentschler, 44, had selectively mentioned his Senate ambitions during the recent Wheeling, Palatine, and Hanover Township GOP Annual dinners.

Rentschler's formal entry in the U.S. Senate race pits him against Ralph T. Smith in the March 17 GOP primary.

Smith, of Alton, former Illinois House Speaker, was appointed to the Senate by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, to succeed the late Sen. Everett Dirksen.

FOLLOWING HIS press conference in Chicago, Rentschler declared he will support Philip Crane, the GOP 13th District Congressional nominee, in his bid for congressman.

The Republican party has yet to completely unite behind Crane, the conservative who took the special Oct. 7 primary by 2,000 votes.

Even if Crane wins the special Nov. 25 Congressional election, he must run in the regular March primary and again could face other GOP competition.

Rentschler said, Lake County represents downstate Illinois and his candidacy would retain the traditional metropolitan — downstate balance between Illinois' two U.S. Senators. Sen. Charles Percy, also a Republican is regarded as coming from the metropolitan area. Smith is from downstate.

"I INTEND to give Republicans a clear-cut alternative in the March primary," Rentschler said in his announcement speech.

He acknowledged that Smith has Governor Ogilvie's backing in the race and he could expect no primary help from President Nixon.

He said Smith could not beat Adlai Stevenson III the Democrat's likely choice for senator in a general election.

Rentschler said his name offers more party hope in capturing the Senate seat.

"This primary election will not be divisive," Rentschler promised. "It will provide healthy conditioning for the critical general election."

RENTSCHLER PROMISED to be the people's candidate, saying people want and deserve to make a choice between political candidates.

He declined in the press conference to name a campaign budget figure, although the sum of $300,000 was linked to his candidacy. Rentschler also declined later to promise a statement of income and net worth.

A former president of Martha Washington Kitchens Inc., a Chicago candy company, Rentschler sold his majority interest in the firm in April 1968 to become Nixon's Illinois campaign chairman.

He is now president of Corporation Mid-America Inc.

Bicycle Nature Trail Planned

Although faced with a lack of funds to develop a nature-bicycle trail in Palatine, Palatine Park District officials are going ahead with development of plans for a four-mile trail through the village.

At a meeting of the regional planning and recreation committee of the Council of Governments earlier this month, Tony DiCello, director of recreation, presented plans for 3-to-4-foot combined nature and bicycle path and an auxiliary bicycle trail to link Palatine parks, pools, the train station and other points of interest.

"We want community support in getting the bicycle-nature trail started and in maintenance, if it," DiCello said.

THE PALATINE trail is a pilot project in a county-wide effort to link forest preserves and recreational areas in a continuous bicycle path.

"When Hickel (Walter J. Hickel, secretary of the interior) was in Chicago for the National Recreation Association meeting last month, he said that $6.3 billion would be used to develop urban recreation," Roger Bjorvik, regional committee chairman and secretary to the Palatine Park Board, said.

"If we have a definite plan ready to present to federal representatives, we may be able to obtain federal money for the bicycle trail," Bjorvik continued.

In his speech, Hickel emphasized a change in philosophy about parks and recreational facilities. The federal government will begin shifting emphasis from national parks to local ones, near where people live.

IF FEDERAL MONEY is made available in the Chicago area, it will be for the total metropolitan area of Chicago, not just Palatine.

The nature-bicycle trail DiCello is developing would begin on Palatine Road and move north along Salt Creek to just north of Thurston Drive.

From Thurston Drive it would go west along a two-mile Commonwealth Edison right-of-way which lies north of Williams, Slayton, Pompano and Providence roads to the Palatine golf course.

The trail would wind on a northwest route through the golf course to an abandoned railroad right-of-way on the west side of the golf course and then turn north to Dundee Road. After crossing Dundee Road, the nature-bicycle trail would go through Camp Reinberg, cross Quentin Road, and join other bicycle paths in Deer Grove.

"OUR PROBLEM RIGHT now is finding out whether we will have to maintain the whole right-of-way," DiCello said. The right-of-way is about 135 feet wide. The trail would need about 18 feet of it.

"The park district cannot afford to cut the weeds and maintain the whole strip. We are hoping civic groups will volunteer to help with the maintenance."

Some sort of overpass or crossing marker would be needed where the nature-bicycle trail would cross Hicks, Dundee and Quentin roads going into the forest preserve.

"We are looking for suggestions on overpasses. On Dundee there may be a possibility of an underpass used by grazing animals to get from a field on one side of the road to another across the road."

The bicycle extension in the Village of Palatine would probably travel along already existing streets marked with bicycle trail signs.

"The next step after we have the plan developed is to present it to the village board for approval. We will probably have to get township approval for the parts outside the village," DiCello said.

Funds Mount Up

Arlington Heights is more than three-fourths of the way home towards getting the money together for its holiday activities.

According to Harold Bell, executive manager of the Chamber of Commerce, pledges from business and professional people now total $9,300 of the $12,000 needed.

The $12,000 necessary has been budgeted by the chamber committee supporting the Holiday Fantasies and Christmas Decorations program. More than 70 local firms have already pledged to participate in the activities.

The Christmas and holiday activities will be bigger and brighter than last year's programs, Chamber spokesmen said. "We're planning an improved Christmas lighting program this year," Bell said. "We've earmarked a substantial portion of the budget for just this purpose."

"Our Holiday Fantasies parade committee is aiming for a 50-per cent greater event the Saturday of Thanksgiving weekend with three bands, five drum and bugle corps, 14 marching units, and the giant balloon parade of Dr. D.O. Little already committed. Most of our budget will be spent on the parade to insure greatest acceptance ever."

One of the changes planned for this year's parade is that the 12-page program booklet indicating order of march, information about each marching unit, and other data will be distributed to 113,000 homes in the area the week of the parade.

Rights of Abortion Are Moral, Legal

by DON BRANNAN

Illinois laws pertaining to abortion were discussed by a doctor and priest at a meeting of the Hanover Township Young Republican Organization Wednesday night.

Under present Illinois law, a woman does not have the legal right to terminate an unwanted pregnancy. However, the law does provide that a physician may be acquitted of the charge of abortion if he proves that he performed the operation to save the mother's life.

Various bills designed to "liberalize" abortion laws in Illinois were introduced in the past session of the state legislature, but none became law.

DR. ROBERT G. Stone, speaking to the Young Republicans, said abortion is primarily a medical responsibility rather than a legal one. He contended that abortions should be performed only in cases where the mother's life was endangered.

"Anyone who thinks abortion is a relatively simple act to perform is foolish," Stone said. Dr. Stone is a specialist in obstetrics and gynecology in Elgin.

The Rev. Jerome F. Riordan, pastor of St. Ansgar Catholic Church in Hanover Park, spoke on the abortion issue from a moral standpoint.

OPPOSING THE legalization of abortion, Father Riordan approached the matter from the unborn child in the mother's womb. "Who is going to protect the rights of the unborn child?" the priest asked.

According to Riordan, the human embryo in the womb develops at some stage into a human being with human rights. And this human's right to exist must be protected.

"All laws are designed to enhance human life in some manner," he contended. Stone said that most women who seek an abortion are married women with children, and the majority are from the upper income group.

ACCORDING TO THE gynecologist, medical advances through laboratory tests may offer much better knowledge in the future if a child will be born with either physical or medical incapacities.

However, Father Riordan disagreed that increased knowledge would alter the morality of performing an abortion. He pointed out that he was not making any indictment of the medical profession, however. "You can find doctors opposed to abortion and clergymen strongly in favor of it," he admitted.

"I will have to be convinced of the wisdom of performing an abortion, as a doctor," Stone remarked. "As a physician I insist on having that choice."

EVEN IF ABORTION was legalized in Illinois, Stone said he is opposed to the doctor becoming a mechanic and performing abortions in a routine manner.

Those who support a more liberal abortion law in Illinois feel that abortion should be permitted in cases of rape, incest, and other "victimized" situations. Much of the opposition to changing abortion laws comes from the Roman Catholic Church.

"Science has opened a whole Pandora's box of moral problems," said the priest, when discussion turned to the Pill and contraceptive devices.

Dr. Stone emphasized that he was strongly opposed to abortion as an ex-post facto type of birth control once conception had occurred.

"THERE ARE 1100 different types of birth control devices that can be used to prevent conception," argued the physician. Routine performance of abortion under "legalized" statutes would merely encourage more social irresponsibility and the passing of the burden to the medical profession, he contended.

"I am in favor of any abortion law which would help people with their health problems, but not one intended to correct social problems," said Dr. Stone, who is president of the Kane County Medical Association.

"I do not want to see the physician assuming the responsibility of aborting anyone who makes a 'mistake,'" he concluded.

Lindstrom Likes Crane

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, told the Herald he was "delighted" that Philip M. Crane was the Republican nominee in the 13th District Congressional race. Lindstrom gained nationwide notoriety as the national chairman of the "Remember the Pueblo Committee."

"His family and mine have long been personal friends and we worked together at Westminster Academy," he said.

Lindstrom said he didn't campaign actively for Crane during the recent primary race because he had other obligations. He said that he did talk to many people privately however, and recommended they vote for Crane. He said many from his church did actively campaign for Crane.

"I ALSO SENT him a telegram of congratulations," Lindstrom said. Lindstrom stated that in the telegram he told Crane he would be "challenging the church family to pray for you" during one of his sermons.

Lindstrom was one of the founders of the Westminster Academy in 1966. In the summer of 1967, when the academy was moved from its location in Des Plaines to Northbrook, Crane became the director, or headmaster.

Lindstrom served under him as assistant headmaster.

In June, 1968, the Church of Christian Liberty and Christian Liberty Academy in Prospect Heights were completed, and the Westminster Academy was dissolved.

"CRANE LEFT AT that time because he wanted to move into other areas. I became headmaster of the new Christian Liberty Academy, which is exactly the same as the old Westminster Academy," Lindstrom said.

The academy is a school for kindergartners through 10th grade students.

"We follow the traditional philosophy of education, which features good, old-fashioned discipline," Lindstrom said.

THIS CIRCUS BEAR is 14 feet tall and will come rolling down the streets of Arlington Heights next month. The bear, a multi-colored balloon, will be part of the Holiday Fantasies parade sponsored this year by the village's Chamber of Commerce.

Old 1456709 Strikes Again

Like the Mounties, the Arlington Heights Police Department can be counted on to get its villain.

Villains, like myself, guilty on the seventh day of May of letting Arlington Heights parking meter No. 8 expire.

With this advance confession of being a hard-core incorrigible, let me tell you how cleverly the Arlington Heights police traced me down, not once, but twice, with parking ticket No. 1456709.

AS I SAID, I received 1456709 on May 7. My usual criminal habits in such violation matters is to drop the $1 fine in the parking ticket envelope and shoot it back, via the U.S. mail.

So, naturally, I was a little miffed last month when I received a gold copy of a parking ticket in the mail.

"Old 1456709," I said, "although I don't remember you, I wouldn't have forgotten to pay you."

Old 1456709 said that the Village of Arlington Heights, as complainant, has a police officer who states on oath that Martha V. Moser, defendant, (that's me) "herein did violate Section 18-920 of the local ordinance and further states that he has reasonable grounds to believe the defendant guilty as charged."

THE COMPLAINANT now demanded $3 restitution for my crime. The defendant was herein furious.

The defendant wondered if the police officer believing her guilty was the same one who hauled her out once for parking very legally in her employer's parking lot. Or maybe, the defendant thought, she is again victim of someone else's mistake, like the time an Arlington Heights policeman accused her of entering the intersection of Arlington Heights and Central roads on a red light and making a left turn.

(Now really, fellows. No one enters that intersection on red at 5:06 p.m. without getting clobbered. Had you not been so seared behind a service station sign, you could have seen that my car, and the car behind me, entered the intersection on green and could not complete the legal left turn until northbound traffic had stopped for the red light.)

ANYWAY, EVEN THE criminal element of our society has its rights, I thought, as I marched into the Arlington Heights Police Department.

The officer behind the counter was polite. He pulled my original ticket out of a drawer. Sure enough, stamped on old 1456709 in red ink, in capital letters with filigree border, was the word "paid."

The officer mumbled something about a slip being lost and wadded up my gold violation notice. I left feeling rehabilitated and confident about going back into moral society.

MY PAROLE LASTED about one month. Then last Saturday evening I heard someone storming up my apartment stairs and flew to the window to see a Mount Prospect police squad in the drive.

I surrendered and opened the door to accept a notice to appear in court. The Village of Arlington Heights, the complainant, again had "reasonable grounds to believe Martha V. Moser, the defendant, guilty as charged." It now wanted $15.

I looked at the Mount Prospect policeman called in on my case and then down at the yellow copy of a parking ticket he had handed me.

"Old 1456709," I thought, "you sure get around."

PEOPLE NO LONGER FEAR PSYCHIATRISTS

In the past psychiatric help was considered only as a last resort. People avoided going to or taking relatives to a psychiatrist, even when it was evident that treatment was needed. They would even disregard the suggestions of their family physicians. There was a feeling of shame.

This has all changed. Today, with public awareness of the problems of mental health and with the spectacular development of new medicines to treat mental disorders, people are no longer afraid to consult a physician. They realize that there is hope. We stock these new medicines as soon as they are available for prescription use.

Little Grenadier --Dash of Spirit

by JUDY COVELLI

The spirit of Elk Grove High School roams the halls occasionally in the form of a "Little Grenadier" in a band uniform that's a little baggy and with sleeves hanging down over his fingertips.

In real life, he goes by the name of Vincent Carioti, college counselor for high school seniors at Elk Grove.

But every once in a while he dons the pseudonym of "Little Grenadier" along with a borrowed band uniform, and "cajoles or threatens the students into having a little school spirit" prior to football games.

"It started at the beginning of the year when we were trying to work up the students into a bit of school spirit," he said. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?"

Carioti has tried hard, but Elk Grove's football team is still winless.

"IT'S WORKED I think, so we'll keep it up through the basketball season," he added.

As the only "Little Grenadier" of the school, Carioti has gained a unique role. "I've always felt we just haven't done enough to entice the kids around here. We haven't made it enough fun for them.

"I just generally give them a little bally-hoo," he said describing his role.

Speaking more seriously about it, he mentioned his work behind the scenes trying to get a general busing system implemented so students can more easily attend school games.

"For example, in our school we have a large element of students that live in Des Plaines. It gets to be a problem for their parents to drive them back and forth all the time.

"I'VE ALWAYS contended that if we had a bus without any commitment required, it would make it easier for the kids to come to the games," he explained.

"Somehow, somebody's going to have to underwrite this type of project. The students could pay a fee of about 50 cents, but this wouldn't cover the entire cost. I think that if they get used to the idea that a bus is available, even if they don't have tickets ahead of time, they might come to the games more often."

Carioti lives with his wife and three children in Mount Prospect.

Commenting on the student reaction to him, he said, "I know the kids think I'm nuts, so I'm not hiding anything."

"LITTLE GRENADIER" — in his tilted band cap and oversized, borrowed uniform, Vincent Carioti walks around Ell

Grove High School rallying school spirit for the football team. "I thought if making an idiot of myself might help the cause, why not?" he said.

Garbage Collection Nearly on Schedule

A backlog of work has fouled up the garbage collection schedule in Arlington Heights.

Collections in the village are behind schedule because of the wildcat strike which ended Oct. 7, said a spokesman for Laseke Disposal Co., the only garbage collection service in the village.

DURING THE strike, grass clippings, leaves, and other special types of refuse were not collected by the village's public works department men who were manning garbage trucks.

With the backlog, Laseke trucks are collecting three loads of garbage in areas where there is usually one.

Garbage collection should be back on schedule by the weekend, according to the spokesman.

Tri-Hi-Y Initiates 17 AHS Students

The Tri-Hi-Y organization at the Northwest Suburban YMCA initiated 17 Arlington High School girls last week.

New club members, who will take part in community service projects during the year, are Karen Ahnquist, Pam Burkhart, Ginni Catlin, Sue Collins, Mary Hickox, Ann Lockwood, Mimi Marshall, Pam Miller, Beth Oestman, Gale Sauers and Karen Stephens.

Also welcomed into the group were Lana Volland, Pat Walsh, Mary Wiks and Gayle Woods.

American Field Service students Mecha Cervino of Argentina and Nina Rusch of Jordan were initiated as honorary members.
